GOP 'Afraid' To Stand on Real Issues, Truman Says

President Tells Oklahomans He'll 'Smoke 'Em Out;' Plans N. Y. Trip

Aboard Truman Campaign Train, Sept. 29 (AP).—President Truman today laid plans for a campaign swing through Thomas E. Dewey's home State as he told Oklahomans his Republican foes are "afraid" to take a stand on issues.

Promising to "smoke 'em out," Mr. Truman said:

"They know very well that if the people understand what the issues are they haven't a chance to win on November 2."

In a speech in Skelly Stadium at Tulsa late this afternoon, Mr. Truman declared:

"The issues are clear enough in this campaign. You can vote for continued price supports, more rural electrification and greater reclamation, irrigation and hydro-electric power projects, or you can vote for the candidates who threaten to reverse the established policies and turn the clock backward to the boom-and-bust Republicanism of the twenties."

Greets Senator Moore

A member of the delegation that welcomed Truman to Tulsa was retiring Republican Senator Edward R. Moore, 76-year-old oil man. There were grins and a cordial handshake as the President called out:

"Hello, Senator, glad to see you. How are you?"

At Marietta, Okla., yesterday the Chief Executive had called him "Old Man Moore," said Moore "was never any good in the first place," and never did anything for the people except by "accident."

Moore had replied Mr. Truman was under a misapprehension that the Senator was running again.

Between thick lines of applauding people who showered torn paper on him, Mr. Truman drove to the stadium. Police Commissioner J. Fred Lawrence, jr., figured the crowd at 105,000.

Lawrence estimated 27,000 more people were at the stadium. They

Bank Urges West Europe To Cooperate

Prewar Standards Impossible Without More Mutual Aid, McCloy Declares

By Ferdinand Kuhn, jr.
Post Reporter

The World Bank yesterday called upon the nations of western Europe to make a greater "cooperative effort" than they ever have shown in the past.

In its annual report, submitted to the board of governors by President John J. McCloy, the Bank said economic cooperation was essential to western European recovery and survival.

"Whether or not the existing obstacles to freedom of intra-European trade can be removed without some kind of European union is a question on which opinions differ," the report said.

Differences Run Deep

"The difficulties of achieving such a union are frequently underestimated by those who overlook the historical and deep-rooted differences in languages, customs, traditions and national habits and prejudices among the European countries. At best the attainment of such a union may be a slow process.

"The fact remains, nevertheless, that unless the western European countries can be united or otherwise find the key to unlock the gates which now obstruct the free flow of goods, manpower and capital among them, there is grave doubt whether they can in the foreseeable future sustain their peoples at a standard of living approaching prewar levels."

OEEC Best Agency

The report suggested that the 16-nation Organization for European Economic Cooperation might be the best agency to develop "the economic unification of Europe."

"The more strength and influence that the OEEC possesses," the report said, "and the more it comes to be a truly international body and not merely a body of conflicting claimants, the more it will contribute to fulfilling the great hopes which ERP has inspired."

Although the Bank has loaned only 84 million dollars in the past 12 months—to Denmark, Luxembourg, Chile and the Netherlands—McCloy said yesterday that the bank "should be very busy in the coming year."

He reported an "impressvie" increase in the number of new projects being discussed—among them proposed loans and technical assistance for power developments, transportation facilities, irrigation and reclamation projects, migration schemes, mining developments and shipbuilding and industrial plants.

He held out hope that western

Atomic Energy Commission Blacklists Two CIO Unions

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The Atomic Energy Commission yesterday blacklisted two left-wing CIO unions, the United Public Workers and the United Electrical Workers.

Its action is without precedent in Government. Top officers of both unions have refused to sign anti-Communist affidavits.

By implication, the action threatens the jobs of all commission employes who are members of the UPW which has long been accused of being Communist-dominated. Also, the AEC order may be the opening wedge which could lead to UPW being black-listed throughout all other Federal agencies.

It's no secret that a study was made of UPW several months ago by Justice officials when a list of subversive groups was being compiled. A group of CIO officials called on Attorney General Tom Clark before his blacklist was made public to urge him not to include unions on it.

It may be significant that the AEC move against UPW comes at a time when a number of its key members in Government have had loyalty charges filed against them. Several already have been fired under the cloud of disloyalty.

Although they have had no specific instructions on it, a number of agency loyalty board members admit they take into consideration an accused employe's activity in UPW in ruling on his loyalty.

Actually what the AEC did yesterday in regard to UPW was a precautionary measure. Chairman David Lilienthal notified the University of Chicago that it should not recognize the union at its Argonne National Laboratory in that city. This laboratory is operated by the university with funds supplied by the AEC. Its employes are private not Federal workers.

An AEC spokesman said that UPW had not asked to be recognized as the bargaining agent for the laboratory. However, he said that UPW has been trying to organize the scientific, technical and service employes there since last November when CIO's United Office and Professional Workers pulled out in its favor.

In his letter to William B. Harrell, business manager of the University of Chicago, Lilienthal wrote in part:

". . . Information is available concerning alleged Communist affiliation or association of certain officers of this union (UPW). It appears that some of these officers are in a position where they exercise administrative negotiating or disciplinary authority over the local of this union that has been active among employes at Argonne."

He goes on to say that this information, together with the failure of UPW officers to file anti-Communist affidavits, presents a serious security question which must be decided in favor of the Government.

Since the UPW was exposed as a union that follows the twists and turns of the Communist Party line it has lost many of its Federal worker members. In fact, the CIO

U. N. Council Given Big 3 Complaint On Berlin

Western Powers' Charges Against Russia Due for Action Next Week

Paris, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—The United States, Britain and France complained formally to the United Nations Security Council today that Russia has created "a threat to the peace" by blockading Berlin.

The three Western Allies delivered separate notes to U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie at 4:30 p. m., asking consideration by the Security Council "at the earliest opportunity," of Russia's action.

It was expected the Council would take up the complaint Monday afternoon or Tuesday.

Outline of Notes

In their notes, which were identical, the Western Allies said:

1. A "serious situation" has arisen because of Russia's imposition of "restrictions on transport and communication between the western zones of occupation in Germany and Berlin."

2. Russia has violated Article 2 of the U. N. Charter, which requires members to fulfill their obligations in good faith.

3. Russia's action has created "a threat to the peace" under Chapter VII of the Charter, which calls for "action with respect to threats to the peace, breaches of the peace, and acts of aggression."

4. The Western Allies, "conscious of their obligations . . . to settle their disputes by peaceful means, have made every effort to resolve their difference directly with the Soviet government."

The Allies cited their note to Russia last Sunday, accusing Russia of threatening Berliners with starvation, disease and economic ruin, and with attempting to overthrow the local administration of the city. They quoted from the note that Russia alone is responsible for a situation which is a "threat to international peace and security."

They quoted further their admonition to Russia that they reserve the right to take "such measures as may be necessary" to maintain their position in Berlin.

Attached to the note were 11 annexes. All but one had been made public before. The new one is a report made on September 7 by the American, British and French commanders-in-chief on their negotiations with Russian Commandant Marshal Vassily D. Sokolovsky.

This report disclosed that the Western commanders believed Sokolovsky was making concessions and that it might be possible to work out a solution with him.

However, Sokolovsky had demanded Russian control of aerial traffic to Berlin and when the Soviet government made this of-

Wallace Target Of Texas Eggs And Tomatoes

State's Indifference Jolted by Barrage At Houston Meeting

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Houston, Tex., Sept. 29.—Henry Wallace, after two serene days in Texas, was the target for a barrage of eggs and tomatoes here tonight.

The missiles were fired at him as he walked onto the stage of the Houston City Auditorium.

Police—there were 40 of them on the scene—arrested one burly fellow just as he loosed an egg at the Iowan.

[The Associated Press reported that a man who said he is John Staskiel, a sailor from Pennsylvania, was escorted from the hall by police and admitted he had thrown all the missiles.—Editor's Note.]

An egg hit the microphone in front of Wallace and he was splattered by a tomato. He turned a bit pale at first, then grinned, and began his speech while the auditorium rang with boos.

Wallace had been treated with indifference in Dallas yesterday and for most of today in Houston, and the outburst evidently surprised him. The cries that came from his hecklers were the same as he heard in North Carolina and Alabama a month or so ago: "Go back to Russia;" and "How's Joe Stalin?"

Pities Marksmen

The candidate recalled these earlier experiences in tonight's speech, saying:

"I pity the people who threw missiles at us. I think they were mostly just irresponsible youngsters, with no real hatred in their hearts for us. If they do hate us, I pity them even more. For they are the victims of this vicious social cancer, of race hatred."

Wallace and Paul Robeson, the great Negro singer, attracted a crowd of 3500 to Houston's City Auditorium. Whites and Negroes sat together and no effort was made to segregate them.

The total "take"—box office receipts and contributions — was $8200.

Indians Near Flag; Heath Breaks Ankle

On the threshold of its first American League pennant in 28 years, Cleveland inched a bit closer yesterday by smacking down the Chicago White Sox.

Bobby Feller's 5-to-2 triumph, while the Yankees were beating Philadelphia, 4 to 2, and the Red Sox were whipping Washington, 5 to 1, meant the Indians could lose two of their three remaining games and still tie for the pennant. If they win two of the three they are in regardless of what the Yankees and Red Sox do. And the Yankees and the Red Sox play their last two against one another.

As the Indians moved to the brink of the World Series, disaster struck the National League representatives, the Boston Braves. Playing in a game which meant nothing so far as the pennant was concerned, Outfielder Jeff Heath, one of the big siege guns of the team, broke his ankle and will be out of the series.

Feller, winning his nineteenth game of the season and his seventh in a row, pitched masterfully but needed the help of Joe Gordon and Ken Keltner.

The White Sox touched Feller for two runs in the second inning and that lead stood up until Gordon came to bat in the bottom of the sixth with a man on base. He slammed a fat pitch by Frank Papish for his thirty-second home run of the season and it tied the score.

The Yankees and Red Sox kept their flickering pennant hopes alive.

The Red Sox won behind the pitching of Ellis Kinder, who allowed 11 hits, but bore down in the pinches. A three-run home run by rookie Hank Bauer in the sixth inning gave the Yankees their victory. Relief Pitchers Joe Page and Allie Reynolds went in in the ninth inning to turn back a last-minute Philadelphia bid for victory.

Court Acquits Defendants in Brass Rail Case

Perjuries Compel Directed Verdict, Schweinhaut Says

By Howard Dutkin
Post Reporter

District Court Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut yesterday reluctantly directed the acquittal of both defendants in the notorious Brass Rail shooting case.

The judge declared: "I suspect that the action I now take will result in a miscarriage of justice, but I have no alternative."

He prefaced his decision with the flat assertion that "perjury has been committed beyond question in this courtroom during this trial. . . . The whole affair is malodorous."

Then after declaring he had no choice, Schweinhaut directed that the defendants, Henry M. (Piggy) Leake and Charles H. Nelson, night manager of the Brass Rail, charged with shooting each other, be acquitted.

Evidence Often Contradictory

The action ended the 7-day jury trial during which witnesses showed lapses of memory, gave testimony in direct contradiction to their testimony before the special grand jury investigating gambling, and on two occasions forced Prosecutor Charles Murray into announcing "surprise."

Boiled down, the trial produced only two witnesses who would admit to having seen the shooting—and both were discredited by previously having given conflicting testimony to the grand jury or to Murray.

Schweinhaut explained his decision as follows:

"The Government in its opening statement said it expected to prove Leake's motive to be that his lucrative numbers business had been cut into by Roger Simkins (husband of the Brass Rail owner) and Leake had gone to the Brass Rail

Deputy Arrests Motorist, Then He Has to Pay

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 29 (AP).—Deputy Sheriff Robert Miller put a $2.45 pinch on Motorist Chester Smith on a traffic charge—but Miller was the fellow who had to pay.

The Washington County deputy was taking Smith to jail to post collateral. Once there, Smith gleefully swore out a warrant against Miller. The deputy sheriff, noted Smith, had driven the wrong way on a one-way street while taking him to the lockup.

City officers promptly arrested Miller, who posted—and forfeited—$2.45 collateral.

War Decision Up to 'Despots,' Royall Says

Timing Only, Not Ultimate Purpose, Is Unknown, He Asserts

St. Louis, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall warned tonight that "a few despotic and powerful men hold the determination of a new war.

"And it is the timing only, and not the ultimate purpose of these men that is uncertain," Royall told the National Guard Association here.

He said, however, that in his "humble opinion, war is not imminent."

Royall said there was nothing to be gained by criticism of past Administration policies toward Soviet Russia by "second-sighters." In an obvious reference to the presidential campaign, he added:

"If these men of influence who criticize the past really want to help, let them make realistic suggestions—and on the record—suggestions about the present and the future."

Royall said leaders of the USSR have told us "time and again" that their purpose is to establish a world empire by force and revolution.

By fraud and "sneeringly camouflaged force and oppression," he said, the "dark shadow" of communism has spread over Europe. Emboldened by these successes, Royall asserted, the Communist hierarchy sought to apply "pressure tactics" to America through the Berlin blockade.

He said Russian excuses for the blockade found support neither in sincerity nor simple truth."

The recent four-power talks in Moscow, Royall said, served only as an excuse for the Russians to seek to blockade the airlift. If the Soviet proposals resulting from the talks had been accepted they could have "forced us out of Berlin in a matter of weeks."

He said these tactics have not succeeded "this time," but they have brought about a danger to peace of the world with the result that the matter has been placed before the United Nations.

"We have announced our determination in the meantime to stay in Berlin," Royall said. "And this we intend to do."

Barring "some accidental or unintentional occurrence, I do not envision a war in the near future," Royall said.

Thomas Protests Effort to Thwart Pursuit of Facts

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The House Un-American Activities Committee report of its atomic energy investigations brought two rounds of name-calling between Republican and Democratic leaders yesterday.

In its report, issued Monday, the committee had demanded that Attorney General Tom Clark bring criminal action against four persons accused of revealing atomic energy secrets.

Yesterday's score was:

1. The Justice Department accused the committee of indulging in "political gymnastics." It added that it will not "institute prosecutions to justify publicity seekers." It denied that sufficient evidence has been uncovered to obtain espionage indictments against the four.

2. Committee Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.) made public a letter he sent to President Truman, in reply to Mr. Truman's speech in Oklahoma City Tuesday night. The President had accused the Republican-controlled committee of trying to cash in on the work of Government investigators and endeavoring to take over the functions of grand juries and Federal courts.

Thomas charged the President and Clark with attempting "to obstruct and thwart our pursuit of the facts."

"I do not intend to be deterred or intimidated by personal attacks upon me by the President of the United States or by political-serving announcements by the Attorney General," Thomas wrote. "I shall continue to expose the participants in the Communist conspiracy whether they be Government employes, scientists, diplomats, labor leaders or movie stars."

In its communication to the committee, the Justice Department said:

"There is absolutely no competent proof here, so far as appears from the report and excerpts of testimony quoted therein, of the actual or attempted communica-

Bristol, England, Sept. 29 (AP).—Elizabeth, Frances, Bridget and Jennifer—3½-month-old Bristol quadruplets—were christened today, but Elizabeth nearly got Bridget's name, and vice versa.

During hymn singing, there was a huddle, after which Elizabeth and Bridget were shifted from one nurse to the other. Everybody got the right name.

The quads were born prematurely June 12 by means of a Caesarian operation.

How Would Texas Vote Today?

Texas, another Democratic stronghold during the Roosevelt era, is the subject of the Gallup Poll's election preview for Friday.

Learn how they would cast their ballots right now. It's another revealing tally on the Gallup political scoreboard, exclusively in Friday's Washington Post.

Dewey Guns For Montana Sen. Murray

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Great Falls, Mont., Sept. 29.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's Senate head-hunters discovered something rare and wonderful today.

In Montana's remote mountains they found an original New Dealer, alive and kicking. The Governor called up his gunbearers and spent a second day in Montana hunting down the almost extinct species.

But Senator James E. Murray, one of the last 100 per centers in the Senate, seldom got within telescope range. At Great Falls, Dewey turned over his big guns to Butte Lawyer Tom Davis, who reportedly can draw a fine bead.

Murray's Montana Senate seat is by far the most shaky of any in the three Democratic States Dewey has entered, Republicans feel, and rate this their best chance to displace a Senate Democrat.

Local polls show Davis running fractionally ahead of Murray, but it's an awfully close race. The two-day Dewey cruise of Montana is designed to seal the lead for Davis and deliver what the GOP already thinks is a Dewey State.

A straw poll by the Lewiston Daily News rates presidential and Senate prospects in this State as follows:

President: Dewey 53.6 per cent; Truman 40.9 per cent; Wallace 5.5 per cent.

Senate: Davis 51.8 per cent; Murray 48.2 per cent.

White House Architect Plans To Replace Entire 2d Floor

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The White House architect said yesterday he is preparing plans to replace the entire second floor of the Executive Mansion.

These plans, when put into effect, will force the President to move his family out of the 132-year-old mansion for about a year.

Architect Lorenzo Winslow said he expects to ask Congress next January for enough money for the work. The second floor at present creaks and sags, and is making the whole building a shaky old firetrap.

It started getting that way back in 1892, during the Administration of Benjamin Harrison, when the first bathrooms were put in.

In order to install the plumbing, holes had to be cut in the hand-hewn wood joists which support the second floor. Ever since then, those joists have been cracking and splitting. These "structural nerves," as Architect Winslow calls them, are in such a bad way by now that last January steel hangers were installed to keep the floor in place.

The second floor is occupied by the President's family. Winslow wants to take the present floor out entirely, and in its place lay a concrete-steel floor with fireproof partitions. At the same time, all wood partitions on the second floor would be replaced with fireproof partitions.

This work would take time—probably in the neighborhood of a year, Winslow said. It would cost anywhere from $750,000 to $1,250,000, more or less.

Winslow is waiting for a report from engineers of the Public Buildings Administration on how much of an emergency the work is. The report expected within a month, will be the basis for Winslow's plea for a congressional appropriation.

The White House architect emphasized that he doesn't expect the White House to "fall in." "It probably is good for another 25 years without any repairs at all," he said "but the work ought to be done on the second floor."

When it is done, the White House will be restored exactly as it is now. The needed construction is simply a precaution against fire or eventual collapse.

Winslow said it was "anybody's guess" where the President's fam-

Boy, 12, Lies in Plane Wreck 2 Days Beside Dead Mother

Fort Nelson, B. C., Sept. 29 (U.P.).—A 12-year-old boy was found alive today beside the body of his mother in the wreckage of a two-seater Stinson plane 45 miles west of here, Royal Canadian Air Force officials announced.

The RCAF ground party from here reached the wreckage after plowing its way through 4-inch snow.

The party found Mike Lintner trapped in the wreckage beside his mother, Mrs. A. L. Lintner, who was killed when the plane crashed upside down Monday night during a snow storm. The accident occurred en route from Watson Lake, Y. T., to Fort Nelson.

The pair were flying from Anchorage, Alaska, to Washington, D. C., where Mike was to have entered school.

[Mrs. Lintner had planned to enter her son in Georgetown Preparatory School, in Washington. She then was to have joined her husband for a flight to the Orient, the Associated Press said.]

The boy had been 36 hours without food or water.

[The Associated Press said Mike was critically injured, suffering a compound skull fracture, broken right arm and frozen feet.]

He was flown to an Edmonton, Alberta, hospital after Dr. R. J. Northover, superintendent of the local hospital, treated him here.

Dr. Northover said Mike "didn't mention anything about the plane crash but said it was 'mighty cold up there.' He was pretty hungry."

Pope Warns 'Modern' Girls Confidence Perils Virtue

Rome, Sept. 29 (NYHT).—Pope Pius XII condemned the "modern" girl in an address to 200 representatives of the International Catholic Association of Works for the Protection of the Young Woman yesterday.

The Pontiff said the twentieth century girl thinks she knows the ways of the world and rates herself "superior to the girl of past generations."

"She (the modern girl) thinks she can read everything, see everything, try everything, taste everything with impunity . . . she is disarmed before the peril," Pope Pius said.

He declared the association can no longer limit itself to caring for "one poor innocent girl in a hundred who is misled while the 99 others . . . stay in the shelter of the fold." The problem is now to care for the whole "flock," he said.

The "modern" girl spurns the conservative upbringing of former years, the Pontiff said "on the pretext that in the past the young girl who was strictly brought up . . . ran the risk of becoming a victim of surprise on her first contact with the world and with liberty."

The girl of today deludes herself that modern education and standards of behavior will make her "strong . . . immune and alert on the defense and in repartee," the pontiff said. "She mistakes for personality and vigor what is at bottom only offhandedness, imprudence or even effrontery."

Dave Lilienthal, 'Real American,' Learned To Roll With the Punch, Come Up Fighting

A professional pug, the Tacoma Tiger, taught Dave Lilienthal the skillful art of rolling with a punch to the jaw so as to take the sting out of the blow.

"He damn near killed me in the process," Lilienthal once told a friend, "but he taught me something about coming off the floor and taking more."

DAVID LILIENTHAL
He likes bow ties

The training has served Dave in good stead . . . as a young attorney battling the public utilities . . . as a member of the Tennessee Valley Authority . . . and most recently, as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Opposed Willkie

His major fights have been over questions of great principle: How best to make democracy work. So as TVA director and advocate of cheap public power, he fought with the late Wendell Willkie, champion of privately owned and operated power. So as TVA director and opponent of mixing politics with public power, he fought with Senator Kenneth D. McKellar (D., Tenn.), long a leading pork-barrel spoilsman in Congress.

Last year, after 15 years of exemplary public service with TVA—which brought cheap power, prosperity, and safety from flood to a large part of the Tennessee Valley—Lilienthal was nominated to the newly formed civilian Atomic Energy Commission. McKellar was still in there throwing punches. He suggested that Lilienthal was a follower of the Communist Party line.

Rose to Challenge

Lilienthal's usually placid face flushed with fervor as he wheeled to face his harasser. In a low but clear voice Lilienthal declared that democracy, American democracy, centered on the "integrity of the individual," and for five minutes he outlined what democracy meant to him. Breathless silence followed Lilienthal's passionate outburst before the Senate committee. Then Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) exclaimed: "That was the statement of a very real American."

The TVA was a vast project, involving thousands of persons and millions in money. Running it, though, was a peanut-size job compared to heading up the Atomic Energy Commission, involving millions of people and billions of dollars.

A thoughtful optimist, Lilienthal looks to atomic power not as an instrument of war—even though the atomic bomb hangs over the world like Damocles' sword—but as a means of securing world peace and prosperity.

Here's His Portrait

The AEC chairman is, appropriately, a packet of inexhaustible energy. You sense it on meeting the 6-footish, rather bald, friendly, smiling Illinois-born administrator for the first time. At 49, his step is springy, his frame athletic, and his stomach flat. He has a penchant for bright bow ties and suspenders.

Dave Lilienthal hates to lose precious minutes. Before he leaves for a trip, he tucks into his briefcase a timetable detailing activity for every minute of the journey.

He's often "home with a cold." It's a most peculiar kind of a cold. It always happens that the cold lasts as long as it takes Dave to write his simply-expressed speeches.

Lilienthal quit smoking some years back. He was then engaged in a long series of power negotiations with Willkie. The two protagonists agreed they were smoking too much, and decided then and there to quit.

In his Constitution ave. office, the AEC chairman is usually seen with jacket off, sleeves rolled up. He designed his own desk, a kidney-shaped affair without drawers. He believes that a drawer is nothing more than a wastebasket with a conscience.

Dave married his DePauw University sweetheart. They live in a little white house outside Rockville. They've two grown children, Nancy and David jr.

Friends say they're a happy family, one in which the children have always been treated as equals in the family councils. Once, though, when the discussion got out of hand, the Senior Lilienthal gave up the argument of pure logic and gently exclaimed:

"You know, Nancy, I'm old enough to be your father."

N. Y. CIO Unit Faces Hearing On Banishment

By the United Press

CIO President Philip Murray yesterday appointed three right-wing union presidents to conduct hearings here October 14 on proposed revocation of the greater New York City CIO Council's charter.

The presidents are O. A. Knight, Fort Worth, Tex., of the oil workers; Joseph Froesch, Columbus, Ohio, of the glass workers, and Martin Wagner, Washington, D. C., of the gas, coke and chemical workers.

All three are members of the CIO executive board which will act on their findings and probably make recommendations to the CIO convention at Portland, Oreg., in November.

Murray asked President James Durkin, Secretary-Treasurer Saul Mills, and Vice Presidents Sam Burt, Ewart Guiner, Paul Palazzi, Aaron Schneider, Kenneth Sherbell, and Ruth Young of the New York Council to testify.

A committee from the New York State CIO Council and representatives of three CIO unions have charged that the New York City Council has violated the CIO constitution by supporting Communist activities. They demanded that the city council's charter be revoked.

'Eye on Elections'

"The department prosecutes crime by the grand jury system through our courts and not by politically - minded congressional committees with one eye on publicity and the other on election results.

"The committee report . . . creates a most dangerous precedent in that it attempts to dictate to the Department of Justice what cases it will or will not prosecute. The enforcement of our Federal statutes is a function of the Department of Justice. It is not a function of a committee of Congress."

In his letter to President Truman, Thomas said his committee "has been striving diligently to unearth the facts of the Communist conspiracy in the United States and its infiltration into the Government service . . . because your Administration has failed to keep the people informed about this dangerous situation which now belatedly is being recognized for what it really is.

"The evidence of Communist espionage was laid on your desk more than three years ago," he continued. "Since that time can you recall one action that has been taken to punish those guilty of spying in the United States?

"Where and when has your Attorney General prosecuted in public courts a single agent of the Russian espionage ring? The evidence has been gathered diligently by the FBI for many years. Why has it been allowed to gather dust in their files?"

UE Held Biggest Union Under Reds

2,000,000 Members, Kin at Mercy of Alien Communist, Prober Says

The CIO United Electrical Workers, with between 600,000 and 700,000 members was described yesterday by a former congressional investigator, as "the largest Communist-dominated organization in the American Labor movement."

Dr. J. B. Matthews, a former research specialist for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, told a House Labor Subcommittee that "this vast segment of American labor, together with their dependents, make up a group of some two million persons."

"Incredible as it may seem," he testified, "they are to a great extent at the mercy of a Hungarian-born, alien Communist."

Aided by 450 Party Liners

He said that man is James Matles, UE director of organization. "Assisting Matles in this Communist control," he declared, "are roughly 450 Communist Party members or ardent fellow-travelers."

Mathews gave the Labor Committee a report on 105 persons who he said were Communists or fellow-travelers, with brief reviews of their activities to support his charges. All, he said, had been active in affairs of the UE.

Among those were three of the four top officials of UE, who, Mathews asserted have strong Communist ties. These he identified as Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer; Matles, and Russell Nixon, Washington representative of the union.

Mathews also declared that union president, Albert J. Fitzgerald, is a "willing stooge" of the three.

Preceding Mathews on the stand were two of these, Emspak and Nixon. Both declined to say whether they are or have been Communists. Matles had refused to answer that question Tuesday.

Calls Question "Intrusion"

Not only did Emspak decline to answer any questions about his Communist ties; he also refused on constitutional grounds to answer a direct question whether he was present at the Communist Party's "purge trial" in 1945 when Earl Browder was ousted as head of the American Communists.

"Because of the character of the question, bearing on my personal associations, I will not answer," he replied. "I feel it is an intrusion on my personal life."

Browder was deposed as Communist leader after being accused of departing from the Moscow-directed party line. Emspak recalled reading in the newspapers about Browder's troubles, he said.

Chairman Charles J. Kersten (R., Wis.) of the subcommittee, then asked Emspak if he had been introduced at the Browder trial as "Comrade Juniper." He again refused to answer. He had been identified on Tuesday by a witness, James J. Conroy, as the mysterious "Comrade Juniper." Conroy had admitted that he had once been a Communist.

JULIUS EMSPAK
Refuses answer

Emspak had first been asked if he was a Communist Tuesday. At that time he declined to answer, because his attorney, David Scribner, was not present. Scribner had been ordered out of the hearings by Chairman Kersten, on grounds he had been prompting the witness.

Yesterday Scribner was present when the question was put. Although he whispered several times to witnesses, he was permitted to remain at the counsel table.

Emspak also refused to say whether he knows Louis Budenz, former editor of the Communist Daily Worker, who left the Communist Party to rejoin the Catholic Church and is now on the faculty of Fordham University.

When Kersten asked if the UE would support the United States in a war with Russia, he declared:

"Our union will do its share in defense of this country as it has in the past. But our union does not join in the present hysteria as though war already exists.

"Our job, as we seeit, is to do everything we can to prevent war."

Kersten had earlier predicted that when the rank and file of union members become fully aware of communistic influences in their organizations they will rebel against them."

After Emspak the committee called Nixon. Nixon, a Ph. D., identified himself as a former professor at Harvard. Nixon was asked if he recalled the recent testimony of James Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, that the UE is largely a Communist front.

"I recall that lie," Nixon answered. "I do not agree with that lying statement."

The witness then said he did not agree with William Green, president of the AFL; Philip Murray, president, of CIO, or John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, that communism is inimicable to the labor movement.

Nixon Won't Answer

Kersten then asked him, "Are you now or were you ever a member of the Communist Party?"

Nixon said he would answer the question "only within the framework of the attack on civil liberties in this country."

When Kersten demanded a yes or no answer, and wouldn't permit Nixon to make a speech—which he said would only be a few paragraphs—Nixon pleaded constitutional privilege and refused to answer.

The subcommittee recessed shortly after noon. Today it will resume hearings in Schenectady, N. Y., where the General Electric Co. operates private plants as well as a Government-owned atomic laboratory.

Chairman Kersten indicated plans to go to Schenectady were made before the Atomic Energy Commission blacklisted the UE from representing employes of the GE-operated atomic laboratory.

AEC Blacklists 2 CIO Unions

high command has encouraged the new anti-Communist union, the Government Workers Union, to organize Federal employes.

In New York, Larry Kammet, UPW public relations officer, said the union has no Atomic Energy employes as members "and we don't want them." He said the CIO's Chemical Workers has jurisdiction over them. This is the way Kammet explained the UPW interest in the Chicago laboratory employes:

"Some seven months ago a group of employes in thfe Argonne Laboratory in the University of Chicago applied for membership in a local of our union in Chicago.

"When the national officers learned about this, we informed the local that we had no jurisdiction over these people and that we did not want them in our union, nor did we want to engage in any jurisdictional problems with another CIO union, namely the Chemical Workers. We thereupon ordered our local in Chicago to suspend these employes from membership and to urge that these employes transfer their union affiliation to the Chemical Workers. We have no idea what happened to them after that."

As to the electrical workers, the AEC ordered the General Electric Co. not to recognize the CIO union at the new Knolls 11 Atomic Power Laboratory in Schenectady, N. Y. Similar reasons were given by Chairman Lilienthal for the commission action.

However, a General Electric spokesman informed the commission that its latest move to assure loyalty of workers on its projects is not adequate. L. R. Boulware, GE vice president, said the company would "comply fully" with the AEC order. He made this comment:

"It is unfortunately still perfectly legal for a union member, or a union officer, to be a Communist even though he has perhaps taken an oath to 'work for the overthrow of the United States Government by force and violence.'"

Lilienthal wrote Chairman Paul M. Herzog of the National Labor Relations Board lifting the restrictions on labor-management procedure which had been in effect at all but the Oak Ridge project. Now the board will treat unions at atomic plants just the same as in other industries, although the AEC asked that there be "discussion" of what material could be made public in connection with elections and other developments.

Even that request may be withdrawn as time goes on, Lilenthal told Herzog. The commission explained that the reason for the move was that experience at Oak Ridge, Tenn., had shown that security was not jeopardized by permitting elections among the workers, and handling disputes and grievances as in other civilian plants.

Red Fighters Dive Near Airlift Planes

Berlin, Sept. 29 (AP).—Nine Soviet Yak fighters made simulated diving attacks on two American coal planes on the Berlin haul today.

American authorities said five Soviet fighters buzzed within 100 feet of one of the C-54 Skymasters in the Berlin-Hamburg corridor. Four fighters dived at the other Skymaster.

A strong written protest was sent to the Russians. It demanded "immediate and direct action" to make Russian fliers obey flight rules before a "serious incident" occurs.

The protest cited several other recent cases of "reckless" Soviet flying and complained that repeated oral protests "have been of no avail."

[The United Press said the American-licensed Dena news agency reported Russia has ordered German plants in the Soviet zone to fill rush orders for Soviet rearmament, with the emphasis on jet engines, turbines and other components of modern aircraft.

[The agency, said the Monitor Works at Gotha were turning out a Soviet jet fighter known as the Schuk-17 at assembly line speed.

[It said the Dessauer plant of the huge Bramag Electrical Works has been reconverted to produce jet engines, that aircraft tires were being made by the Buna Rubber Works in Schkopau and small arms were being produced by the Walther Works at Suhr, Thuringia, state.]

Twenty-five German workers, part of a new shipment of laborers reported en route to Russian-operated uranium mines, escaped when their labor train halted in the British sector.

Soviet View

U. N. Appeal Futile, Says New Times

By Thomas P. Whitney

Moscow, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Soviet weekly New Times declared today the Western powers' appeal of the Berlin case to the U. N. Security Council would be unsuccessful.

An editorial declared a "thought out and organized" campaign around the Berlin issue was being used for the "further ignition of war hysteria leading the war psychosis to high temperature."

It added that this campaign was "openly directed" by United States Secretary of State Marshall and British Foreign Secretary Bevin and "it is not even necessary to talk about some invisible director's baton."

New Times stated that the Western powers "have reaped what they themselves sowed" when they took successive steps to set up a "separate Western German government." This "exploded the legal basis which assured them of the right of participation in the Berlin administration," it explained.

The journal said the break-up of direct negotiations with Moscow on the question was timed ahead for the meeting of the United Nations in Paris.

New Times said there was no disagreement that could not have been overcome in further conversations had there been the will.

Russia to Remain In U. N., Moscow Implies

London, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Moscow Radio said tonight that "there is no doubt but that the forces of progress and democracy will turn a deaf ear to those who try to sing the funeral march of the United Nations."

The Soviet Union " marches" in the vanguard of the "forces," it was added.

This apparent implication that Russia does not intend to leave the U. N. as the result of the Allied complaint against her blockade of Berlin was contained in an English commentary.

U. S. Renews Ship Demand

Undersecretary of State Lovett said yesterday the United States has renewed its demand for early return of several ships sent to Russia under the wartime lend-lease program.

The vessels are three ice breakers, 28 frigates and some smaller naval craft.

Lovett told a news conference the demand was contained in a new note several weeks ago calling for resumption of negotiations to settle Russia's long overdue 11-billion-dollar lend-lease account.

He said the United States wants the Soviets to return the naval ships without waiting for the conclusion of those talks.

The Soviets have ignored several earlier American requests for the naval ships, part of a total of 585 supplied Russia under lend-lease.

In reply to questions, Lovett said there are a number of steps this country can take to force Russia to give back the vessels. He would not indicate what these actions might be.

Dulles Scores Abuse of U. N. Veto Power

Paries, Sept. 29 (NYHT).—John Foster Dulles, member of the American delegation to the United Nations, said tonight the United States would agree to eliminate the veto in certain U. N. matters.

"The United States is ready to accept the elimination of the unanimity requirement with respect to matters arising under chapter VI [peaceful settlement of disputes] and such matters as applications for membership," Dulles told the Paris chapter of the Carnegie Endowmen for International Peace.

Dulles, adviser on foreign affairs to Thomas E. Dewey, said abuse of the veto, rather than lack of a military force, most weakened the authority of the Security Council.

"There is little reason to give a veto power with respect to efforts to bring about the peaceful settlement of disputes," Dulles said. "This is the Security Council's field of greatest usefulness and veto frustrates these great possibilities.

Concerning political decisions to be backed by economic sanctions or the use of military force, however, Dulles said there is "a good reason why, at the present time, the voting should reflect public support that is world-wide." He added:

"The reason is that the Security Council is not an enforcer of agreed law. There is as yet no body of international law that clearly covers the many international problems which present themselves."

Dulles said he disagreed with those who felt the Berlin crisis should not have been placed before the U. N. at the risk of disrupting the organization.

ficial, the East-West split became final.

The Allied notes were signed by the respective chief delegates to the U. N., Warren R. Austin, United States; Cadogan, Britain, and Alexandre Parodi, France.

The notes made no suggestions either on the way the Council should handle the dispute or means it might take to end the crisis.

Opening debate in the U. N. Assembly ended after speeches by Eduard Kardelj, Yugoslavia, and Dmitri Manuilsky, Ukraine.

Despite the split between Yugoslav Marshal Tito and the Moscow-directed Cominform, Kardelj went out of his way to praise Russia and communism and to denounce the Western Allies, especially the United States.

Manuilsky accused the United States of maintaining 489 military bases from which to dominate the world.

Big 3 Stand Contrast To Munich Appeasement

Paris, Sept. 29 (AP).—Footnote to history:

September 29, 1938.—Britain, France, Italy and Germany sign the Munich Pact, appeasing Hitler by the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia and paving the way for World War II.

September 29, 1948.—Britain, France and the United States, rejecting appeasement of Russia, place German crisis before United Nations as a threat of World War III.

Russia, Britain Argue in U. N. On Communism, Colonialism

Paris, Sept. 29 (AP).—Britain and Russia fought a wordy war here today over the relative merits of communism and colonialism.

The issue overshadowed approval by the United Nations Social Commitee of an international treaty to control narcotics traffic.

Basis of the argument was a "colonial clause," which Russia sought to knock out of the treaty by amendment. The amendment was defeated 25 to 17, with 11 abstentions, but not before many Latin American delegations and others voiced support for the Russians.

The clause gives colonial peoples the right to approve the treaty independently.

Russian delegate Alexei Pavlov launched into a long defense of the Soviet system.

"We consider," he said, that the dependent status is only temporary—only a step towards independence and self-government."

British Delegate Christopher Mayhew explained "it is a constitutional fact that the United Kingdom has no power to impose treaties on its territories."

The committee approved the treaty unanimously, subject to the Soviet bloc's reservations on the colonial clause.

Atom Gets Top Priority on U. N. Agenda

By John G. Rogers

Paris, Sept. 29 ((NYHT).—The political committee of the United Nations General Assembly placed the problem of atomic energy control at the top of its agenda today, after Britain and the United States lost a fight to give top priority to the Palestine question.

Both Jews and Arabs were pleased over the vote that defeated priority for Palestine because neither side likes the Bernadotte report. The Jews were especially pleased because they believed the Americans and British want to force through an over-fast Palestine settlement.

The first six agenda items, as adopted, were atomic energy, Russian disarmament proposals, Palestine, Greece, Korea and the disposition of the Italian colonies

A combination of Arab and Latin-American votes defeated priority for Palestine. The vote was 21 against to 16 in favor, with 14 abstentions.

The Russian delegation sought to place its disarmament proposals at the head of the agenda, but were defeated, 36 to 9.

The order of items was settled by the committee chairman—Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian Premier.

Jerusalem Governor Challenges Bunche

Jerusalem, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Israeli military governor of Jerusalem, Dr. Bernard Joseph, challenged today Dr. Ralph Bunche's report blaming Jewish negligence for the assassination of Count Folke Bernadotte.

Bunche, acting United Nations mediator, accused Jewish authorities in his report to the U. N. of negligence in failing to take adequate precautions for the safety of Bernadotte.

Joseph stated that U. N. observers always insisted upon freedom of movement during inspections and refused to accept Jewish military escorts.

Jerusalem was quiet except for two air alerts, quickly followed by all-clears during the night.

London Hears Montgomery To Head New West Command

London, (Thursday), Sept. 30 (AP).—London newspapers reported in banner headlines today that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery would head up the new five-power western military command.

The reports could not be confirmed officially. The military forces of Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg are involved.

The newspaper stories said the chiefs of combined armies, navies and air forces under Montgomery probably would be:

Gen. Alphonse Juin, French commander-in-chief in North Africa, as land command: Admiral of British Fleet Lord Cunningham as head of the joint naval units, and Marshal of the RAF Lord Tedder as chief of the air forces.

The Daily Mail said Montgomery would resign soon as chief of the British imperial staff to take over the new assignment.

The defense ministers of the five countries concluded a two-day secret meeting in Paris yesterday and decided to establish the permanent international command to prepare for defense.

British-Slav Pact On Trade Expected

London, Sept. 29 (AP).—Britain and Yugoslavia are near agreement on a short-term trade pact for 1949, a reliable source said today.

Britain already has a short term trade pact with the Soviet Union and is negotiating with the Russians for a long range pact.

Yugoslavia has been pinched economically as the result of her schism over Communist doctrine with the other eastern Cominform countries, but present negotiations began before that development.

In Geneva, economic experts said the Cominform struggle spurred Yugoslavia's desire for more trade contacts with the West. They said she is also pursuing an economic accord with Belgium that may be signed soon. She concluded a five-year trade pact with Switzerland yesterday.

The British source said any agreement reached with Yugoslavia would not become effective until the two nations settle their long-standing dispute over Britain's 12-million-pound (48 million dollars) claim for compensation for British properties confiscated by Yugoslavia after the war. Yugoslavia's last offer for settlement of these claims was two million pounds.

GAR Meets Last Time Next Year

GEN. THEODORE PENLAND
Takes command at 99

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 29 (AP).—Six of only 28 aged survivors of the Grand Army of the Republic today elected 99-year-old Theodore A. Penland of Portland, Oreg., to steer the GAR through its final year as an active organization.

For their last encampment next year they chose Indianapolis, where the first gathering was held in 1866.

For senior vice commander the Civil War veterans picked John H. Grate, 103, of Atwater, Ohio. The new junior vice commander is William H. Osborn, 104, of Joblin, Mo.

Robert M. Rownd of Ripley, N. Y., the GAR's only two-time commander in chief, was given the honorary post of chaplain-in-chief. Illness forced him to miss this meeting.

Charles L. Chappel of Long Beach, Calif., was chosen to succeed Osborn as patriotic instructor. National Chief of Staff Albert Woolson of Duluth, Minn., and Adjutant and Quartermaster General John C. Adams of Jonesboro, Ind., both were reappointed.

Greek Rebels Kill, Kidnap In City Raid

Athens, Greece, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Guerilla infantry, cavalry and sabotage squads raided the north Greek city of Larissa last night in the biggest and boldest rebel attack in more than three years, the government announced today.

Greek press reports said that at least five persons were killed and "scores" kidnaped in the "hour-and-a-half reign of terror" in the northern city, site of several American civil and military headquarters.

A government communique based on still incomplete official reports said that about 500 guerillas, supported by cavalry, attacked the city from east and west at about 10 o'clock last night.

Saboteurs Enter City

As home guards massed to meet the attack, teams of 15 saboteurs each slipped into the city and tried to blow up the waterworks and other installations, the communique said.

Larissa, a city of 50,000 people, is about 135 miles northwest of here.

Rebel activity was on the increase throughout the country. The American military aid group held up construction of the Athens-Kalamata hwy., due to growing guerilla activity near the capital. Another major construction project was suspended in northern Greece, and a third, in central Greece, may have to be postponed.

The government's firing squads and courts continued busy. Eleven Communists were executed today in Florina and Lamia and 11 others—both men and women—were sentenced to death in Salonika.

Six Macedonians to Die

In Edessa, a court sentenced six Macedonian "Nationalists" to die.

The new Greek budget, published today, showed anticipated revenues of 275 million dollars and expenditures of 345 million dollars. American aid for the coming year, set at 50 million dollars, will make up most of the government's 70-million-dollar deficit.

2 Czechs Get Death as Spies

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Two Czechoslovak army sergeants have been sentenced to hang for spying for an unidentified Western power, a government communique said today.

The communique said the Prague supreme military court found Sergts. Vladimir Cepelka and Solovjev guilty of furnishing economic, political and military information to a Western embassy from September, 1947, until their arrest last May.

The men allegedly were told after the February Communist coup to establish a "sabotage network," secure arms and ammunition and "prepare to work with new methods," for the Western power.

An unnamed high Western army officer, no longer in Prague, was said to have been the "head of this espionage service."

The communique said both men confessed.

Pacific Island Fishing Opened By Order of U. S.

The United States yesterday ordered the former Japanese-mandated island areas in the Pacific opened to commercial fishing operations of all nations.

These are the Caroline, Marshall and Mariana groups, making up, with coastal water, an area large as the Continental United States, and rich in fishery resources, particularly tuna.

The areas are administered by the United States as a trust territory under the United Nations. During the quarter century of Japanese control, fishermen of other nations had few privileges.

The State Department published a statement of policy governing fishing operations, approved by the Army, Navy, Air and Interior Departments. It provides for strict control and licensing by the U. S. High Commissioner, Admiral Dewitt C. Ramsey, with headquarters in Honolulu.

Fight for Madioen

Indonesian Forces Near Red 'Capital'

Batavia, Java, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Indonesian republican army units today were reported fighting guerillas within 13 miles of Madioen, the eastern Java town seized by the Communists 11 days ago as their "capital."

The Republican-controlled Antara news agency claimed the Indonesians had advanced to Magetan, guarding the western approaches to Madioen, 13 miles away.

An army communique, meanwhile, claimed the Republicans recaptured the town of Ngandjuk, 15 miles northwest of Medioen, and Bogor, 5 miles west of Ngandjuk.

An armed band destroyed a Dutch-owned rubber factory only 18 miles southeast of Batavia last night. At Jogjakarta, capital of the Indonesian republic, three railroad cars were burned after an explosion in the railroad station. Saboteurs were blamed.

Briton in Romania For Trade Parley

Bucharest, Romania, Sept. 29 (AP).—New east-west trade negotiations seem in prospect regardless of the international situation. This was indicated today with the arrival here of Frank Pinnock, representative of the British Food Ministry.

Star Witness Doubts Siam's King Was Slain

Bangkok, Sept. 29 (AP)—The prosecution's own star witness against three men charged in the alleged assassination of King Ananda Mahidol testified today he didn't think the King was assassinated.

Rear Admiral Sorayudh caused consternation in the prosecution staff by saying the assassination rumors were spread by political foes of Pridi Phanaomyong, who then was Premier.

Sorayudh was on the commission which investigated after the King was found shot to death in his palace in 1946. A pistol was by his side.

Pridi fled Siam after the military coup last November. His whereabouts now is unknown. The admiral testified he was sure Pridi had nothing to do with the King's death.

The prosecution charges Pridi and his secretary, Lieut. Vajarachai Chiseddhive], plotted to kill the King, that Vajarachai shot the King and left the gun at the scene to make it look like suicide. Vajarachai fled from Siam with Pridi.

The three now on trial are servants in the King's household who are accused of working with Pridi and Vajarachai.

Fire Kills 22 at Dance

Warsaw, Poland, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Twenty-two persons were killed Monday night in nearby Osuchow when fire swept a granary where the local fire brigade was giving a dance, Warsaw newspapers reported today.

Chinese Base Is Encircled by Reds

Peiping, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Chinese government's position in Manchuria was being undermined today by Communist encirclement of Chinhsien, major base 125 miles southwest of Mukden.

Press accounts said the Communists completed the blockade of Chinhsien by cutting the railway to the supply port of Hulutao, 30 miles to the south.

(A military spokesman in Nanking admitted that Reds had broken into Chinhsien's suburbs. He said the Communists had been repulsed in a fight there.)

[At Nanking, a government spokesman said two Nationalist divisions were practically annihilated, and another was defeated in the battle for Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, last week. He claimed the Communists suffered losses of 60,000 killed and wounded, the United Press said.]

Jet Engine Power Multiplied by U. S.

By James J. Strebig
Associated Press Aviation Reporter

Cleveland, Sept. 29.—Jet engines which may produce five times the power of types now in use are being developed by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics at its Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory here.

This was disclosed today in a discussion of research projects during the annual inspection by military visitors.

It would mean that aircraft engines with 25,000 pounds of thrust in a single unit would be developed. That thrust would equal 50,000 to 100,000 horsepower in effective "push" with the aircraft flying at 700 to 1000 miles an hour.

Present Record 671 MPH

The most powerful jet engine at normal rating today is the General Electric J-47, used to set a world speed record of 671 m. p. h. in an F-86 plane. The J-47 rates normally at 5000 pounds of thrust, but the effective force increases with the speed. More powerful turbo-jet engines are being readied.

Carleton Kemper, executive engineer of Lewis Laboratory, told military reviewers that a jet engine combustion chamber design which can release five times the current amount of heat is being studied, along with the other basic elements.

The other elements are the compressors, which provide the air to burn in the combustion chamber, and the turbine blades, which must be made to stand twice as much heat. Doubling the operating temperatures of turbine wheels would permit development of several times as much thrust with greater economy of operation.

A jet engine uses about three fourths of its power to operate the compressor, but only one fifth of that air is used in burning fuel. The rest is needed to cool the engines, with current operating limits around 1500 degrees Fahrenheit. Turbine blades may be cooled in future engines by circulating liquids, as in automobile engine cooling systems.

The NACA has developed compressor blades that can do five times the work of present types. It is searching for fuels that will increase the amount of heat which can be released from a pound of fuel.

The laboratory already has shown that jet engine thrust can be increased by as much as three fourths, and operational altitudes can be raised one fourth by adding tail-pipe burners. This device burns additional fuel in the exhaust pipe.

Kemper said the tail-pipe burner now is considered an integral part of the jet engine. The Navy already has applied it to one of its jet fighters, the Chance-Vought F-6-U Pirate.

Thunderjets Are Grounded

The Air Force yesterday grounded all F-84 Thunderjets, among its fastest fighters, until it can learn what caused recent accidents in flight.

Announcement of grounding of the 600-mile-an-hour jet planes was made jointly by the Air Force and Republic Aviation Corp., the manufacturer. Republic has orders for 974 Thunderjets and 5 groups of 75 each are expected to be formed by the end of this year.

One F-84 crashed this summer at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., when a wing reportedly separated from the fuselage. A defective aileron bearing was believed to have figured in the accident.

The Thunderjet is rated officially as having a 600-mile combat radius and 40,000-foot operating ceiling. It mounts six .50-caliber guns and carries rockets.

Draft Violator Gets Two Years

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

OBJECTOR—Ralph E Cook, a predivinity student at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind., drew a two-year prison sentence in Portland, Me., yesterday for refusing to register for the peacetime draft. The son of a Portland clergyman, Cook would have been exempt had he registered. His sentence was the first passed under the Selective Service Act of 1948

GI Hero's Widow to Get Highest Medal

An American staff sergeant who killed at least 25 German troops before a bullet tore through his throat will receive posthumously the Nation's highest military award.

The hero of almost incredible exploits was Guss Kefurt, who died December 24, 1944, while battling German infantry and tanks in France.

The Army said yesterday a Congressional Medal of Honor will be given to his widow, Mrs. Frances E. Kefurt of Sharon, Pa., in the near future.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kefurt, RFD 5, Greenville, Pa.

The action for which the decoration was awarded occurred at Benn-Wihr, in Alsace, when the Third Infantry Division relieved the Thirty-sixth Division.

Killed 10, Captured 5

Kefurt was platoon leader of K Company, Third Division, when it gained a position on the edge of the town. Kefurt made his way through an opening in a wall, to find himself confronted by about 15 SS troops. Spraying them with fire from his sub-machine gun, the sergeant killed 10, took 5 prisoners.

At another point in the battle, he crouched in a street 30 yards from an enemy tank and directed artillery fire on the tank.

Disregarding a painful wound in his leg, Kefurt maintained a volume of fire which killed at least 15 Germans. Three hours later, still fighting, Kefurt was killed.

Army to Lift Promotion Ban

By The Associated Press

The Army will announce about November 1 the lifting of its ban on temporary promotions of officers.

The "freeze" on promotions went into effect early in 1946 for the grades of major, lieutenant colonel and colonel. It was extended a year later to promotions for junior grade officers.

Under the new policy, an Army official said yesterday, an officer will be promoted if he has the professional, technical and other requirements, regardless of whether vacancies exist.

The Army had no estimate of the number of men who would be affected by the new policy.

However, the Air Force in announcing a similar plan, said that about 5500 officers would receive temporary promotions by the end of next January. They now range in grades from first lieutenant through lieutenant colonel.

The Air Force plans to promote about 3000 first lieutenants to captain, 1550 captains to major, 700 majors to lieutenant colonel and 250 lieutenant colonels to colonel.

More Cooperation Urged on Europe

Europe could get sound and carefully safeguarded World Bank loans to "supplement" American ERP aid. And he reminded Latin America and other underdeveloped areas that the bank constantly kept their needs in mind.

The Bank's job, he repeated, was not to provide emergency relief, but "to finance within its resources the creation and maintenance of the sort of productive and bankable enterprises or projects for which, for the time being at least, no sufficient amount of private capital is available."

Would Use "18 Per Cent" Fund

To make the Bank more useful to more members in the coming year, McCloy urged his governors to use a new source of loans in the form of about 150 million dollars' worth of assorted nondollar currencies now in the Bank's hands.

This is the so-called "18 per cent" fund, made up of local currencies representing 18 per cent of each member nation's agreed contribution to the Bank. On June 30 the fund included, for example, 1,265,477 Dutch guilders, 14,741,644 Belgian francs, 583,612 Canadian dollars, 349,588,083 Brazilian cruzeiros, and a number of other currencies that could be used to buy materials for reconstruction and development.

So far only one nondollar loan has been made from this fund—of about two million dollars' worth of Belgian francs to help modernize Luxembourg's steel industry and transport.

Suggests Nations

McCloy suggested yesterday that other countries follow Belgium's lead, and give the Bank their consent to lend some of their local currency contribution.

"I believe the time has come," he said, "when more serious consideration should be given the use of this asset if only modest amounts art made available continually.

"The Bank is keenly aware of the reasons, many compelling, which have prevented the free use of these facilities to date. Till now, few countries have been in a position to export substantial amounts of goods on credit, yet some real opportunities do exist, opportunities which could be availed of through the medium of the Bank."

Benefits Stressed

The annual report suggested that use of this largely untapped source, and the sale of the Bank's bonds elsewhere than in the United States, "would reinforce the Bank's international character and, to the extent that the Bank would be enabled to lend money other than dollars, would tend to lessen the transfer problems involved in eventual repayment of Bank loans."

As for eastern Europe, McCloy reminded the governors that what he called "this knife-edged political situation" and "the continuous series of political crises" had hampered the effects of the Bank's work all over the world.

Without direct mention of Poland, which has sought a World Bank coal-mining loan in vain for more than a year, his report said it was "unfortunate but nonetheless true that the existing political difficulties and uncertainties in Europe" had kept the Bank from making loans to eastern Europe.

Cognizant of Purpose

"The Bank," he reported, "is fully cognizant of the injunction in its Articles of Agreement that its decisions shall be based only on economic considerations. Political tensions and uncertainties in or among its member countries, however, have a direct effect on economic and financial conditions in those countries and upon their credit positions.

"The Bank believes that there are substantial opportunities for the development of the productive resources of its member countries in Europe which are not participants in ERP. It hopes, therefore, that the existing uncertainties can be clarified to an extent which will enable it to render financial assistance in the development of such countries, which will not only be of benefit to them but to Europe generally, and it is continuing to explore such possibilities."

Satellites Complain

Delegates from Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia complained later in a closed meeting about this passage of the report, and about what they called undue emphasis on ERP. They felt the bank was not following its charter injunction against "political motivation."

"Their criticism was made in very good temper," McCloy told reporters afterward. "I want to emphasize that it wasn't any rasping criticism. Our reply was that ERP is such an important element that any failure to refer to it would be more pointed than anything we did make of it."

United States Held Opposed

Poland's loan application has never been voted upon by the Bank's executive directors, it was learned yesterday, but there have been clear indications that the United States Government—and especially ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman and ECA Ambassador W. Averell Harriman—are strongly opposed to it now. The United States holds 37½ per cent of the voting power in the Bank, and probably could veto any loan it disliked.

On other hand, McCloy has already announced that the Bank was considering an eight-million-dollar loan to several eastern European countries for timber-cutting machinery which would help supply urgently needed timber to western Europe. No opposition to this loan has come from the United States, although the dollars would go originally to Soviet-dominated areas.

Sonja Loew Loses $50,000 to Gem Bandits

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Three towel-masked men robbed a Czechoslovakian beauty of $50,000 in jewelry at her hotel suite early today.

The victim was Mrs. Sonja Loew, 31, divorced wife of Elias M. Loew, New England theater chain owner. She also was robbed of $60 in cash.

The three men, all about 30 and well dressed, were waiting for Mrs. Loew when she returned from a movie.

The leader seized her, she told police, and said: "Don't be frightened and don't scream. We're not going to hurt you. We want your jewelry."

Later, she said, he ran his fingers through her hair and said, "Don't worry honey; you won't get hurt."

The men took the following:

A 68-carat diamond and platinum pendant, a diamond and ruby watch, a diamond and ruby heart-shaped pin, a pair of diamond earrings, a diamond and emerald stork-shaped pin, a solid gold compact, and two diamond rings.

Two other diamonnd rings of 8 carats each which she was wearing were ignored.

Mrs. Loew, whose home is at Milton, Mass., a Boston suburb, said the men told her, 'If you call the police, we'll get you in Boston."

They bound and gagged her before leaving the suite.

Mrs. Loew told police the jewelry was insured.

White House Plans Drawn

...ly would live while the work was under way. But the Blair House, across the street from the Executive Mansion, would be a "logical" temporary White House. Blair House is now used by the Department of State as a guest house for foreign dignitaries.

If the President does have to move out of his home within the next few years, it won't be the first time.

James and Dolly Madison moved out of the White House in 1814 after it was burned by the British. Teddy Roosevelt and his family moved into temporary quarters in 1902 during a wholesale renovation of the mansion.

In 1927 the roof and attic of the White House were reconstructed, and President Coolidge moved to the Patterson mansion on Dupont Circle.

Fire on Christmas Eve, 1929

On Christmas Eve, 1929, the executive office was damaged by fire, and Herbert Hoover moved into Gen. John J. Pershing's office in the old State Department Building while repairs were made.

During Franklin D. Roosevelt's Administrations, numerous alterations were made, but the Roosevelt family stayed.

During President Truman's Administration, and over the protests of architectural, planning and historical groups, a balcony was added on the second floor of the south portico.

Winslow said yesterday the last extensive remodeling was in 1936 and 1937, when all-metal kitchens were installed. Since the mansion has been occupied, just about everything in it has been repaired or strengthened except the second floor, he said. Now, most of the building is in "good shape."

And, added Winslow, "there are no rats—and no bugs. We haven't had any for a long time."

Gurney Inspection Unit To Return to U. S.

Madrid, Spain, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), chairman of the Senate Armed Forces Committee, and other top American military and political leaders arrived today by special military plane from Paris.

The group, which inspected military installations in western Europe, was expected to leave for Lisbon Friday en route to the United States.

Rookie Policeman Cleared in Slaying

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated the District policeman who fired the bullet that fatally wounded Loran L. Winn, 34, a Supreme Court guard, on Sunday night at Winn's apartment.

The jury held that Pvt. David W. Taylor, 23, of 1741 Trinidad ave. ne., a rookie policeman with but six months' service, was "justified" in killing Winn when Winn confronted him and another policeman with a "cocked" revolver.

Taylor fired three bullets into Winn's body, the fatal one in the abdomen causing an internal hemorrhage, Cornor A. Magruder Mac-

Taylor Patterson

Donald said. Taylor's companion, Pvt. George L. Patterson, on the call to Winn's apartment at 214 Massachusetts ave. ne., fired two shots into Winn but neither caused his death, the coroner said.

Both Taylor, who voluntarily testified before the jury, and Patterson said they were responding on a call to investigate "a crazy man" at the Massachusetts ave. address when they were informed by police radio that "crazy man" was shooting in the apartment corridor. Arriving there, they said they were told the man, Winn, had shot at the apartment janitor.

"We were expecting to find a dangerous man," Patterson said.

When Winn failed to open his apartment door in response to knocks and announcement they were police, the officers said they began kicking the door. It then began to open and they saw Winn —"his eyes looking wild"—with a revolver. Both officers said they called simultaneously for him to drop the gun, but that instead he cocked the hammer and took a step forward.

"I heard a shot. I thought it was Winn firing at me, and I fired three times," Taylor testified. An examination of Winn's revolver showed that Winn had not fired at the officers. Earlier he had fired one bullet at Gilbert Purdy, 33, of 2821 Georgia ave. nw., the janitor, testimony revealed.

Patterson said it was he who fired the first shot—when Winn cocked his revolver and stepped forward. Winn died Monday at Casualty Hospital.

His wife, Mrs. Loretta Minerva Winn, 24, a cashier at Loew's Columbia Theater here, said she and Winn had had an argument after she returned from work about 9 p. m. Sunday and that she had left the apartment at the time. She said Winn had been drinking and had struck her several times.

Winn had been a Supreme Court guard since June, 1945.

Funeral services for Winn are scheduled for 2 p. m. today at Chambers funeral home in Georgetown. A World War II veteran, he will be buried at Arlington Cemetery.

Harris Family Benefit Set

A benefit show for the family of Robert B. Harris, slain Alexandria policeman, will be held tonight at the Virginia Theater in Alexandria.

Starting at 7 p. m. the entertainment will include a one-hour stage show as well as the movie, "Emperor Waltz." On the stage will be two bands, comedians, singers, variety acts and a musical quiz in which the audience will participate. The theater is located at N. St. Asaph and First sts.

The Alexandria Amusement Corp. announced that all proceeds will be donated to the widow and 6-month-old son of Harris who was shot in the early morning of September 11 while making his rounds.

Tickets are on sale for $1.50 at all Alexandria drug stores and theaters, at radio station WPIK and at Alexandria police headquarters.

Contributions to the family from organizations and private citizens passed the $5000 mark this week while police still sought their first clew to the murderer's identity.

carrying a gun in connection with it."

"The Government has been unable to prove the statement, but the implication present that Leake was a gambler—in my view—prejudiced this case.

"I should say that the Government at the time had ample reason to believe it could prove it—but that rulings of this court made it impossible."

Schweinhaut said that according to the rules of evidence much of the matter pertaining to the gambling aspects of necessity was excluded.

"It is my view," stated the jurist, "that the jury cannot evaluate competent evidence except against a background of inadmissible matter which so colors the case that objectivity is well-nigh impossible. . ."

Schweinhaut noted that the jury had heard much testimony prejudicial to each of the defendants.

"There was much they (the jurors) would not have heard had each defendant been tried alone," he declared.

The men had been indicted jointly and the case consolidated.

Judge Schweinhaut explained later that he called for a directed verdict rather than a mistrial because "without the inadmissible evidence there would not have been enough left in the Government's case to warrant a verdict of guilty beyond a reasonable doubt."

(Under the law defendants freed by a directed verdict cannot be tried again on the same charge. This would not be the case in the event of a mistrial when proceedings could be arranged.)

Schweinhaut's ruling which upheld a motion by defense attorneys followed an announcement of "surprise" by Murray.

Murray made his announcement during questioning of Government Witness Odessa Madre, former numbers bookie.

Murray had asked: "Did Leake ever tell you he found his numbers business dwindling and every time he looked into it he traced it to Simkins?"

"No," the witness answered.

Then Murray in announcing "surprise" sought permission to cross examine Miss Madre as a hostile witness but after a bench conference Schweinhaut ruled on acquittal abruptly ending the trial.

More Water Used By Washingtonians

More Washingtonians are using more water as the years roll on and the cost to supply it in the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1949, will be $6,337,000.

This was disclosed yesterday when the District Water Division and the Washington Aqueduct submitted budget requests for the fiscal year 1950.

At present the aqueduct is supplying an average of 163 million gallons of water a day for District and Arlington County residents, almost five million more gallons daily than during the previous fiscal year. Last August 27, when the thermometer hit 99, a new record was set as 216 million gallons of water were supplied.

The Water Division asked for $3,630,000, a reduction of $44,000 from the current grant. This includes $2,045,000 for operating expenses and $1,585,000 for capital outlay. Both funds are supplied from the District Water Fund.

The division requested $30,000 for use in expanding facilities of the Anacostia pumping station to serve the estimated 110,000 persons residing in the area. An additional $450,000 would be earmarked in contracts payable during two later years as equipment and construction is performed.

Another one million dollars was asked toward a two-million-dollar rehabilitation project at the Bryant st. nw. pumping station. Old equipment is being replaced there and some facilities are being expanded.

Funds for Aqueduct

The Washington Aqueduct asked for $2,707,000, a drop of $6000 from the current fund. This includes $1,549,000 for operating expenses, payable from the Water Fund, and $1,158,000 for capital outlay.

The aqueduct officials attributed the rise in operating expenses to sharp boosts in the price and amounts of chemicals, electric power and freight facilities needed.

The principal capital outlay items asked were $895,000 for installation of six new filters and shop facilities at Dalecarlia and $263,000 for conveying equipment for chemicals which would help in improving the quality of water purification.

Baptists Fear Catholic Army In Red Fight

A Baptist group yesterday expressed fear a plan of the Catholic War Veterans to fight communism might spawn a Catholic army and urged the recall of Myron C. Taylor, Presidential Envoy to the Vatican.

The group is the Baptist Joint Conference Committee on Public Relations, composed of representatives of the Northern and Southern Baptist Conventions, the National Baptists of America and the National Baptists, Inc., and said to represent 14 million Baptists.

The Baptist representatives met at the Baptist Building, 1628 16th st. nw.

The statement was immediately denounced by Anthony H. Forbes, national commander of the Catholic War Veterans, who said the Baptists' concern was "absurd."

Training Plan Cited

A report submitted to the Baptist committee by Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., cited an "officer training school" planned by the Catholic War Veterans.

According to the plan, 40 or 50 Catholic War Veterans were to be trained in Washington in the ways of subversive groups in order to help fight communism in their home communities.

Holding that this might result in a Catholic army, the report said "such an idea is repugnant to all who cherish the ideals of religious freedom and civil liberties."

"Apparently they failed to read our program," Forbes said in replying to the Baptists.

After their training in Washington, Forbes said, the Catholic veteran would return to their respective communities and appear before service clubs, public groups of various kinds, schools and other civic bodies and explain the dangers of communism.

The entire program, Forbes added, is nonsectarian.

Taylor's Recall Urged

The Baptist report also said Catholic pressure brought about the ban of the Nation magazine in public school libraries in New York.

The report said this is "another example of the difficulties which a free press and academic freedom encounter at the hands of the Catholic hierarchy."

The recall of Taylor as representative to the Vatican was urged of the next President-elect in a report submitted by Dr. Edward B. Willingham, minister of the National Memorial Baptist Church, 16th st. and Columbia rd. nw.

Sewer Division Asks $4,341,821 Budget

A $4,341,821 budget was asked by the District Sewer Division yesterday for the fiscal year 1950 in order to keep pace with the building boom.

The total was $628,821 more than the current grant and included $1,241,821 for operating expenses and $3,100,000 for capital outlay. The fiscal year commences July 1, 1949.

The division, which is currently pumping 65 billion gallons of sewage a year, pointed out that in addition to needed expansion, the District also is faced with a pressing need for renovation of present antiquated facilities constructed 50 to 100 years ago.

Among the major projects requested were:

1. Storm water sewers, $696,600, for placement in new areas.
2. Relief sewers for those inadequate to handle storm water runoff, $500,000, for use in the "old city." This was described as the area south of Florida ave., north and west of the Anacostia and Potomac rivers, including Georgetown, together with the Piney Branch area, extending north to the District line, just east of Georgia ave. and a small area south of the Anacostia. Most of these sewers are 50 to 100 years old and carry both sanitary and storm waters.
3. Replacement sewers, $100,000, for the same area.
4. Building of sewers in advance of highway paving, $350,000.
5. Construction of service sewers in residential areas, $500,800.
6. Completion of additional sludge digestion tanks and additional sedimentation tank, part of a $1,720,000 project, for service mainly to the Anacostia area, $350,000.

In addition, the division asked for funds with which to hire an additional clerk-accountant at $2645 a year and a personnel clerk at the same rate.

Rockville Council Orders Cleanup

An ordinance requiring observance of hygienic housing conditions in Rockville has been adopted by the town council, Mayor G. La Mar Kelly, jr., announced yesterday.

The ordinance requires that all business and residential properties be kept free of trash and rubbish, Kelly said. Elimination of trailers as dwellings and abolition of overcrowding in substandard living quarters also are ordered.

"We have no slum conditions, but there are substandard areas which need cleaning up," Kelly declared. "We believe this ordinance will result in a tremendous saving to the taxpayers by reducing the need for public health expenditures."

Property owners can be ordered by the mayor and council to clean up at the owner's expense. Failure to comply makes them subject to a $50 fine for each day the offense continues.

Ex-Senator's School Plan Is Rejected

The District Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday denied the appeal of a former United States Senator to establish a nonprofit school at 1520 18th st. nw.

The appeal was filed by Walter E. Edge, twice Governor of New Jersey and former Senator, who asked for permission to establish a Structural Clay Products Institute, which the appeal described as a "nonprofit institution of higher learning devoted exclusively to the arts and sciences" or, as an alternative, "a philanthropic institution."

The request was denied because Edge, through his attorney, was unable to show that the school would meet the qualifications required under the District Code, a board spokesman said.

Other Action Taken

Other action taken yesterday by the board included:

Joseph Tucci was given permission to establish a temporary automobile parking lot at the southeast corner of 16th and K sts. nw.

Christ Lutheran Church was denied an appeal to establish an eight-grade and nursery Christian school or, as an alternative, a nursery school and kindergarten at 5101 16th st. nw.

Marjorie Webster Junior College was granted permission to use the buildings at 1601-23-31 Jonquil st. nw. for dormitory purposes for 15 months.

YWCA School Approved

The YWCA was given permission to establish a school at 4468 MacArthur blvd. nw.

Jane F. McDonough, owner, on behalf of the Washington School of Psychiatry, was given permission to establish a private school at 1711 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Inez Cushard, owner, on behalf of the Institute of Contemporary Arts, was denied an appeal to establish a nonprofit institution of higher learning at the rear of 4910-30 Wisconsin ave. nw.

200 City College Students Stage Sitdown Strike

New York, Sept. 29 (U.P.).— Students at City College of New York staged a "sit-down demonstration" today protesting the refusal of the board of education to remove a professor accused of antisemitism.

Some 200 students, about one-third coeds, sat down in front of College President Harry N. Wright's office.

Speakers denounced Prof. William Knickerbocker, head of the college's romance language department, accused of discriminating against his Jewish students.

Dean John Theobald told the "sit down" meeting a faculty committe and a committee appointed by the board of education had found Knickerbocker innocent.

Bidding Starts Soon on Walker-Jones School; Completion Is Expected by February, 1950

MUNICIPAL ARCHITECT'S SKETCH OF PROPOSED JONES ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Bids will be asked on the new Walker-Jones Elementary School, to be built at 1st and L sts. nw., about November 15, and the school should be ready for use by February, 1950, Archie Hutson, District director of construction, announced yesterday.

The new school will replace the present Walker and Jones Schools, two eight-room structures which school officials have described as "inadequate" and "obsolete."

The new school, Hutson said, will be a three-story brick building trimmed in limestone and will contain 24 classrooms, an assembly hall and a gymnasium. It will be fireproofed, Hutson said. The plans have been drawn by Merrel A. Coe, District architect.

Plans also have been completed, Hutson announced, for a new District garage and shop to be built at West Virginia ave. and Mount Olivet rd. nw., and bids will be asked, he said, about October 10. The new shop will contain 46,000 square feet of shop, office and miscellaneous space and 57,000 square feet of garage space. It will comprise two stories with entrances on each level.

Congress has appropriated money for both projects.

High Cost of Loving Makes The World Go 'Round Broke

New York, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—The high cost of loving is putting romance on the rocks.

The men who used to woo with orchids, filet mignon and soft music now have to rely only on their charms and so risk losing their skirts.

Dealers in the commodities of courtship—Candy, ice cream, flowers, movie tickets and night club entertainment—say loving costs have gone up at least 400 per cent.

The men who live on love said the fellow who used to spend $10 on his girl every Saturday night now treats her only once a month and he has to scrimp to get together the $40 or $50 it takes. Between times she has to be contended with having her hand held in a movie, in taking a walk, sipping beer or sitting in her own parlor with the guy, they said.

The girl who used to get a box of candy. "People who used to pay for entertainment now entertain themselves," one authoritative source said.

L. Charles Daum, jr., a florist, said the only roses a girl can count on these days are in her cheeks—if she can afford the rouge.

CU Professor Fears Worship Of Democracy

A Catholic University professor yesterday voiced his alarm over what he termed "a national trend" to worship of democracy.

He questioned the religious faith of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower; cited the Supreme Court decision against religious education in public schools as "a victory for this secularism," and called The Washington Post "one of our most persistent enemies of religious education in the public schools."

Speaking before a luncheon assembly of the Georgetown University Medical Alumni Association, the Rev. John Tracy Ellis, C. U. professor of American Church History, said the democracy cult "may lead to national ruin."

Eisenhower Quoted

Concerning General Eisenhower, the speaker quoted a New York Times report of the general's answer to the question of whether he is a religious man, on the day Eisenhower became president of Columbia University.

Father Ellis said the news item quoted General Eisenhower as follows:

"I am the most intensely religious man I know. Nobody goes through six years of war without faith. That doesn't mean I adhere to any sect. A democracy cannot exist without a religious base. I believe in democracy."

The answer, said Father Ellis, is "a shocking statement."

"We all know of General Eisenhower's heroism in war," he declared. "I have the greatest respect for him as a great and gallant American. But I do think it sad that the head of one of our great American universities would so seemingly equate religion and democracy."

"Movement" Outlined

The professor said the "movement" apparently began seven years ago with publication of "a scurrilous primer," "The City of Man." This booklet, he said, was "a manifesto by 17 supposed intellectuals."

"It heaped scorn and ridicule on Judaism, Catholicism aid Protestantism, and espoused the cause of a new religion of democracy," he declared.

Father Ellis further argued that one of five volumes of a report issued last year by the President's Commission on Higher Education contained "the same implicit idea of making democracy a religion."

He gave the following excerpt, which he said he took from the report as an example: "But to assume that all we need to do is to apply to present and future problems 'eternal' truths revealed in earlier ages is likely to stifle creative imagination and intellectual daring."

Court Decision Cited

Citing the Supreme Court's decision against religious courses in public schools as "a victory for this secularism," the religious history professor said that "every such victory moves us closer and closer to the culmination of idolatry of the State."

An editorial of The Washington Post, which attacked the integrity of Russia in international agreements, was quoted as evidence of what happens to a nation "which has no moral law."

Father Ellis then declared:

"Incidentally, The Washington Post is one of the most persistent enemies of religious education in the public schools."

After his talk he amplified this for reporters to say that he referred specifically to the newspaper's editorial stand which has warned against injection of religious instruction in the public schools.

NO THIRD PARTITION OF PALESTINE

IN a sudden burst of speed, the British Government and our Administration are seeking to bring about the earliest adoption of the last Bernadotte proposals on Palestine by the General Assembly of the United Nations. The Bernadotte report recommends that the Negev, consisting of two thirds of the State of Israel as set up by the United Nations Resolution of November 29, 1947, should be torn away from Israel and handed over to the Arab invaders, preferably Transjordan. It also proposes that Jerusalem be placed under United Nations control, without any corridor connecting it with Israel.

These proposals were put forward by Count Bernadotte merely as a basis for discussion, as his report makes clear. However, both Foreign Secretary Bevin and Secretary of State Marshall have chosen to ignore that fact and have urged acceptance of the Bernadotte plan in toto. The reason for this blanket indorsement and for their haste in trying to achieve the immediate adoption of the plan is transparent. It would seem that the British Foreign Office, whose longstanding hostility to the Jewish state has produced a lamentable record of deceit, is currently trying to make capital out of the assassination of Count Bernadotte—and our State Department is collaborating. They are attempting to railroad Count Bernadotte's plan through the General Assembly—as a monument to his memory—while his tragic death is still fresh in the public mind.

Such exploitation of a criminal act, committed by outlaws whom the State of Israel is trying to hunt down and root out, is what we have come to expect of Mr. Bevin's Foreign Office. But it is unworthy of our country and its traditions of justice. We do not think we are asking too much when we call upon the United States Government to deal with the Bernadotte proposals solely on their merits and quite apart from the tragedy of September 17.

An Unjust, Unworkable Plan

When viewed objectively and dispassionately, we believe that the Bernadotte plan is manifestly unjust and unworkable. By cutting away the Negev from Israel, the plan would reduce the Jewish state in size by no less than 3,800 square miles, while a mere 420 square miles of rocky and hilly western Galilee would be added to it "in compensation." Thus, the entire State of Israel would consist of approximately 2,400 square miles—a tiny area incapable of absorbing and supporting the hundreds of thousands of Jewish refugees who are desperately seeking emigration to Israel.

Moreover, if it were removed from Israel the Negev would be doomed to remain a desert wasteland; for the Jews alone are prepared to make it habitable by costly and extensive irrigation projects—something which is not to be expected from King Abdullah, whose 35,000 square miles are largely underpopulated and uncultivated.

Not to be overlooked also is the fact that cutting away the Negev would deprive Israel of the waters and minerals of the Dead Sea and thereby seal off an important avenue for economic development which the new state sorely needs. It would also deprive Israel of access to the Red Sea and render it extremely difficult for Israel to engage in commerce with the Far East and with Africa.

Perhaps one of the real reasons why it is now proposed to take the Negev from Israel and hand it over to Britain's puppet, Abdullah, is to be found in recent reports of oil deposits in that area. Surely the industry of Israel could use such a fuel reserve without remaining forever at the mercy of British-Arab production in Iraq.

Last year our State Department argued in the United Nations that the Negev should be removed from the Jewish state area. After the Jewish Agency agreed to the transfer of sizable portions of the Negev to the Arab state, the State Department ceased its agitation. On November 22, 1947, Herschel V. Johnson, our delegate to the United Nations, declared: "We think that the Jewish Agency has made, from its point of view, an equitable and fair proposal, and whatever reservation the United States delegation maintains with respect to this area (the Negev) is withdrawn."

Has anything happened since November 22, 1947, to warrant a change of this clearly expressed attitude on the question of the Negev? Why, then, should our Government be a party to the latest British attempt to cripple Israel?

The Jerusalem Proposal

The Bernadotte proposal regarding Jerusalem is surely the most unrealistic of statements when viewed against the background of recent events in the Holy City. After having repulsed the wanton attacks of the British-led, British-supplied Arab Legion and after having endured months of siege and privation, the Jews of Jerusalem will hardly consent to leave their city unprotected in the midst of hostile Arab surroundings, unconnected with the State of Israel, and with no greater security for life and property than would be forthcoming from the nominal "control" of the United Nations. The Jews of Jerusalem and of Israel know only too well what it means to be dependent on Arab respect for United Nations authority. The almost daily flaunting of that authority by the Arabs has not served to reassure them that a better attitude will be demonstrated in the future. The Jews know that it was their own strength—their fight on the battlefields against overwhelming odds—rather than United Nations "control" which saved New Jerusalem and its inhabitants from destruction. They are not prepared to expose themselves to such murderous attacks again.

Israel Cannot Submit

For all of these reasons—and there are many more—Count Bernadotte's proposals must be rejected. It should be added that the British and American officials who are now working for the adoption of this plan are incredibly naive if they expect Israel to submit to it. No self-respecting nation would passively accept its own dismemberment—and Israel is a self-respecting nation. Having successfully defended their political independence, having spilled their bood in expelling the invaders from their territory, the citizens of Israel will surely not permit any part of their land to be presented to an Arab potentate. They had accepted the United Nations partition decision of November 29, 1947—at great sacrifice to their legitimate rights and aspirations—because they believed that this was final compromise solution. But they will not accept a third partition of Palestine.

The United Nations should consider well the full implications of the proposals which Mr. Bevin and Mr. Marshall have endorsed so heartily. What is being suggested is that military aggressors receive in a gift package what they failed to win by force of arms, and that a nation which successfully defended its territory against international gangsterism be penalized for its efforts. That, in effect, is what Mr. Bevin and Mr. Marshall are advocating. We fervently hope that the United Nations will refuse to become a party to this scheme.

The Bernadotte recommendations do not even possess the virtue of Arab agreement to commend them to the serious attention of the United Nations. The Arabs have already rejected the proposals. The Bernadotte report and Mr. Bevin's statement make it clear that the plan would have to be imposed. If a solution is to be imposed in Palestine, why not that solution which has the backing of world opinion—the United Nations decision of November 29, 1947? Why does Mr. Marshall seemingly prefer to impose a new, unjust, unworkable plan rather than a just, workable compromise which has received the overwhelming approval of the nations of the world, including the United States?

The Latest Pledge And The Latest Performance

Mr. Marshall's unequivocal endorsement of the Bernadotte report can only be regarded as another unwarranted reversal of United States policy, such as took place on March 19, when the Administration suddenly attempted to scuttle the partition decision and proposed a trusteeship for Palestine.

President Truman is seeking re-election on a platform which declares: "We approve the claims of the State of Israel to the boundaries set forth in the United Nations Resolution of November 29 and consider that modification thereof should be made only if fully acceptable to the State of Israel."

How does President Truman reconcile this plainly stated pledge with the position taken by his Secretary of State?

The American people have a right to know.

AWARD WINNERS—Police privates who received "Cop of the Month" awards for August receive best wishes from the businessmen who recommended them and from the police inspector who decorated them. In the group are (from left) Pvt. Temple J. Dykes of Sixth Precinct; Francis Robey, president of the Lions Club; Assistant Police Superintendent Floyd E. Truscott; Adelbert Lee, member of the Board of Education, and Pvt. Paul V. Minnick of Eleventh Precinct. Awards were made at the Lions Club lunch yesterday

Two Washington policemen who risked their lives in the performance of their duty were named "Policemen of the Month" yesterday.

In special ceremonies held at a luncheon of the Brightwood Lions Club, Pvts. Temple J. Dyke of the Sixth Precinct, and Paul V. Minnick of the Eleventh Precinct, were presented with badges of merit, a scroll signifying their accomplishment and, as an additional gift, matching pen and pencil sets.

The pen and pencil sets were the gift of the Brightwood Lions Club. Assistant Metropolitan Police Superintendent Floyd A. Truscott explained that the District Commissioners had granted permission for the policemen to accept the gifts.

Citations explaining that Dykes earned the award by risking his life in the capture of a car-stealing suspect, and that Minnick became policeman of the month because he rescued a drowning man from the Anacostia River were read at the luncheon by I. William Hill, chairman of the award-for-merit committee.

Dykes saw the stolen car suspect, later identified as John E. Kirby, with a drawn pistol in his hand in the 6400 block of 13th st. nw. Dykes drew his pistol, came within 15 feet of Kirby, and told him to drop his weapon. Kirby whirled and raised his automatic as though about to fire.

Dykes refrained from shooting because he noticed a woman standing directly in his line of fire, back of Kirby. He again told Kirby to drop his weapon, and when Kirby complied, he made the arrest.

Minnick, 33, of 425 50th ave., Capitol Heights, Md., received the award for his action in risking his life August 12 to jump into the Anacostia River at Benning Bridge, even though he was in full uniform, and save the life of Melvin Hansbough. Hansbough, 28, a painter, of 903 E. Capitol st.

Witnesses said he waded into water at a 5-foot level, to a place in the river bed where there was a 12-foot drop. Witnesses said they saw Hansbough struggle against Minnick's efforts to rescue him.

Dykes was recommended for the award by Banker Francis E. Robey, president of the Brightwood D. C. Lions Club. Minnick was recommneded by Adelbert W. Lee, local realtor and a member of the D. C. Board of Education.

Do you like to know where your money is being spent? Do you want only certain agencies to benefit from your gift? Do you want to be sure that other organizations do not participate in your contribution?

HERE'S HOW!

1. Review the complete list of agencies; ask campaign Solicitor for leaflets listing agencies; call Chest for leaflet.
2. Check those you like and list amount you would give each if they came to you separately.
3. Add them up. Check the result with your "Guide for Giving" chart. Then Give—and Give Enough.
4. List these in the back of your pledge card, or list those to which you do NOT wish any of your contribution to go.

Your Preference Will Be Honored!

THIS IS THE OFFICIAL STATEMENT

"Contributors may designate all or part of their contribution to one or more Red Feather Agencies of their choice. Contributions as designated are guaranteed to reach the agencies designated. No Red Father agency can ever receive less than the amount of the net designations to it, up to 100% of its budget as determined by the Budget Committee prior to the campaign.

"Designations are honored, however, only where made to a Red Feather agency, a member agency of a member Chest, or to the Hospitalization Fund. They cannot be honored if made to any agency or organization not a member of one of the six Chests of the Community Chest (Red Feather) Federation.

"(All contributions, whether designated or not, are charged with their proportionate part of headquarters expense and shrinkage.)"

Unjudicial Role

Many citizens must have felt that the Federal Court in Texas was sticking its neck out in issuing an injunction to keep the name of Representative Lyndon Johnson off the ballot as the Democratic nominee for the United States Senate. The State Democratic Convention had pronounced Mr. Johnson the winner by 87 votes in his recent runoff primary contest with former Gov. Coke Stevenson. It is quite possible that further investigation might produce a different result, but in the meantime a judge is taking a good deal upon himself to say that the apparently successful nominee shall not have his name on the ballot. Justice Black of the Supreme Court has been able to find no law warranting such judicial interference. We suspect that he will be generally applauded for nullifying the effect of the lower court's injunction until the matter can be considered by the Supreme Court next week, if it is so inclined. The courts cannot involve themselves in political controversies of this sort without risking serious damage to their prestige.

Collective Security

Announcement in Paris that the five signatories of the Brussels Pact have reached agreement on a common military organization to effect the defense clauses of the alliance is somewhat less than sensational. In the first place, negotiations have been under way for several months, helped along by United States and Canadian observers, and a certain amount of progress was known to have been made. Second, the organization agreed on by the five Defense Ministers is still fragmentary. In the third place, as we have recently had occasion to mention, even full military integration among the Brussels nations can have meaning only insofar as arms for the men are supplied from the United States.

A step toward accomplishing the last need is in preparation and will, it is reported, be ready for presentation to the next Congress. So far so good. The fate of ERP depends in part on European confidence that recovery efforts will not be immediately wiped out by the ravages of a new war. With the Soviet Union exerting itself to sabotage ERP and undermine that confidence, the United States, as Senator Vandenberg and Undersecretary Lovett foresaw last spring, must supplement its economic support with adequate military guarantees.

The Vandenberg Resolution passed almost unanimously by the Senate on June 11 provides the doorway for that kind of assistance. The Senate agreed that the United States should associate itself with regional or other collective security arrangements "based on continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid" and in accordance with the principles and provisions of the U. N. Charter. While the act of association would presumably be subject to the Senate's constitutional "advice and consent," the resolution urges the Government to pursue this objective.

The present situation strongly indicates that military assistance should be made available to the Brussels group as promptly as possible. It is no less important that the terms of Article 51 be made the basis for a still wider grouping of nations desirous of peace and ready to act collectively to uphold their obligations under the Charter when and if the Security Council is blocked from action.

Equal Salaries

Equal pay for teachers of equal qualifications in any school district is fundamental to all efforts to overcome racial discrimination in education. Although there are some conspicuous exceptions, the South has long been the principal offender in this regard, and the salary disparity between white and Negro teachers is a matter of concern to many conscientious Southerners. The Federal Court decision in Atlanta Tuesday holding such inequalities to be illegal should give a meaningful boost to the drive to improve educational facilities and opportunities in the South.

The court recognized, quite properly, that it has no power to fix salaries themselves. That is the prerogative of school boards. Where the court's authority enters is in determining that the salaries paid shall not be discriminatory. Obviously there is a gross disparity in the Atlanta school system. White high school principals have received an average of $340 monthly, whereas their Negro counterparts have averaged only $240; salaries for elementary teachers have averaged $160 and $112, respectively. Yet there is no significant difference in qualifications between teachers of the two races.

The court has given the Atlanta School Board a "reasonable time" to comply. The important thing is that a precedent now has been set which, if upheld, should have general bearing throughout the South. The decision is a clear warning to school boards in all areas where discrimination is practiced to put their houses in order. Educationally, the move cannot but contribute to higher standards of instruction. Beyond this, it is an example of how many essential questions of Negro rights are being gradually but firmly settled in the courts.

Plain Speaking

The tongues of statesmen have been loosened by the grave American-British-French complaint against Russia before the Security Council. In striking succession they are marching to the rostrum of the General Assembly to tell the Russians in clear and forceful language how despicable is their threat to the peace of the world. Seldom has there been such plain speaking in an international public forum. It is a salutary sign. The tragedy is that the Russian people, who need most to hear such plain talk, will get only a condensed and garbled version of what is being said, if indeed they get anything at all.

From the French Foreign Minister, M. Schuman, has come the declaration that "Europe must unite to survive." From Britain's Mr. Bevin has come a firm assertion that the principles of the United Nations should be upheld by regional agreements if cooperation on a global basis finally proves impossible. From Belgium's Premier, M. Spaak, has come what is probably the most devastating analysis of Soviet foreign policy to which Moscow representatives have ever listened. Moscow's reply is what it always has been. In the Assembly yesterday its spokesmen from Yugoslavia and the Ukraine shouted new charges of imperialism and warmongering against the Western powers to blur the effects of the sincere and candid expose of its own policy during the last few days. If there is any realism left among the men of the Kremlin, however, some of the truths that have been spoken at Paris ought to penetrate the iron curtain of their minds.

M. Spaak was even brutally frank, as he intended to be. The reason for the pooling of strength among the western union countries, he said to the Russians, is fear of you. Why is western Europe afraid? Its people see that Russia is embarked upon an imperialistic policy of increasing her dominion and power in the world. In the United Nations the Soviet sabotages every effort to restore peace and stability to such troubled spots as Greece and Korea. She tries to disrupt the great program for economic recovery in Europe. In every country of the world she maintains a fifth column, "alongside which Hitler's Fifth Column was but an organization of Boy Scouts." In place of peace the Soviet is actively spreading chaos. She has extended her control over neighboring countries by force in order to enhance her security; but when other countries voluntarily cooperate to resist further extension of that tyranny and terror, she denounces them as warmongers.

This indictment comes, not from Wall Street, not even from Washington or London, but from one of Europe's greatest statesmen speaking for a small country that could not conceivably have any other international policy than peace. M. Spaak's frankness was coupled, moreover, with an earnest appeal for a new start, for honest collaboration in the settlement of disputes and rekindling "the flame that burned in us at San Francisco." It is this sincere facing of differences that will pull the world back from the brink of war if anything can. This is the kind of talk that ought to be coming from every capital of the free world. Russia must be made to understand the consequences of the policy she is pursuing. What a striking contribution to peace it would be if President Truman and Governor Dewey, instead of trying to paint each other as the friend or the tool of the Communists, would go on the air together with a united and powerful appeal to the common interest of mankind in meeting this new onslaught of tyranny without bloodshed.

Discovery

The members of Task Force No. 80, a mixed lot representing both Naval and Coast Guard folk, have returned from the Arctic to this sometimes temperate clime with a lot of records discovered in a cache at Cape Sheridan, one of the northernmost points of land this side the Pole. The records, it seems, were left there by the celebrated Commander Peary in the course of his 1905-06 expedition. This trip preceded the one capped by his dash over the Arctic ice to the Pole on April 6, 1908, which resulted in one of the most famous controversies in history. The cache also contained copies of the records left in the vicinity by members of the British expedition of 1875-76, the originals of which had been discovered and removed by the Peary expedition. The etiquette among explorers seems to be that, when you discover and remove a set of records left by a previous expedition you must leave copies for the benefit of the next comer. Accordingly, the party from Task Force No. 80, which reached Cape Sheridan by helicopter plane, made copies of the Peary records, which they deposited in a new cache.

This is all very interesting in a way, and the New York Times, whose reporter Mr. Murray Schumach got hold of the story somehow, saw fit to give it the first column of the first page of the issue of September 28. Yet the truth is that the North Pole is no longer the fascinating and mysterious place it seemed in 1908; and seeing that it may very well become one of the major battlegrounds of the next war, there are doubtless many who wish that it had never been discovered at all.

When Commander Peary reached Labrador in September, 1908, and managed to communicate his discovery to the world, it was only to find that he had been anticipated. A short time earlier another American, Dr. Frederick A. Cook, had arrived in Copenhagen with a story of having discovered the pole in the previous year. His statement was accepted at face value by the American Ambassador to Denmark, Dr. Maurice Francis Egan, who introduced Dr. Cook to the Danish royal family and to the members of the Danish Geographical Society, who covered him with congratulations and honors that were afterward hastily revoked.

When Commander Peary asserted angrily that Dr. Cook hadn't been anywhere near the pole a lot of people here and abroad attributed it to jealousy and chagrin. Presently the whole world, which included a large majority of persons who hadn't the slightest capacity for judging on which side, if either, the truth might be, were dividing themselves into Pearyans and Cookites. At length, however, Commander Peary managed to win over most of the experts to the view that he was the one and only authentic discoverer, and Dr. Cook fell into a deep disgrace from which he never recovered. Those who had embraced his cause most ardently were the loudest in the condemnation of him, although there were a few like the explorer Amundsen whose faith in his story seems never to have wavered in spite of the evidence adduced against it.

Fact Or Libel?

Alger Hiss and William W. Remington have put the issue of their reputations squarely up to their accusers. Both men have been charged during congressional hearings, and later over the radio, with being accessories to the Communist spy ring. After what has seemed an unusually long delay, Mr. Hiss has followed up the challenge he made to his accuser, Whittaker Chambers. He has filed a libel suit for $50,000 on the basis of statements made by Mr. Chambers in a radio broadcast to the effect that he had been a member of the Communist Party. For his part, Mr. Remington has demanded a retraction of the charge made over the air by Elizabeth Bentley that he was a Communist. Unless such a retraction is forthcoming by September 30, he intends to start a similar libel action.

These are salutary developments. While the courts cannot be expected to pass on matters of loyalty when no crime is charged, they are the appropriate vehicles to decide whether the charges made by Mr. Chambers and Miss Bentley are true. If the charges cannot be proved, then both Mr. Chambers and Miss Bentley may invite prosecution for perjury. Probably no decision or retraction the complainants can hope to obtain will remove entirely the stigma under which both have been cast. Mr. Remington's own admissions, for example, have shown him guilty at least of naivete and irresponsibility, and certainly his loyalty will remain in question until the President's Loyalty Review Board acts on his appeal. Moreover, there is ground for legitimate inquiry, quite apart from the court action, into how Mr. Remington could be selected for sensitive positions in the Government while he was under suspicion.

But by means of libel suits the determination of fact can be taken away from the smear-laden atmosphere of Capitol Hill and placed in a more objective setting. One way or another, the actions against Mr. Chambers and Miss Bentley should make it clear once and for all whether their accusations are entitled to public credence, or whether they are loose and unfounded charges which have done irretrievable damage to men's reputations because of the unwillingness of a congressional committee to sift testimony before it becomes headlines.

Climax

God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty. And base things of the world, and things which are despised hath God chosen; yea, and things which are not to bring to naught the things that are. And that's about the story of the 1948 baseball season in the American League, which, with only three more games to be played by the three foremost clubs, now appears to have been definitely resolved in the favor of the Cleveland Indians.

As probably you have heard already, it was our own Washington Club, those white knights of futility who were so recently within a hair's breadth of matching the world's record for consecutive games lost, that settled the business by defeating the Red Sox last Tuesday, and thereby puncturing the dream of our Boston friends of having a World Series all to themselves. To be sure our fellows so exhausted themselves in this effort that yesterday they were dismally beaten by the Red Sox in what, from the radio accounts, sounded like a pretty sodden and sluggish ball game; but meanwhile the Indians had defeated the White Sox to hold their two-game lead, and the New York Yankees had beaten the Philadelphia Athletics to maintain the tie for second place. Thus, at this stage, it would almost require a repeal of the laws of nature to deprive Mr. Veeck and his Indians of the pennant they have spent so much money and labor to win.

Perhaps it's better that way. After all, the Red Sox have won a good many pennants in their time, so that even the interest of their own townsfolk has been concentrated very largely this year on the National League Braves, who will have their first in 34 years. Meanwhile, under the stimulus of victory and of various ingenious publicity devices by Mr. Veeck and his staff, the Clevelanders have been worked into a state approaching frenzy. Whereas only about 10,000 of the faithful were on hand to watch the humiliation of the Red Sox last Tuesday, some 60,000 turned up for the triumph of the Indians. All in all, it should be an interesting World Series, and perhaps the most interesting thing about it is that neither club, if we may trust the experts in these matters, is really of world champion quality.

Italian Colonies

The Washington Post has published within the last several weeks two eloquent appeals in behalf of large-scale Italian migration to the former Italian colonies of Libya, Eritrea and Italian Somaliland. One of these was by Mr. Sumner Welles in his regular weekly column of September 14; the second on September 23 by Mr. Eugene M. Kulischer, a population expert with the Office of Strategic Services during the war.

These proposals provoke grave disquiet for several reasons. At the present time I should like to call attention to only one of them, one that probably has not occurred to the advocates of large-scale Italian migration to her former African colonies.

Under the terms of the Four-Power Declaration, Annex XI to the Treaty of Peace with Italy, "the final disposal of the territories concerned and appropriate adjustment of their boundaries shall be made by the Four Powers in the light of the wishes and welfare of the inhabitants and the interests of peace and security, taking into consideration the views of other interested governments."

A Four Power Commission of Investigation was unable to ascertain the wishes of the inhabitants. Suppose, now, that the General Assembly of the United Nations, to which the issue has been referred, should further delay final action pending a plebiscite to be held at some future date. In the meanwhile enough Italians could migrate, especially to Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, to provide an apparent majority in favor of an Italian trusteeship and perhaps even in favor of the restoration of Italian sovereignty.

The sacred principle of self-determination could then be invoked to justify the renewal of rule in Africa by a nation whose record of atrocities in Ethiopia during the war is not so well known as that of the Nazi brutalities at Buchenwald and Dachau, but is nonetheless equally authentic.

Bipartisan Policy

In the Associated Press dispatch from Louisville, Ky., of September 22, Governor Warren is reported to have "declared that American bipartisan foreign policy was conceived 4 years ago by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey as titular head of the Republican Party."

With all due respect to Governor Warren and Governor Dewey, may it not be well to recall that long before "four years ago" Secretary of State Cordell Hull had become a persistent advocate of the principle that foreign policy should be "nonpartisan" (which includes "bipartisan") and should concern both the executive and the legislative branches of the Government?

He had made it his practice to confer and consult with leading figures, both Democrats and Republicans, in the Senate and in the House of Representatives. On August 17, 1944 Mr. Hull said, in response to questions in a press conference, that he would welcome a conference with Governor Dewey on questions relating to the postwar organization and a nonpartisan approach to it. Governor Dewey responded to this by sending Mr. John Foster Dulles to confer on his behalf with Mr. Hull.

From the conferences thus initiated there resulted the meeting of minds that has given us, insofar as the leaders in the Democratic and the Republican parties are concerned and involved, the principle that American foreign policy should be nonpartisan and is to be conducted on a bipartisan basis.

Church Hill

On a quest for some data concerning certain events during the American Revolution the writer made a trip to an old graveyard, next to a church on a hill overlooking the little hamlet of Dranesville, Va., on the "pike" about halfway between Washington and Leesburg. The graveyard was such a complicated mass of vines and shrubbery that tombstones were difficult to decipher. However, one was found bearing the early date 1797 and some as late as 1913.

The old church was the interesting feature—just a square red brick building—so plain, no ornate architecture, but a history a Gothic edifice might envy. On this spot a church has stood since 1790, first just a log building where Baptists worshiped many years—next a small brick church—and finally in 1852 the present church was built which has been in continuous use ever since.

Numerous denominations have used it as a house of prayer, and for that reason it was known as "Old Liberty Church." Now it is known as Dranesville M. E. Church, South. With all simplicity it stands on that same spot, known as "Church Hill."

Blood Changes

While I do not desire to detract from the dramatic nature of the news story in your issue of September 23 telling of the remarkable feat of a woman having 32 blood transfusions in 12 hours, I shall have to take exception to the statement of the hospital authorities that the patient's blood changed three times during these operations.

Assuming the best possible conditions for mixing, which certainly did not prevail, my calculations show that the patient did not have even one complete change of blood. Under ideal conditions the calculations show a change of only 97 per cent after 32 transfusions. Under the mixing conditions which would prevail when blood is simultaneously put in one arm and taken out the other the per cent change is considerably less, probably of the order of 70-75 per cent.

It seems, therefore, that the undertaker is still the champion blood-changer, for his substitution of formaldehyde for blood is 100 per cent complete in two operations.

Courteous Test

I would like to commend the courtesy, efficiency, and general good humor of the Virginia State police assigned to the Motor Vehicle Bureau. In less than an hour from the time I left my home 4 miles away from the Arlington station the various sections of the driver's examination were concluded.

Obtaining a driver's license is often considered an unpleasant ordeal, and I had procrastinated because I feared that such might be the case. On the contrary, I found every individual with whom I had any contact to be pleasant and helpful.

Bernadotte's Recommendations

The tragic assassination of Count Bernadotte by outlaws, and the feeling of condemnation which it has universally aroused, are being used by the enemies of Israel as an opportunity to cripple the Jewish state, if they cannot destroy it altogether. They seek to do this under the slogan that Bernadotte's recommendations must be adopted in full as a monument to his memory and in the claimed interest of "peace." These recommendations, which Bernadotte himself admitted in his report were not within his province as mediator to make, require calm analysis in order to understand how disastrous they would be for the state of Israel.

The first recommendation to be noted is that the Negev, consisting of two thirds of the territory of Israel, should be torn away from Israel and handed over to the invading Arab states, preferably Trans-Jordan. The Negev is now practically empty of inhabitants because of lack of water. It provides the only available land reserve for the expected and necessary large Jewish immigration into Israel; the rest of Israel, as well as western Galilee, being already thickly inhabitated. If the Negev should now be lost to Israel the Jewish plan for its irrigation and development would be aborted, and the capacity of the truncated remnant of Israel to absorb new immigrants would be greatly reduced.

Nor is this the only disastrous effect which the implementation of this recommendation would have:

1. The Negev provides the only access of the state of Israel to the waters and minerals of the Dead Sea. Millions of Jewish capital have already been sunk in the building of plants at the Dead Sea for the extraction of these minerals. Competent experts are agreed that these minerals can form the basis of a chemical industry in Israel for the benefit not only of its inhabitants but of the world. The proposal now is to make all this impossible and to turn the whole of the Dead Sea with its minerals over to the Arab states.

2. The Negev gives Israel access to the Gulf of Akaba on the Red Sea, and this renders possible the development of a port to serve the commerce of Israel with the Far East and Africa, without the necessity of routing such commerce through the British-controlled Suez Canal with its heavy tolls.

3. There are well-founded reports to the effect that the Negev contains valuable deposits of oil. This is perhaps the real reason why it is now proposed to take this territory away from Israel and hand it over to a puppet of Britain.

Another recommendation of Bernadotte deserving special notice relates to Jerusalem. The recommendation is that Jerusalem, with its besieged 90,000 Jews, should be put under United Nations "control" without any corridor connecting it with Israel. Jerusalem was wantonly attacked by the Arab states with British-supplied bombs and artillery immediately after the British withdrew from Palestine and has been under seige and attack ever since. It is inconceivable that Israel will ever again consent to leave Jerusalem in the midst of a hostile Arab sea, unconnected with Israel and with no greater security for their lives and property than would be involved in the nominal "control" of the United Nations.

Calling Washington

Oklahoma Edge

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Here in Oklahoma, which is half Southern and half Northern, they are having an old-fashioned political contest. It is politics in the accepted American tradition, with no modern gadgets.

That is to say, neither the Dixiecrats nor the Wallaceites are on the ballot. The race is between Republicans and Democrats, which is why this is one of the few really doubtful States.

While Democratic leaders are purposely not making any claims, the Truman - Barkley ticket may even have a slight edge as of the present. With 21 stops on his two-day schedule, President Truman has campaigned across this State like a candidate for sheriff, trying to increase what may be a small advantage.

If the Dixiecrats and the Wallace party were on the ballot, Democratic defeat would have been certain. Expert observers believe Wallace might have polled 40,000 or 50,000 votes, virtually all of them taken from the Democrats.

In the southern part of the State, settled largely from Texas, Arkansas and the deep South, the Dixiecrats would have taken Democratic votes from the other end of the political scale. In the Democratic primary, Gomer Smith, veteran rabble-rouser, violently harangued the southern counties on the race issue, painting a lurid picture of the races forced to mingle in swimming pools and other public places as a result of the President's civil rights program.

Although he was defeated by former Gov. Robert S. Kerr, Smith got a sizable vote. All the Dixiecrats can do in protest is stay home on election day. If they stay home in numbers, it could have a decisive effect, since the Democrats' best hope is a large turnout November 2.

A SHREWD and resourceful politician, Kerr is taking a neutral stand on civil rights. He has said, that, if elected to the Senate, he will not vote for any law contrary to Oklahoma's State schools.

The real States-righter and opponent of Federal enforcement of civil rights is the Republican senatorial candidate, Representative Ross Rizley. Rizley is running in place of Senator Ed Moore, a wealthy Republican oil man who decided to retire.

Rizley voted against the bill in the House to abolish the poll tax in the Southern States where it is still a prerequisite for voting. Both on the domestic and the international side his record is largely reactionary, and Kerr and the Democrats will use it against him. This may help to offset the appeal of his genial, hearty personality.

Rizley is, in short, an unreconstructed Republican of the predawn, pre-Herbert Hoover era. If Gov. Thomas E. Dewey means to reshape the party and give it a new direction, as his speeches indicate, he will sooner or later have to come to grips with the Rizleys, and particularly if they show up in numbers in the new Congress.

TULSA is a hotbed of unreconstructed Republicanism. Repudiated in the rest of the State, the hard core of isolationist diehards survives there, promoting an organization called pro-America, successor to America First. They are Roosevelt-haters who believe "that man" deliberately brought on the war with all its evil consequences.

These black Republicans do not care for the Dewey campaign nor, for that matter, for Dewey himself. They would have preferred Senator Robert A. Taft, and their real love was Taft's Ohio colleague, Senator John W. Bricker.

They are keeping their criticism of Dewey to the privacy of the club locker room. They will work hard for the GOP ticket and spend money generously, as in the past, in the belief that any Republican is better than a New Deal Democrat.

Oil money is an important commodity in Oklahoma politics. Detached observers guess that Senator Moore spent upward of a half million dollars of his own money in his campaign six years ago.

Kerr is said to be worth 10 million dollars, most of it made in oil. He was a popular Governor and is rated a highly effective vote-getter.

As in certain other States, the weight of both ability and appeal is on the Democratic side when one examines the congressional candidates. Thus, Oklahomans are properly proud of the national reputation won by Representative Mike Monroney of Oklahoma City for his constructive record in the House. With only weak opposition, Monroney seems fairly sure of reelection. Late in October, Dewey will invade this State, and even if he should succeed in carrying it himself it is highly doubtful that he can pull GOP congressional candidates along with him.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Obligations Of The Charter

THE SITUATION in Berlin, now that the Moscow discussions have been broken off, finds that city blockaded on the ground but with the air corridors still open. The Russians cannot make the blockade complete except by shooting down the cargo planes. That would be war. We cannot pierce the blockade except by overpowering the Russian troops who hold the railroads, canals and highways leading into Berlin. That would be war.

LIPPMANN

The crucial question is whether, and how long, this dangerous stalemate will be maintained. It cannot be maintained indefinitely. But in the interval while the stalemate lasts a solution by diplomacy is still possible. This is reflected in the decision of the Western powers to bring the dispute before the United Nations, rather than to deliver an ultimatum.

AN EXAMINATION of our obligations under the Charter and a cool and considered estimate of our vital interests will lead, I think, to the same conclusion: that our soundest and strongest policy is to carry out in full measure the letter and the spirit of the Charter.

We are carrying the Berlin dispute to the Security Council. Article 37 says that "should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that Article, they shall refer it to the Security Council." What are "the means indicated" in Article 33? They are that "the parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, inquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice."

THUS FAR, in the Moscow discussion, we have sought "a solution by negotiation," and have failed. That is why we have come to the United Nations. But now that we have come to the U. N. we are under the obligation as parties to the dispute and as guardians and sponsors of the U. N. to try the other "means indicated" in Article 33, namely "inquiry," or "mediation," or "conciliation," or "arbitration," or "judicial settlement" or "other peaceful means of their (that is to say the Four Powers) own choice."

This is certainly the position we would take if we were not ourselves parties to the dispute—if as a member of the U. N. we were called upon to deal with the dispute between, let us say, Pakistan and India, or between South Africa and India. We can do no less when we are one of the parties to a dispute.

IF THE other "means" are resorted to, we must suppose that in the end the United Nations will recommend a resumption of the discussions about Berlin, which have just been broken off, and of the discussions of a German peace treaty which were broken off last December. So we must be prepared at some stage in the U. N. action to say what we consider to be the essential terms of a German treaty.

For if there is to be anything more than a temporary and precarious truce in Berlin, it can be only because there is a general settlement of the German question. And if there is to be an irrevocable and irreconcilable break between East and West, and a final partition of Germany and of Europe, then our position will be infinitely stronger if the break comes over the future of Germany as a whole than over the rather confused dispute in Berlin.

THE White Paper released last Sunday shows that it was our policy in Moscow to confine the discussions to the issues of the Berlin blockade and the Berlin currency. Thus the White Paper itself deals with the dispute as of March 30 when the Soviet Deputy Military Governor, General Dratvin, announced certain restrictions on travel and freight to Berlin. But the history of the Berlin crisis does not begin on March 30. As early as January 11, the Soviet army newspaper was making threats against our position in Berlin, following the request to the German Minister Presidents by Generals Clay and Robertson on January 7 that they form a bizonal economic administration. As early as January 14 Mr. Lovett was already saying that United States troops would stay in Berlin. Thus the dispute over Berlin had already developed, with many diplomatic exchanges and public declarations, during a period of nearly three months preceding the events dealt with in the White Paper.

The State Department release is not, therefore, a full account of the whole matter, and it could not be used in its present form as a statement which we could submit to the judgment of the United Nations or to the verdict of history.

THE limitations of the White Paper reflect the limitations of our policy—namely the view that the Berlin crisis should be and can be isolated from the German problem as a whole. Whether that was a wise and sound policy during this summer, it is now too late to argue about.

But now that the matter has been carried to the U. N., it will surely have to be reviewed and reexamined.

Off The Record

Republicans 'Afraid' to Stand On Real Issues, Truman Says

applauded often and loudly, except during recitation of statics and records.

As he pushed his speech output past the 100 mark for perhaps the most strenuous campaign grind ever undertaken by a President, Mr. Truman:

Predicted he will live to be 100 (he's 64 now)."

Quoted Chairman Taber (R., N. Y.) of the House Appropriations Committee as having said "to hell with the farmers out West":

Arranged a four-day stumping tour of Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and up-State New York that will take him into Taber's home town of Aburn, N. Y. The trip will begin October 6 and end October 9 and probably will produce around 30 speeches. The major talks will be at night at Philadelphia October 6, Jersey City October 7 and Buffalo October 8.

Completed plans for a 141-mile motor tour that will produce at least seven speeches in Southern Illinois tomorrow morning.

Today the President pushed into eastern Oklahoma and on toward southwestern Missouri, with speeches averaging better than one an hour.

White House officials billed his late afternoon appearance at Tulsa as the most important of the day, with emphasis on farm and public power issues.

At the start this morning Mr. Truman began building up to that subject by jumping on the Republicans and talking about farm programs.

At Shawnee, first stop after his train pulled out of Oklahoma City, Mr. Truman said he had an exact quote from Taber: "To hell with the farmers out West."

(In Auburn, N. Y., Taber said the President deliberately misrepresented him.

("I have never made any such statement and Mr. Truman knew that when he said it," Taber declared.)

President Truman called the committee chairman "one of the worst old mossbacks in Congress."

Taber's committee, he said, voted to cut Agriculture Department funds 37 per cent and thus "put the axe to your program of rural electrification, school lunches and small farm loans and soil conservation."

Democrats in the Senate got most of the cuts restored, the President said. He added if GOP got complete control of the Government, he didn't think "the farmer would have a chance."

He told a depot crowd at Seminole he is trying to "put the issues boldly so you can understand exactly what they are."

At McAlester, where police estimated the crowd at around 22,000, Mr. Truman said the Republicans are afraid to go into campaign issues, but talk about "innocuous things" that have no relation to those issues.

"Before I get through with 'em" he insisted, "I'm going to smoke 'em out, and we are going to know where they stand."

In his 100th speech, at an unscheduled stop at Eufaula, Okla., Mr. Truman said he is putting forth "every effort possible that the President is capable of to get peace in the world so that the next generation will see the greatest age in history—and I believe it will.

"I wish I could see it with you. I'm going to try to see some of it because I expect to live to be a 100 years old."

Warren Says Nation Must Prove Claims

Newark, N. J., Sept. 29 (AP)—Gov. Earl Warren rolled his transcontinental GOP campaign caravan into the Metropolitan New York-New New Jersey area tonight to declare America must prove to the world it is not a nation of boom and bust.

In an address at a Republican rally at the Mosque Theater here, the No. 2 GOP candidate said the Nation should not rest on past accomplishments if a dynamic national economic policy is to be preserved.

Much is yet to be done "to round out our democracy," he declared.

He termed it a job "in which labor, management, agriculture and Government have a joint responsibility."

Warren reached New York City late in the day from Providence, R. I., where he had said that political promises of "quack cure-alls" are "dishonest," and are "trifling with the security of the American people."

He motored tonight to the other side of the Hudson River to tell a Newark audience that it is up to the United States to prove to itself, "and the world, that we can continue to live and prosper in a well-ordered economy."

"We must show that in America we can achieve an economy that will be stable, and that we are not a Nation of boom and bust.

"The dollars earned by workers in the United States must be real dollars—never the worthless script to which some of our European friends have become so accustomed.

"We must also show that we can develop a sound, cooperative relationship between workers and management.

"If our laws affecting the collective bargaining process are, after experience, found to be unnecessary or oppressive, then they can and should be changed . . ."

Warren said the Republican Party is "thoroughly conscious" of distress from the high cost of living, the housing problem, and "the hopes of the American people."

It is desirous of fulfilling those hopes and needs, he said, and of bringing about "unity in our country that will leave us a strong united Nation after November 2."

Texas Secretary of State Certifies Johnson's Name

Austin, Tex., Sept. 29 (AP).—The Secretary of State today certified Lyndon B. Johnson's name for printing on the November general election ballot as Democratic nominee for junior United States Senator from Texas.

Earlier today the Texas Supreme Court announced it would consider a motion for permission to file a mandamus petition forcing Johnson's name on the ballot in Austin at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Attorneys for Johnson filed the motion at Austin, Texas, last night, the latest action in the bitter senatorial contest between Johnson, a United States Representative, and former Gov. Coke R. Stevenson.

United States Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black yesterday ruled in effect that Johnson's name go on the Texas ballot. He stayed a temporary injunction issued by Federal District Judge T. Whitfield Davidson, which had kept Johnson's name off the ballot.

Wallace Target of Texas Eggs

on "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" two lines of which went like this:

"Henry Wallace in the White House"

"Henry Wallace in the White House"

"His truth goes marching on."

Wallace appeared a moment later and the eggs and tomatoes began to fly.

As Wallace left the auditorium, he was guarded by Robeson and Jack Zuckerman, a strapping New York detective, who has been on leave serving as his body guard.

Houston has a Jim Crow law that keeps the races separated in street cars, buses and theaters. However, there is no such law applying to public meetings. Negroes have mingled with whites at political meetings in Houston before this, but tonight's mixed gathering was the biggest the city had ever known.

Wallace, in his speech, went after the most powerful man in town. This was his old foe of New Deal days, Jesse H. Jones, who recently came out for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

He paid tribute to the people of Texas, who have built up the new industrial frontier of the Southwest. Then, tearing into Jones, he said:

"I speak with scorn of those who rob the people of the fruits of this construction—of the big mules, the Northern-owned monopolies, and of their little tails, the Texas millionaires—of Jesse Jones, or Coke Stevenson, of all the old party and Dixiecrat politicians who gave a free hand to the big mules and their little tails."

The presidential nominee of the Progressive Party recalled that he and Jones "used to tangle pretty often up in Washington."

"Now there is one thing I have always held against Jesse," Wallace said, "and maybe it is rather petty of me . . .

"When I replaced him three years ago as Secretary of Commerce, he wrote to Franklin D. Roosevelt and scolded him for placing in that office a man he described as inexperienced in business and finance. He said I was an impractical dreamer, willing to jeopardize the country's future with untried ideas and idealistic schemes.

"This seemed a little unfair . . .

"The fact is, of course, that I am a businessman. I am the only businessman running for the Presidency."

Wallace, who has made millions out of hybrid corn, went on to say that there was no good reason why a businessman could not think of democracy as dynamic rather than static, and work for the extension of democracy and better living standards.

The Iowan devoted a good part of his speech to criticizing President Truman for not making a "ringing declaration" to back up his civil rights program during his tour of Texas.

"If you back down where the challenge is insistent," Wallace said, "you can't expect people to believe you are in earnest."

He recalled Mr. Truman's visit with John Nance Garner and pointed out that Garner had preceded him as Vice President. He added:

"Now Mr. Garner is a picturesque and, in many ways, an estimable gentleman. But he was never noted for his devotion to human rights."

Wallace, the country's foremost needler of Wall Street, took President Truman to task for using that financial stronghold in his oratory. Speaking of inflation, he said:

"Truman blames it on the Republicans and the gluttons of Wall Street. He doesn't mention the 11 out of 18 Texas members of the House of Representatives who voted to kill price control, or the 2 Texas Senators who voted for inflation.

"He doesn't mention the hundred Wall Street gluttons he put in key spots of the Government, where they knocked the props from under price control before Congress voted its death.

"Harry Truman was in Washington when the Roosevelt men were driven out. In fact, he was in the driver's seat. He was the first to capitulate to the Swifts and Armours, and now we are buying Truman hamburgers at a dollar a pound."

Barkley Pins Inflation Tag On Congress

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 29 (U.P.)—Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democratic vice presidential nominee, today denounced the Eightieth Congress for its failure to curb inflation and challenged the GOP to repeal the Taft-Hartley law.

In an address to a luncheon audience of 750, the Kentucky Senator chided Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and Gov. Earl Warren for evading the issues of the campaign.

"The constantly rising cost of living," he said, "affects every family, every housewife, and their budgets. The cost of living has gone up unnecessarily and it could have been curbed had the Republican Eightieth Congress been willing. . . . If it continues, it may undermine the economic stability of our country."

Senator Barkley stressed that in his recent European visit he found satellite nations have slipped behind the "iron curtain" because economic insecurity paved the way for communism.

He criticized industrial profits and blamed the National Association of Manufacturers for trying "to super-impose its authority on the Government of the United States."

"I believe in free enterprise, but the right kind, not the kind that gives a few the right to exploit the many," he said. "It is estimated by the United States Commerce Department and other experts that in 1948 profits will be more than 20 billion dollars after payment of all taxes.

"Certainly industry cannot complain if labor asks—and it is entitled to—a little better share of that profit."

Washington, the presidential-Senate race here was overshadowed by developments in Paris. For the third straight day Dewey topped all of his speeches with a blunt warning to Russia.

"Let me send this message from Great Falls to Paris, and beyond Paris through the iron curtain," he told an audience here tonight.

"The Republican Party is engaged in this campaign for the express purpose of bringing our people closer together so they can realize their great future and find peace with honor in the world.

"And let no dictator, or trigger-happy militarist anywhere make any mistake about that purpose."

Great Falls Turns Out

Booming Great Falls decked its civic auditorium with Dewey-Warren streamers, portraits, and pennants and draped the stage with red, white and blue bunting. Some of the men in the audience wore Dewey picture ties. The white-haired, square-jawed Davis had flown here to meet Dewey. For the first time in Montana they appeared together on the same stage.

At the depot, two pretty girls climbed into a GOP elephant costume and joined the parade, then an estimated 5000 piled into the auditorium for the speech. The crowd was with Dewey, laughed when he said they "hadn't noticed" his previous appearances in the State, and cheered in all the right places.

At every stop Governor Dewey flected the critical nature of Paris teletype reports he is receiving from the man who will probably be his Secretary of State—John Foster Dulles. He has been in frequent telephone conversation, too, with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Mich.) the other member of his foreign policy team.

Foreign Policy Speech

Thursday night at 9:30 p. m., Eastern Standard Time in Salt Lake City, Utah, he will deliver his first major foreign policy speech. His speeches along the way, meanwhile, give many a clew to its content and his over-all strategy.

In fact, Governor Dewey is conducting the kind of campaign many aboard this train think President Truman could have made. It's the kind of campaign Franklin Roosevelt made in 1940 and wartime 1944. Dewey is behaving more like a President-elect than a nominee giving the hinterland the lowdown.

At Great Falls tonight, as earlier in Helena, Spokane, Seattle and Portland, he told the voters the United Nations is facing one of its gravest crisis. He said peace may depend on "making clear to every foreign nation the fact that the American people are united."

"The totalitarian states must not misunderstand what is happening here," he said.

"They must not make the error of believing that because we are exercising our constitutional right to change our Government this Nation is at all split or divided.

"When we change our national administration next January as I firmly believe we will, it will be for the purpose of strengthening our country, cementing our unity, and waging the peace with greater skill and effectiveness."

Reasserting his purpose to "broaden and deepen" America's feeling of unity, he said the world should know that "our differences are only on the surface—underneath we are Americans to the core."

Then, as he has in every speech, he put in a few political licks to keep the crowds yelling, voiced deep indignation at "political efforts to divide us and appeals to special interests which would set one group against another."

The bulk of his speech was then devoted to strictly local problems and his pledge to push western projects with more understanding, competence and "team work" than the Democratic Administration. He continued "proud" of the record of the Eightieth Congress.

En route through Montana, Governor Dewey stopped first at the State capital, Helena, motoring to Mountainside Hill Park to make his speech before a crowd of 7000.

He opened with warm praise of Senate GOP nominee Davis and said he wanted him as a member of his Senate team. He gave a hand, too, to Gov. Sam C. Ford, who isn't doing so well in his race of reelection.

But he soon got around to his foreign policy message and his warning to "all the dictators on earth" that Americans stand united in a crisis. He said America must "stand firmly like a rock for justice and peace, but peace with honor."

Hitting at past handling of foreign relations, he said it had gone "from appeasement to appeasement until finally we are now standing firm."

He promised, under Republican leadership, a foreign policy "that will be so clear and so consistent and so well grounded in understanding of the nature of the peace that no longer will any nation think us weak or wobbling."

To trackside throngs at Wolf Creek and Cascade, Mont., he delivered his "talk less and do more" speech. About 300 turned out in near-freezing weather at each station. He said the bickering and back-biting going on in Washington give the world a false picture of a nation "unfit to govern."

Truman to Get Welcome Here

President Truman will be given a "rousing" reception here Saturday when he returns from his Western campaign tour.

The plans were being made yesterday by District Democrats who hoped to make it the biggest "Welcome Home" the President ever got from the Capital.

Arthur Clarendon Smith, chairman of the District Truman-Barkley Club, said events would include a demonstration at Union Station when the President's train arrives about 10 a. m. and a motorcade from the station to the White House.

Smith said the Democrats hope to get out "at least 100,000 persons" for the station demonstration and to line Constitution ave. for the motorcade.

Leading Capital Democrats, he said, including District Commissioner Guy Mason, will board the President's campaign train in Silver Spring and ride with him into Washington.

R. I. Democrats Rename Slate

Providence, R. I., Sept. 29 (AP).—Rhode Island Democrats tonight chose the same slate that went down the line for the New Deal to battle the Republicans in the November election.

United States Senator Theodore Francis Green and Gov. John O. Pastore won renomination without opposition and two Democratic Congressmen—United States Representatives Aime J. Forand and John E. Fogarty—won in a walk.

Most interest centered in the size of the vote in this long-time Democratic stronghold—home State of Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

The unofficial count indicated the Democratic turnout would run below the vote in the Republican primary.

Governor Pastore, who was unopposed, polled 46,815 votes with only one district missing out of the State's 200.

The Republican primary vote nine days ago was 53,000.

Rhode Island held direct primaries this year for the first time in history. Always before, the major cities chose their tickets by convention.

Members of two of Rhode Island's oldest families will be pitted against one another in the senatorial race in November—Green, the Democrat; Thomas Pierpont Hazard, the Republican.

Representative Forand, who presides over the Democratic caucuses in Congress, won almost 20 to 1 in a three-way contest.

Forand polled 20,675 votes to 1678 for runner-up James P. Brady, jr., of Pawtucket, 265 for Charles R. Napier of Woonsocket.

A 41-year-old blind Probate Court judge—William E. Powers of Cumberland—won the nomination for attorney general.

Open Ballot Gains in Ga.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 29 (U.P.)—The Senate voted today to open the Georgia ballot to all parties but refused to require that presidential electors vote for the candidate who wins the most popular votes.

The legislation, still to be acted on by the House, probably Friday, was favorable to the States' Rights Democrats who by it were assured a place on the Georgia ballot in the general election.

Dominated by supporters of Gov.-Nominate Herman Talmadge, the upper chamber passed the watered-down version of Gov. M. E. Thompson's "free election" bill.

Without a dissenting voice, the Senate amended the measure to require non-Communist affidavits from candidates for elector. Senate President Pro Tempore William T. Dean of Conyers who co-authored this amendment said it was aimed at Henry Wallace's Progressive Party.

Dixiecrats Appeal To Oklahoma Court

Oklahoma City, Sept. 29 (AP).—States Rights Democrats asked the Oklahoma Supreme Court today to order their ticket on the November 2 general election ballot.

In a mandamus action, the party contended it was legally organized in Oklahoma at a State convention here August 14.

Communists Disclaim Wanting GOP to Win

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Communist Party tonight labeled as "a desperate lie" President Truman's assertion that the Communists seek the election of a Republican President.

President Truman said yesterday in a speech at Oklahoma City that Communists are backing Henry Wallace's third party "because they want a Republican victory in November."

Eugene Dennis, general secretary of the Communist Party, said in a statement the party "is uncompromisingly opposed to Dewey, the Republican, as it is to Truman, the Democrat. It is working for the defeat of both."

Updycke, you card!

Updycke, the executive-type mannequin in the Albert Manion window, said recently, "Hey, fellows, Manion spelled backwards is Nolnam!" Well, backwards or forwards, Albert Manion is undoubtedly the place to buy good office furniture. The place is at 1742 K St. N.W.

"ISLE OF MAN" SUITS

from Cloth Imported from the Isle of Man in Irish Sea

From the Isle of Man, which lies between England and Ireland, we received a shipment of rugged and durable homespuns.

This particular island is famous for its cats which have no tails, for Hall Caine, the novelist but above all, for colorful and interesting tweeds and homespuns.

We handed the Manx homespuns to a fine tailor who produced, in the classic American manner, suits, jackets and topcoats in traditional three-button styles. At the prices, the values are extraordinary for these smart, honest, long-wearing clothes.

Isle of Man 3 pc. Suits, $72.50
Isle of Man Sports Jackets, $50
Isle of Man Topcoats, $72.50

Gas Firm's New Issue Priced at $21.50 a Share

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington Gas Light Co. has fixed a price of $21.50 a share for its offering of 102,000 shares of no-par common stock. Final approval was granted yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission and the registration with the SEC also became effective.

Rights were mailed yesterday to present stockholders, permitting them to subscribe on the basis of one new share at $21.50 for each five shares of record September 29. At yesterday's bid price of $23 a share for gas stock, the rights apparently are worth about 25 to 30 cents each. Trading in the warrants is expected to start today on the over-the-counter market. The rights will expire October 13.

Any new stock not bought by present shareholders will be offered to the public by a local underwriting group of 10 investment dealers, headed by Johnston, Lemon & Co., and First Boston Corp. In a similar offering last January, 85 per cent of the new stock was bought by old stockholders.

The PUC, in approving the issue, said: "The offering price of $21.50 . . . related to the current dividend rate of $1.50 a year, will provide a yield of 7 per cent. This appears to be in line with yields of other recent issues of common stock by utilities companies in general. Furthermore, the underwriting fee of 75 cents a share, or 3½ per cent of the offering price, is somewhat lower than the average of such underwriting fees on similar issues."

As explained previously, proceeds of the new stock issue will be used for extensions of the gas firm's facilities to meet the needs of new customers.

PREDICTIONS: A raise in individual income taxes, unchanged corporate tax rates and no "frontal" legislation against inflation are predicted by Donald Young for the next congressional session. Young, legislative coordinator of the United States Chamber of Commerce, addressed the opening session yesterday of the International Association of Electrical Leagues in the Mayflower. The November elections and the possibility of war stand between business and a clear view of what to expect when Congress convenes next January, he said. The IAEL delegates also heard technical talks by various local association leaders. The thirteenth annual conference will continue through Saturday.

Bankers Blame High Prices on U. S. Spending

Detroit, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Nation's commercial bankers decided after a four-day session today that they have had little to do with causing inflation.

Government spending, they claimed, has been the major cause of high prices. Bankers, though, are willing and anxious to do what they can to stop inflationary trends.

They elected a new president and heard one of the Nation's best-known economists tell them that good times are here for a little time at least.

They heard a top-level insurance man fire both barrels at their lending policies—and did not offer an official reply.

The last session of the bankers approved a set of resolutions which included the following statement, approved by approximately half of the more than 4000 bankers who attended the seventy-fourth annual meeting of the American Bankers Association:

"The causes of our present inflation are largely beyond the control of banking as they are primarily due to huge Government spending which is furthered by public policies brought about through the influence of pressure groups both in Congress and in Government administration."

For their new president they elected an Indianapolis banker, Evans Woollen, jr., the son of an Indiana banker and the chairman of the Fletcher Trust Trust Co., which his father helped to establish.

Dr. Marcus Nadler, professor of finance at New York University and an economist highly regarded in the world of finance, offered the bankers one of the most optimistic messages of any speaker.

"The immediate outlook for business and banking," Nadler said, "is for a continuation of the inflationary boom, a high level of business activity, full employment, large national income, and an increase in the volume of loans accompanied by a moderate firming in money rates."

During the convention, Thomas J. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Co., told a group of businessmen that the lending policies of commercial bankers were a major contribution to inflation. Parkinson did not put all the blame on the bankers because, he said, they were under the domination of the Federal Reserve System, a group he termed "political bankers."

Parkinson, in particular, charged that bankers were selling their Government bonds at prices guaranteed by the Government and using the proceeds to make commercial loans.

Joseph M. Dodge, the retiring president of the ABA and president of the Detroit bank, was scheduled to counterattack Parkinson's remarks at a press conference, but at the last minute the conference was called off.

Scores of individual bankers were asked to comment on Parkinson's talk. Almost to a man they were critical; but none would permit the use of his name.

Manufacturers' Sales in Rally

Manufacturers' sales during August recovered from a July dip by rising $1,500,000,000 to a total volume of $17,900,000,000, equaling the figure for last June.

August's increase over July was twice as great as that of a year ago, the Commerce Department said yesterday.

The report gave chief credit for the sales pickup to soft goods, where a more seasonal increase in textile and clothing makers' sales paced a nearly one-billion-dollar rise over July and made total nondurable goods sales for the month $10,900,000,000.

Sales for the durable goods group advanced 500 million dollars, from the July level to a total of seven billion dollars, slightly below June. Metal producing groups showed the greatest improvement.

IF STOMACH BALKS DUE TO GAS AND BLOAT

Help Get Food Digested to Relieve Yourself of This Nervous Distress

Do you feel all puffed-up and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in helping your stomach do the job—it should be doing—in the digestion of its food.

Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

States Asked To Modernize Safety Laws

A proposal that each State review and modernize its laws for industrial safety was made here yesterday at the close of the preliminary conference on national industrial safety.

This was one of a broad series of recommendations prepared for an ambitious agenda of the Nation's first full-fledged industrial safety conference to be held here in March.

Nearly 400 labor, business and Government representatives yesterday concluded their three days of organization and planning for the March conference, expected to be attended by 2000 delegates. President Truman had launched the drive for such a safety organization by calling on Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, who in turn summoned the preliminary conference.

Tobin, during the conference, stated that industrial accidents across the Nation injure one worker every 16 seconds.

The preliminary conference's committee on laws and regulations recommended that the President suggest to the Governor of each State a review of all existing laws and regulations involving industrial safety.

Other recommendations from the preliminary conference included extensive research into existing accident records to determine psychological and environmental factors involved; uniformity of labor codes; safe design and layout of plants and equipment; desired safety programs in schools, civic groups, labor unions, etc.

British Outlook Brightens

London, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Glowing official reports predicted today that Britain will be back on her financial feet by the time the Marshall Plan ends in 1952.

A Treasury statement said great increases in farm products and output of steel, coal, and electric power, combined with continued "austerity" for the individual Briton, would wipe out the country's unfavorable trade balance during the four-year period.

The Manchester cotton board announced that cotton cloth production had broken all records during the July-September quarter, assuring Britain of her best cotton export year since the war.

A spokesman at the Treasury said work has been completed on a four-year recovery program which Britain will submit to the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, governing body of the Marshall Plan.

The spokesman said that the "biggest thing the report shows" is an increase in agricultural output which eventually will reduce Britain's dependence on overseas food sources.

"Compared with prewar, the figures show that by 1952-53 the production of grain will be nearly doubled," he said.

The Trades Union Conference plans a convention in London November 18, at which affiliated unions will begin to study ways of increasing the productive capacity of the individual worker and improving management techniques.

2 Billion for Africa

London, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Herbert Morrison, lord president of the council, told native leaders of Britain's African empire today that Britain plans to spend nearly two million dollars in developing her strategic position and social services on the Dark Continent.

Pioneers' Story A Quiet Delight

By Richard L. Coe

KEITH'S "Rachel and the Stranger" is the sort of picture that makes movie-going a pleasure. Quiet, restrained and gently humorous, it is a well-written film about the Ohio backwoods of 150 years ago.

It does not try to bean you over the head with anything colossal. It does not browbeat you with preachments about our noble forefathers. It does not promise the most sensational romance ever filmed. It tells its simple story neatly and lets it go at that.

This in itself is novel, and it's further unique in that it marks the first film to be released with Robert Mitchum as a star since his spicily publicized L'Affaire Weed. It is to the picture's credit as well as Mitchum's that he comes off pleasantly in a sympathetic role.

One almost quakes to report it, especially in a Washington newspaper, but the screen play stems from a story by Howard Fast, who is not precisely in the good graces of you know what. Whether Fast inserted any of his diabolical propaganda into his original short story I don't know, but if there is any in this film, you'll have to spell it out for me.

The story simply concerns a lonely, hardworking young widower whose wife's death on their lonely frontier farm has shocked his spirit; he's wretchedly lonely, and even the bondswoman he gets to live with him and his son so the youngster won't get "woodsy" means nothing to him, though for propriety's sake he's had to be legally married to her.

"RACHEL AND THE STRANGER." RKO-Radio release for Dore Schary production. Produced by Richard H. Berger. Screenplay by Waldo Salt from the story, "Rachel," by Howard Fast. Songs by Roy Webb and Salt (lyrics). Photographed by Maury Gertsman. Directed by Norman Foster at Keith's.

THE CAST

Rachel	Loretta Young
Big Davey	William Holden
Jim	Robert Mitchum
Little Davey	Gary Gray
Parson Jackson	Tom Tully
Mrs. Jackson	Sara Haden
Mr. Green	Frank Ferguson
Gallus	Walter Baldwin
Mrs. Green	Regina Wallace

Not Too Many Indians

His loneliness and hers are broken by the yearly visit of a roaming friend, the stranger of the title, a guy whose friendliness contrasts with the widower's locked-up nature. The stranger makes Rachel an offer of marriage, but it results in just what you feel he wants: the widower's eyes are opened and his tyke gets the mother he needs.

There is an honesty and directness in the screen lay by Waldo Salt that's thoroughly admirable. The feel of the frontier atmosphere is neatly conveyed without too great a load of quaintness.

You smile gently when the two men and Rachel appear successively in their best clothes and explain, "It's the Sabbath." You get a feeling of awe as the young father describes how they brought a spinnet to the lonely cabin. And you'll probably admire the restraint with which a Shawnee raid is pictured, again not the colossal swooping you might find in other films, but in a foray that can be just as deathly in its modesty.

Thanks to Salt's able script and Norman Foster's controlled direction, the four central characters admirable, it seemed to me, is are winningly drawn. Particularly William Holden's widower, a man who can't seem to get at his inner thoughts and yearnings, let alone put them into the words Rachel so longs to hear. He is the right figure of a man for the part and it seemed to me he'd found the heart of the fellow.

Mitchum fits nicely into the frame, though his off-screen publicity is in the paradoxical position of probably luring people to see a film they might otherwise pass up but, at the same time, of drawing attention from the main character, Holden. It is certainly his most sympathetic role in many and he does it effectively.

Loretta Young's Rachel is straightforward as she should be. The role of bondswoman in our history may be new to you; Rachel finds herself one because her father died in debt. Gary Gray, a boyish towhead, completes the quartet.

"Rachel and the Stranger" is almost sensationally unsensational, a footnote of history but far more real than most pretentious movie chapters.

TRAVELER'S JOY: Robert Mitchum, as a thoroughly gentlemanly type, though a drifter, brings his song and the light of pleasure to Loretta Young in "Rachel and the Stranger." William Holden plays her husband in Keith's gentle story of Ohio frontier life in the early 1800's

THE BARTER Theater is set for an Alexandria performance next Tuesday night at George Washington High School . . . "The Pursuit of Happiness" is the Barter's first offering of the season in these parts and the performance will be under sponsorship of the Alexandria chapter of the American Association of University Women . . . This is the third annual benefit the group has sponsored, with proceeds going to the AAUW Fellowship Fund . . . Further information from Mrs. A. D. Bartelt, Temple 8399.

TONIGHT'S the night for Alexandria's benefit aiding the family of the late Robert Harris, the policeman recently killed in line of duty . . . And the picture's a good one, the tongue-in-cheek "Emperor Waltz," with Bing Crosby and Joan Fontaine . . . The show starts at the Virginia Theater at 7 o'clock . . . This afternoon, the State of Israel will screen two films for an invited audience, postponed from September 17 in the Interior Auditorium at 5:30 . . . "Israel in Action" and "The Illegals" are the films.

Oklahoma U. Negro Ban Ruled Illegal

Oklahoma City, Sept. 29 (AP).—Barring of a Negro graduate student from the University of Oklahoma was held unconstitutional today.

A three-judge Federal Court did not order his immediate admission, however.

Instead, it gave the State time to amend its segregation laws to permit all Negroes to enroll for courses not available in separate schools.

Gov. Roy J. Turner promised the court in a letter this will be done.

The Negro graduate student who appealed to the court is G. W. McLaurin.

A retired professor, he tried to enter the university to complete work on a doctor's degree in education.

University officials admitted he was barred solely because he is a Negro.

Langston University, the State's only Negro college, does not provide the degree he seeks.

"In so far as the Oklahoma statutes deny or deprive admission of the plaintiff to the university they are unconstitutional and void," said the Federal Court opinion.

It was read by United States Circuit Judge A. P. Murrah, concurred in by Bower Broaddus and Edgar S. Vaught.

All three are Oklahomans.

"We refrain at this time from granting injunction relief on the assumption that the State will follow the law," the judges said.

"The plaintiff," the court ruled, "is entitled to secure a postgraduate education in this State by a State institution.

"To this, he has been denied and deprived, although his application has been duly made.

"At the same time the education was afforded by the State to other groups.

"The State is under constitutional duties to provide the plaintiff with equal facilities as soon as to other students."

Pope Cautions 'Modern' Girl

that permanent familiarity with the other sex, the equality of occupation and behavior, although restrained for a while within the limits of strict morality, expose her to violate these limits sooner or later," the Pontiff said.

Despite her lack of restraint and "sometimes even masculine mentality," the modern girl still retains the "indelible" characteristics of her sex, Pope Pius said. She either lets herself be "trapped" by temptation or sometimes even "takes the plunge of her own accord with head lowered."

The Pope addressed Catholics from 23 nations taking part in the current eleventh congress of the association in Rome.

He told them their greatest obstacle was not the hostility of those "who traffic shamelessly to enrich themselves in what is horridly but with exact hardness called 'white slavery,'" but the indifference and heedlessness of people who believe themselves to be correct Christians.

Interne Training In Homes Urged

A recommendation that hospitals extend interne service to the homes was made here yesterday by Dr. William S. McCann, professor of medicine at the University of Rochester, N. Y.

Such a move, Dr. McCann said, would give medical students insight into "the environmental factors in which disease originates" and "needed experience" in general medical practice.

He further advocated that today's place for expert psychiatrists, "in view of the exceedingly small numbers of psychiatrically trained doctors," is in the general medical and surgical wards of hospitals.

"Working side by side with trained psychiatrists," he said, "our general medical practitioners will gain insight and learn the techniques of family guidance toward psychological as well as physical health."

Dr. McCann spoke on "Trends in Medical Education" at a concluding day session of the three-day, nineteenth annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society, at Hotel Statler. Present trends, he said, point to return to the "art" of healing of the old-time family doctor and to increased emphasis on "illness in terms of man's social environment."

Surgeon General Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, another speaker at the same session, told of progress in expansion of United States Public Health Service work, including its entrance into a new field, "studies on the disposition of radioactive wastes."

Further details of the new project were supplied by a spokesman for the Atomic Energy Commission. At present, he said, waste matters from atomic energy plants are disposed of by burial in the ground, dispersement in running water in nonpopulated areas, and dissipation into the air.

Dr. Rudolph L. Baer, consultant in dermatology at Monmouth Memorial Hospital, Long Beach, N. Y., told delegates to an afternoon session of prevailing misconceptions on poison ivy. He termed fallacious general beliefs that (1) the skin condition is spread by the hands, and (2) the irritations should be scrubbed by soap and water.

There is medical proof, Dr. Baer said, that the fluid exuded in poison ivy cases is free of the irritant that causes its eruption. As to why the irritation spreads, he said the "belief" is that the original contaminations occur in various parts of the body, but that the different areas have different degrees of sensitivity, and thus break out at delayed intervals.

Improved methods of medical study of infertility in women were described by Dr. M. Edward Davis, professor of obstetrics and gynecology of the University of Chicago. Of particular aid to such studies, he said, is a method to locate obstructions in the female reproductive tract.

The method, termed lipiodal visualization, consists of flooding the tract with an opaque substance in oil, and X-raying the area at various intervals to determine its dispersion. By study of the X-rays, he said, it is easy to find any "blocks" that exist.

Apropos of his findings, he said that one out of every four women who came complaining of childlessness and with a fear they could not have children became pregnant within four months after the tests convinced them they were physically normal.

'Nearly 400' Doctors Got Special Calls

Is there a doctor in the house? Special calls for physicians by name numbered "nearly 400" during the scientific assembly of the District Medical Society.

The estimate of doctors paged by lantern slide signals and over assembly microphones was made by attendants specially detailed for the assignment.

Actual number of physicians and members of allied professions who registered during the assembly was just under 2800, according to Dr. Robert H. Groh, general chairman.

Cruisers End Ambulance Aid

Emergency ambulance service, provided by 15 District police scout cars since early in the war, will be discontinued October 1.

The precincts were ordered yesterday by Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, to remove the stretchers from their scout cars. All scout cars, however, will carry first aid kits and blankets. The seven police patrol wagons will continue to carry stretchers.

Use of scout car stretchers will be discontinued because they interfere with the radio transmitter when stored in the smaller trunks of the new autos, Barrett said.

Increased ambulance service, through the ambulance control center, since the war has ended the need for emergency scout car service, he added.

Taking Pictures

Seems Strange, But You Do Need Your Flash Bulb Outside

Notice how supplementary flash illumination has struck a pleasing balance with the sunlight side-lighting in this picture. Synchrosun technique will improve your sunlight pictures if you understand how to use flash bulbs

By Ollie Atkins

THE use of photoflash bulbs out-of-doors and even when the sun is shining brightly puzzles many on-lookers and is somewhat of a mystery to many photographers.

We have all seen photography amateurs wandering around with complete synchronized flash outfits and popping flash bulbs every time they make a so-called picture. These bulb wasters are particularly thick at football games where they flash bulbs at action moving too fast for their slow shutters anyway and too far for the flash to be effective.

But there is a place for flash bulbs outdoors even in the brightest light. In fact, the brighter the sun is the more you need the flash effect. Synchro-sun is the term usually referred to when natural sunlight is supplemented with synchronized flash. But what purpose is served by flashing bulbs outdoors? The additional light from the flash cuts heavily into natural shadow areas. This is the principal purpose of synchro-sun photography.

Limits of Film

When you expose correctly in sunlight it is only natural that the latitude of the film cannot possibly compensate for the difference in light between the brightly illuminated areas in the direct sunlight and the concealed shadow sections under hats, in eyes and below chins and noses. This is where your extra light from a flash bulb will work wonders.

The pitfall in synchro-sun photography is the improper balance of flash light to existing sunlight. Here is how to figure your light properly. Take a meter reading of the subject in the identical manner you would without any thought of synchro-sun. This will give you the correct exposure for the entire subject—highlights and shadows. Set your camera lens for the same aperture indicated with your meter. Now it is up to you to place your flash bulb just a little farther (about 2 feet) from the subject than you should for a correctly exposed flash picture at the lens stop you have already selected from your meter reading. This produces the correct lighting balance for beautiful sunlight pictures.

Watch Distance

You do not use synchro-sun methods for any subjects which are beyond the effective range of the flash unit. This naturally contains your operations to less than 20 feet.

To be absolutely accurate the flash unit should be taken off the camera and mounted on a light stand so it can be placed at just the correct distance from the subject. This is impractical in many instances and you will find that a white handkerchief tucked in between the bulb and reflector will subdue the flash about the right amount for 4 to 6-foot shots. Of course, the size of your flash bulb will affect the flash exposure. In this discussion I have had popular peanut sized No. 5 bulbs in mind, although the same principle holds for any larger bulb.

Have you ever noticed how the news photographers shoot bulbs at 5 feet then back up to 10 feet and make another picture with the same size bulb mounted right with the camera for both pictures? In such a case the photographer would have underexposed his close-up shot getting just hot light from the flash. On the other picture he probably used the correct balance. Had he backed away from the subject say 15 feet the flash would have been ineffective unless he overexposed the negative.

Filter Effect

If you do not expose properly or get too much flash in your synchro-sunpicture, then you will have a hopeless negative. The background and sky area will be overdark in the print. The foreground and subject will be flat and without modeling light.

Some photographers use synchro-sun methods to get the filter effect of a darkened sky. It is possible to use your flash outdoors for filter effects but I urge you to use your filters for this purpose and stick to flash for true synchro-sun effects.

2 New Cases Boost Polio Total to 178

Two new polio cases were reported in Greater Washington yesterday by the Health Department, raising the year's total to 178, compared with 35 for this date last year.

The new cases were a 3-year-old girl in the 500 block of M st. sw., who entered Gallinger Hospital yesterday, and a 9-year-old boy from the 600 block of 3d st. sw., who entered Gallinger Monday.

The District total is now 99, and the figure for nearby areas of Virginia and Maryland is 79.

The Virginia total is now 421 as the result of a new case in Southampton County.

Meanwhile, the Children's Bureau of the Social Security Administration here announced grants of $75,000 for rehabilitation of polio-stricken children in Virginia and in North Carolina.

Dr. Edwin F. Daily, director of health services, said the bureau "would have liked to grant more" but could not spare additional funds. The bureau already has granted more than $400,000 to the two States since the fiscal year began July 1.

Reclamation Bureau To Discharge 2882

By The Associated Press

Reclamation Commissioner Michael W. Straus said yesterday the Reclamation Bureau is discharging 2882 of its 18,000 employes in the West to comply with a congressional limitation on funds for salaries.

The firing of 2882, he said, will save an estimated $5,893,200 during the remainder of the year ending next July 1.

This brings bureau operations within 1 per cent of the 48-million-dollar limitation placed on personal services in the 1949 Interior Department Appropriation Act, Straus told a news conference.

Among Women

Drop Shown In Cancer Death Rate

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The anti-cancer campaign of American women has paid off with the lowest malignancy death rate on record, and the most cures, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. statisticians reported today.

This improvement is mostly confined to women. The credit is given to the educational campaign largely directed by women, and to cancer detection clinics, whose patrons have been mostly women.

The death rate among the company's white female policyholders has declined in the last 15 years from 93.5 per thousand persons, to 82.9 in 1947.

The five-year-cures have risen from 25 per cent of those treated to 40 per cent. Rise in cures is due both to educating people to go earlier for medical treatment, and to improved skills of physicians in recognizing cancer and treating it.

This study shows also that all ages of women shared about equally in the falling death rate, and the percentage of cures. The ages studied were from 25 to 74.

The Metropolitan's statistics cover a wide cross-section of American women in the middle income class brackets.

Deportation as Nazis Fought By German War Orphan, Sister

Los Angeles, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—An 18-year-old German war orphan, whose foster parents asked that he and his sister be deported because they are "Nazis," pleaded with immigration officials today to hear his side of the story.

The youth, Hans Prufer, said he fled from the home of his adoptive parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Noltimier, Whittier, Calif., and is living with a Whittier tailor, who, Hans said, wants to become his guardian.

W. A. Carmichael, of the immigration and naturalization service, promised an investigation.

The Noltimiers have applied to the State Department in Washington for exit visas to deport Hans and his 13-year-old sister, Karen, brought to America several months ago.

The Noltimiers, who have refused to discuss the case, told the State Department neither of the children could be made into "good Americans."

"I am not a Nazi," Hans told Carmichael. "I never have been. I believe in the American way of life. I want to become an American citizen and I would like to join the Army. My sister has the same attitude I have."

Heath Breaks Ankle; Tribe, Boston, Yanks All Win

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—This Boston College team that Georgetown is playing on Friday night in Griffith Stadium is definitely a good one, just as definitely not to be trusted, and bears watching on several counts.

POVICH

Their T-formation as coached by Denny Myers is something special, and when Quarterback Ed Songin lines up under the center it may be just a snare and delusion to confound the enemy. The other night against Wake Forest, T-Quarterback Songin never came into contact with the ball on one touchdown play. The center snapped it through Songin's legs on a direct pass to Fullback Ed Clasby and that worthy threw a touchdown pass.

They beat the Wake Forest club 26 to 9 that night, with Wake Forest failing to score until the last four minutes. Up here in Boston they are saying that B. C. Coach Myers was "rather decent" toward the Deacons in permitting his reserves to stay in the game in the late minutes with his well-rested regulars available to turn back the visitors from Carolina.

MYERS HAS a high flexibility in his backfield. Clasby was a quarterback until Songin came along to out-perform him at that post, whereupon Clasby moved to fullback to give the Eagles a pair of forward passing threats in the same backfield—a rarity on a T-formation team. And there is nothing constant, either, about Myers' T-formation. The Eagles go into a tricky wing-T, frequently.

The T-formation is old stuff at B. C. anyway. If Stanford was the first college team to popularize the T, then Boston College was the second. Myers installed it in 1941. He learned the T from the old masters, George Halas and Clark Shaugnessy, when he was playing with the Chicago Bears. Carl Brumbaugh, the old Bear quarterback, helped him put it in.

In beating Wake Forest, the Eagles licked a team that had outscored them 14-13 last season. But this B. C. team is better, awfully heavy and awfully good up front, and with two backs who can throw and two ends who can catch what they throw. And then they have Jet Joe Diminick who is the people's choice up this way.

MR. DIMINICK is the character in the Eagles' backfield. He is only a 5-foot-7-inch, 155-pound character who could be mistaken for the club's waterboy when the Eagles trot on the field, but he is a big man in the Eagles' scheme of things with special talents for scoring touchdowns.

Diminick comes from Kulpmont, Pa., the native heath of Heavyweight Joe Baksi, a fact that is of no special pride to the former. Dimminick is the chap who raced 40 yards through Villanova last season for the only touchdown of a 6-0 victory for the Eagles. He's another confounding item about the Eagles. Diminick is little, but he's no scat-back.

He specializes in short cuts through the line. When he scored against Villanova, it was 40 yards inside tackle. The other night against Wake Forest, he improved on that performance, romping through tackle for a 41-yard touchdown play. He's not fast, they say up here, just furious. They claim he has three changes of pace and five shifts.

UP FRONT, the Eagles are massive. For this Boston team, Art Donovan, the fight referee who used to be a featherweight, fathered a 230-pound guard who is Art Donovan, jr. He isn't the bigboy of the Eagles' line, however. Ernie (The Horse) Stautner who plays alongside him at tackle, has whittled himself down to a svelt 240 pounds. Chet Lipka, the other tackle, is a mere 225-pounder, and th eother guard, Dom Papaleo, is a wisp of a fellow weighing only 220.

John Fury, the Eagles' captain, can't quite make the club, which is something of a tip-off; at least he doesn't start at one of the tackle jobs. The Eagles aren't hot at center, though. Their 265-pound regular, Ed Kennedy, is being hospitalized with a concussion that is keeping him out.

Stan Goode, the good end, is perhaps the most incredible player on the Eagles, though. He's on the team to the great surprise of the coaching staff, the alumni and the talent-scouting machinery. He walked in from Fitchburg, Mass., absolutely unsolicited, one day and said he'd like to play football. A latter-day miracle.

Laurel Opens 25-Day Meet Today With Capital 'Cap

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

The Maryland Jockey Club, always eager to go big in racing, opens the 25-day meeting at nearby Laurel in style with a near-record field of 19 named overnight for the $70,000-added Capital Handicap

Today's feature, in its thirty-second running, failed to lure Calumet's Coaltown but has an array of sprinting talent that should provide plenty of action.

The 6-furlong sprint, not the tops monetarily, has proven one of the most sought after prizes since the Anne Arundel County track began business in 1911. Only two larger fields have been named for the Capital. Twice the race had to be split, the last time in 1945.

Joe W. Brown's King Dorsett will carry top weight of 116 pounds and the weights range down to 104 pounds on P. A. Rothfuss' Gain a Foot. King Dorsett drew the assignment for some brilliant efforts this season including his second in the Camden Handicap at Garden State.

Handicapper and Racing Secretary Charles J. McLennan placed 115 pounds on the Grand View Stable's Erigeron, winner of the Rumson and second in two recent stakes. The Pentagon Stable's The Doge carries the same weight.

Maryland has a strong representative in H. G. Bedwell's Daily Dip, winner of the Myrtle Wood in Chicago and due for an impost of 114 pounds. Another high weight is Myron Newmeyer's Turbine at 113. Turbine was the winner of the Narragansett Spring Handicap.

Calumet will take its chances with Pep Well, due to tote 112, the same as Christiana's Alexis, Brookfield Farms' Istan, D. K. Kerr's Flying Weather and Brown

Braves Lose Hard-Hitting Outfielder For Series

Brooklyn, Sept. 29 (AP).—Jeff Heath, slugging outfielder of the Boston Braves, will be lost to his team for the World Series.

Heath suffered a fracture of his left ankle sliding home in an attempt to score in the sixth inning in today's game against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

With two out in the sixth Heath doubled to left center. Bill Salkeld followed with a single to right and Heath was cut down at the plate trying to score.

His ankles locked on the slide to plate and when he couldn't disentangle them, Dodger Catcher Roy Campanella reached down and freed his ankles. Players from both sides rushed out and Heath was quickly carried on a stretcher to the Boston clubhouse.

Southworth said he had no idea as to a replacement but it was understood he would ask Commissioner A. B. Chandler that the Braves be permitted to bring up either Marv Rickert or Jim Gleeson from Milwaukee.

Johnny Sain went the route for the Braves and allowed seven hits in gaining his 23rd win of the year against 15 defeats.

Post Grid Contest Begins Next Week

GETTING READY FOR CONTEST—Checking up on his football knowledge is Trygve Tuve, 15-year-old Chevy Chase, Md., lad who last year won two of The Washington Post's "Pick-the-Winner" football contests. He's all set for this year's contest which begins next week.

Weekly Winners to Receive Free Trip to Army-Navy Game

THE OTHER DAY a reader of the Washington Post who signed herself "A Feminine Fan" wrote to the Sports Editor:

"My interest in football over the Nation was considerably increased last year during your Pick-the Winners contest.

"I have been watching The Washington Post this fall for some indication that you would resume the contest this season.

"My husband and I are only one of many couples who enjoyed the contest so thoroughly last year and I feel that we should let you know how eager we are, as well as other football fans we know, for the resumption of this contest."

Fine, Dear Lady, and this story is to let you know as well as thousands of others who participated in the 1947 contest that The Washington Post will conduct another weekly Pick-the-Winners contest this season.

The 1948 contest will begin next week for games of October 9.

As last year, the contest will include 20 of the major college games each week. Contestants will select the winner (or tie) of each of these games.

A twenty-first (21st) game will be listed on which the "Probably Score" will be forecast by each contestant.

Once again the winner each week will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia November 27. He also will receive an all-expenses-paid trip to the big game for two persons.

In addition, the person submitting the most accurate entry each week will receive four (4) tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. This game will be selected by The Washington Post and announced well in advance of the game.

Remember that this is a contest of skill, designed to reward those who know their teams and are students of football. So be sure to study the accounts of the teams each week.

Complete rules of the contest will be published next week.

The list of games on which you will pick the winners for October 9 will be published next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Yanks Edge A's, 3-2, on Bauer's Home Run; Bosox Whip Nats, 5-1, to Keep Hopes Alive

Griffs Hit Kinder Hard, But Sox Wallop Masterson to Triumph

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Boston, Sept. 29.—Boston's fading Red Sox staved off rigor mortis and breathed a faint flicker into their pennant hopes today with a 5-1 victory over Washington.

But on a day when they won a ball game, the plight of the Red Sox worsened. Out in Cleveland, the Indians were battering out a victory of their own over Chicago to maintain a full two-game lead with the hourglass fast running out.

The Red Sox maintained their second-place tie with the Yankees, but their only hope lies now in disaster for Cleveland in the league leader's last three games of the season. The Indians need only one victory to clinch a tie, two to win the pennant no matter what the deeds of the Red Sox and Yankees.

Kinder Stops Nats

Today, 34-year-old Ellis Kinder gave the Red Sox an adrenlin shot with his pitching against the Nats, clipping their fiave-game winning streak and shutting them out in the last six innings.

A die-hard crowd of only 7247 Bostonians were in the stands as the Red Sox piled into Walter Masterson in the third inning, drove him out with a three-run barrage, and presented a 4-1 lead to Kinder.

The Nats, playing it to the hilt, raked Kinder for 11 hits and shuttled five of their own pitchers into the game, in high futility, leaving 13 men on the bases.

Dom DiMaggio's double to the left-field wall on Masterson's first pitch of the game burgeoned as a Boston run when, with two out, Vern Stephens lashed a three-bagger to center.

Masterson himself helped get that run back with a single to center in the third, and scored from second base when Stewart singled off Goodman's glove. But in their own half of the inning Masterson was laid waste by the combined assaults of the Red Sox and his own Nats.

Boston's three-run inning commenced with singles by Pesky and Williams, and then the Nats proceeded to mishandle Williams' single to right. Sherry Robertson's rifle throw was fumbled successively by Kozar and Christman, and Pesky danced home from third with Williams reaching that base. Stephens was safe on a wild throw by Christman, Stan Spence singled for the second run of the inning and Goodman's long fly fetched in the third.

Sid Hudson finally got the side out. Dick Welteroth held the Sox scoreless for two innings. They got a run off Forrest Thompson in the seventh to complete their scoring.

The Nats were hitting Kinder freely but not in the clutches. With the bases full in the fifth, Yost pounded into a double play, and with the bases full in the sixth Robertson grounded out.

Porterfield Decisions Mackmen As Rookie Slams 3-Run Homer

By Gayle Talbot

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (AP).—A pair of Yankee rookies, Bob Porterfield and Hank Bauer, kept the pennant light gleaming faintly in the window for the world champions today.

All but ready to concede the flag after yesterday's trouncing by the A's, Bucky Harris' New York crew bounced back behind Porterfield's steady 10-hit pitching and a towering three-run homer by Bauer to win the second of the vital three-game series, 4 to 2.

Although the scoreboard showed the fading champs that both Cleveland and Boston also won and that the games to play were running out on them fast, the champs took grim satisfaction in taking today's contest.

"At least we're not going to hand it to them on a platter," Harris said. "They're still going to have to win it."

The Indians, by whipping Chicago 5-2, maintained their two-game edge over both the Yanks and Red Sox. The Sox downed Washington, 5-1. The three top teams each have only three games left to play.

Before the game, Harris declared he had a hunch the Yanks would win their remaining games, and he shook up his batting order in an effort to inject a little more speed and punch.

Bauer, just up from Kansas City, was installed in left field in place of Johnny Lindell, and it proved to be a stroke of genius on the manager's part.

In the sixth inning, with Tommy Henrich and Joe DiMaggio on base and two down, Bauer caught one of Dick Fowler's fast, inside pitches squarely on the button and the ball's first stop was the left-field roof, high over the 340-foot mark.

Chapman Spoils Shutout

That, as it turned out, was all the hitting help the 24-year-old Porterfield needed. Although Connie Mack's band harvested their hits in two figures, they scored on the tall rookne only in the fourth frame, when Elmer Valo and Buddy Rosar rapped singles around a ringing double by Sam Chapman.

The Yanks got their "insurance" tally off Fowler in the ninth on Porterfield's third single of the game, a rap to right by Phil Rizzuto, a sacrifice and a fly to right by Bobby Brown on which the pitcher scored.

Due mainly to a muff by Joe DiMaggio on an easy outfield fly in the ninth, Porterfield was not around at the finish and the contest ended on a note of high excitement. A fast double play saved the Yanks from possible serious trouble.

Carl Scheib, pinch-hitting for Fowler to open the ninth, lifted a lazy looper behind second which

Newhouser Blanks Browns For 20th Win

Detroit, Sept. 29 (AP).—Hal Newhouser chalked up his fourth 20-win season in five years as the Detroit Tigers beat the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 0, today on his six-hit pitching.

The 1947 season, when he had 17 victories and as many defeats, was his only one since 1943, when his left-handed slants have not been good enough for a score of triumphs. He had 29 in 1944—his best year; 25 in 1945 and 26 in 1946.

Newhouser is slated for one more start this year, in a crucial series—for the Indians—at Cleveland.

Indians Can Cinch Tie Today; Feller Notches 19th

By Joe Reichler

Cleveland, Sept. 29 (AP).—The irresistible Cleveland Indians advanced to within one victory of insuring themselves at least a tie for first place in the American League pennant race today. They came from behind to defeat the tail-end Chicago White Sox, 5-2.

It was the last meeting of the season between the two clubs.

The triumph protected the Tribe's two-game advantage over Boston and New York, who captured their tilts with Washington and Philadelphia, respectively. The Red Sox and Yankees are deadlocked for second place.

One more Cleveland win, no matter how Boston and New York fare, would insure at least a tie. Two more triumphs would clinch the flag for the Tribesmen.

Gordon, Keltner Homer

As has been the case in recent days, the big bats of Joe Gordon and Ken Keltner furnished most of the fireworks today. Between them they drove in all Cleveland's runs to give the Tribe their eighteenth victory in their last 21 games.

Gordon batted in three tallies with a home run and double. Keltner also hammered a homer and two-bagger, and sent two mates across the plate.

Bob Feller, although not as effective as in recent outings, went the route to register his nineteenth triumph of the season. Thus Rapid Robert, who is scheduled to work in the season's finale next Sunday, may capture 20 victories for his sixth straight full season.

Feller, showing the effects of working with only two days of rent, proved no puzzle to the White Sox. He was tagged for 10 hits and gave up three walks. He struck out four. Although he allowed at least one hit in all but three innings, Feller was scored upon in only one, the second. For a while it looked like that would be enough to hand him his fifteenth setback.

After retiring the side with ease

First Flight, Coaltown Trail Winner

By John Chandler

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Citation ran away from five rivals to win the $29,250 Sysonby Mile today in one of the most nonchalant gallops ever witnessed at Belmont Park.

The great 3-year-old Triple Crown champion toyed with the others in the field, including his stablemate Coaltown.

He ran just enough to assure victory, then trotted under the wire eased up with Jockey Eddie Arcaro looking over his shoulder to see who would be second.

Four lengths back, battling for second money, struggled C. V. Whitney's First Flight, and the filly just made it by one half length over the onrushing Coaltown. Then came Star Reward, Spy Song and Natchez.

By picking up $20,200 first money, Citation shot his 1948 winnings to $516,270, a figure never before attained by a race horse. Assault, the 1946 Triple Crown champ, won $424,195 that year—most ever hauled down in a season until Citation came along.

Citation's all-time bankroll now totals $671,950, and with luck the rest of the year he might pass Armed in the list of money-winning horses. Armed has $773,700, and is second in the list behind Stymie, with $911,335.

West and Shapiro Clash at Uline Tonight

Howard Host To Jackets

Victorious over Bluefield in their first game last Saturday, the Howard University Bison tackle a strong eleven from West Virginia State Saturday afternoon at Brooks Stadium.

The Yellowjackets, one of the top teams in the CIAA, got off to a bad start last week as Virginia Union staged a 10-7 upset.

The big wheel of the visitors' ground and aerial attack will be Oliver "Bubba" Ellis, former Parker-Gray, Alexandria, Va., High School ace who played for the Bison in 1946. Ellis, a triple threat back operating from the "T" formation, has been the standout of the West Virginia camp during preseason drill and led the Yellowjackets in ground gained last week.

With Bob Minton, who carried the ball 11 times last Saturday for 87 yards, and Chris Roberson, who ran off an average gain of over 6 yards per try, Howard's Head Coach Eddie Jackson has hopes of a second straight win.

Also groomed for a major role will be Ernie Davis, the sophomore quarterback who completed all of seven attempted passes and drove the Bison in eight plays to a 71-yard touchdown last week.

New Yorker Will Test Local Boxer

Maxie Shapiro, New York lightweight, tests Washington's Sonny Boy West in the scheduled 10-round main event of the Liberty Athletic Club's boxing show at Uline Arena tonight.

West originally was quoted a 7-5 choice but indications last night were that they will enter the ring at even money.

Maxie not only has won over five world champions in three classes, but also upset Charlie Riley, one of the world's ranking featherweights, a few months ago.

The newcomer is generally conceded to be the most dangerous fighter yet to test Sonny Boy locally.

West has won 20 decisions and registered 10 knockouts while losing only three bouts. He has knocked out Herbie "Biff" Jones and won two of three decisions from Jimmy McAllister in recent starts.

A pair of sixes will bring together: Bob Baldwin vs. Guillermo Pardo, middleweights, and Rocky Marciano vs. Don Riffe, heavyweights. Opening fours list: Holly Mims vs. Julian Keene, middleweights, and Mose Herald vs. Earle Weeks, lightweights.

Tickets for tonight's show are on sale at Uline Arena only today. Four thousand general admissions are available.

Mandes 426 Set Features Bowling

A 426 set by John Mandes of Fort Davis featured last night's bowling as his team beat Price Motors at Greenway, 2-1, in the Men's Minor District League. Another minor star, Pat Crescenzi, sparked Chevy Chase Ice Palace, the league leaders, to a 3-0 triumph over Queen Pin with a 415 set and 168 game. Other results: Petworth 2, Greenway 1; Sollers 2, King Pin 1; Bethesda 2, Lucky Strike 1.

Raadik Beats Horne

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—Anton Raadik, rough and durable Estonian middleweight, tonight registered his eighth victory in his last nine fights by decisively outpointing George "Sonny" Horne, Niles, Ohio, in the Chicago Stadium in a bloody 10-round battle.

Sexton Wins Again

Champion Frank Sexton defeated Laverne Baxter last night with a right to the jaw and a body press at Turner's Arena.

Indians Win, Can Clinch Tie Today

in the opening frame, Feller issued a pass and was conked for three hits in the second and was lucky to escape with only two runs against him. An inning-ending double play, started by the ever-reliable Gordon, saved him a peck of trouble.

The Sox had Bob in trouble again in the fourth, sixth and eighth innings, but in each instance he had that something extra to escape unscathed.

Taft Wright opened the second session with a base on balls. After Feller disposed of Ralph Hodgin on a routine fly, Aaron Robinson, Cass Michaels and Floyd Baker singled in rapid succession to produce the two tallies. Papish ended the uprising with a sharp grounder to Gordon, who turned it into a twin killing.

Papish Effective—Briefly

While the White Sox kept nibbling away at Feller in the ensuing innings, Papish kept the Indians in almost complete submission for five innings. The Tribe managed to squeeze out four singles during that time, but never seriously threatened. At no time did they put two hits together in one frame.

When they finally did strike, it came with the speed and suddenness of a cyclone. With one away, Lou Boudreau walked. Then like two bolts of lightning, Gordon and Keltner exploded their home runs to put the Tribe ahead, 3-2.

It was No. 32 for Gordon and No. 30 for Keltner.

After Papish bowed out for an unsuccessful pinch-hitter in the top of the seventh, the Indians picked up two insurance runs against Randy Gumpert in their half of the inning.

Dale Mitchell walked, was sacrificed to second and crossed the plate when Gordon lashed a double to left center. Keltner followed with a low liner between the right and center fielders. It, too, went for a two-bagger and easily scored Gordon with the Indians' final run.

The White Sox caused some anxious moments in the eighth and ninth for the 13,559 hardy fans who braved the damp and chilly weather.

Wright and Hodgin singled with two out in the eighth, but Feller got Robinson on a long fly to Larry Doby in deep center.

In the ninth, Michaels rapped his third hit and advanced to second when Baker drew a pass. Feller then buckled down and retired the next three batters without allowing the runners to advance.

At 110 pounds, the Shamrock Stable will be a threat with Air Patrol, second in the Capital last season, and Little Harp, winner of Pimlico's Baltimore Spring Handicap.

Today's program will mark the beginning of the second season for racing at Laurel under the banner of the Maryland Jockey Club. President Henry A. Parr 3d and company haven't spared a buck in getting the plant shipshape.

Upward of a half-million has been spent in improvements in the last 14 months including a complete resurfacing of the racing strip.

Laurel will inaugurate a paid parking plan at the meeting, a system that has worked with success at Atlantic City, Santa Anita and other tracks. In the new set-up, each patron driving an auto will be charged 25 cents, with absolutely no tipping allowed. Those who want valet service for their cars at the clubhouse will be assessed another 50 cents.

Included in the service will be free service on flat tires and minor auto repairs. A crew will tour the parking areas and fix flats while autoists are at the races.

Post time for the first race is 1:30 p. m., with the daily double closing at 1:15. Laurel has all modern equipment, including the usual camera finish, tote betting, etc.

DiMaggio easily reached. But the ball bounced from The Clipper's usually sure hands, and the crowd of 8052 sent up a yell for an Athletic rally.

Porterfield got the next man, Eddie Joost, on a fly to left, but Barney McCosky followed with a line double off the right field wall to put the tying run on base. That brought in Lefty Joe Page, and the famous reliefer responded by walking Ferris Fain on five throws.

With the winning run on, Harris waved in Allie Reynolds to pitch to Hank Majeski. Hank pounded one almost directly at Frankie Crosetti, who had just replaced George Stirnweiss. The veteran flipped to Rizzuto to start the double play which kept the champions in the race.

Hoyas Lose 3 Key Players for Boston College Game

O'Connor, Noppinger, Surman Out

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

With three key players definitely out, Georgetown's chances in its "must" game here tomorrow night with Boston College become somewhat complicated . . . A badly wrenched knee has kept Fullback Jack O'Connor from practicing all week; Punter Lou Surman is in the hospital with intestinal flu and End Bob Noppinger has a leg injury . . . It's a tough break for O'Connor, Coach Hagerty said yesterday he would have started him on the basis of his fine showing against Holy Cross last week . . . The Philadelphia junior picked up 27 yards in only four tries and was a standout on defense . . . Advance sale for the game is brisk and Boston College will help swell the crowd with about 1000 students expected to accompany the Eagles' 60-piece band . . .

Won't Be Heard Here

The game won't be aired or televised locally—Georgetown insisted that all its games be on the radio or none . . Strange thing is that at least seven out-of-town stations will carry the game and it will be televised on the ABC-network in New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Albany . . . Ted Husing will give the play-by-play for WMGM, New York . . . Ray Scott will call the game for WCAE in Pittsburgh and stations in Boston, Worcester, New Haven and Norwalk . . .

De Rosa

Eagles Arrive Tonight

Denny Myers' burly B. C. boys check in town tonight and will work out under the lights at Griffith Stadium at 8 p. m. . . . A brother act is always good for a line but the Eagles seem to be overdoing it . . . Norm, Herb and John Jabar, of Waterville, Me., are on the varsity squad and Brother Paul is a B. C. freshman . . . Will DeRosa, top defensive back and an infantry vet of the ETO, is the father of three children—Doug, 6; Carrol, 5, and Billie, 3½ . . . The Hoyas are going to have to get some points against the visitors, who never have gone scoreless under Myers . . . A victory over B. C. would be a monumental triumph for Jack Hagerty, as a player and coach he never has seen Georgetown beat its New England rival.

Brennan Comes Back

Tom Brennan, then a back, was asked to leave the BC squad last spring and wasn't included in the preseason booklet . . . But Brennan buckled down, convinced the coaches he ought to have another chance, and will be seen at guard. Against Wake Forest, he came up with a spectacular pass interception on the Deacons' 15-yard line—the subsequent score turned the tide against them . . . Georgetown End George Benigni gave his father a real vacation treat in last Saturday's Holy Cross game . . . Henry Benigni, a Chicago salesman, went to Worcester to see George play college ball for the first time and his 214-pound son thrilled him by scoring the Hoyas' lone touchdown on a spectacular pass reception in the end zone . . . Individual statistics for the Georgetown-Holy Cross game show that Soph Billy Conn is a back to watch . . . Billy, one of the most sought-after schoolboy stars in the country, fought his way for 69 yards in 9 tries for a 7.6 average—and he returned two kickoffs 36 yards . . . Georgetown will have to count on him to offset the proven running ability of Boston College's little Joe Diminick one of the East's best.

Colonials Gird for Aerial Onslaught by VMI Saturday

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

To beat Virginia Military Institute Saturday at Griffith Stadium, George Washington must stop Quarterback Bobby Thomason, repeatedly called "Virginia's best passer."

Thomason

The 6-foot-2-inch Leeds, Alabama senior, served notice last week that he's in prime condition with 10 completions in 16 attempts as V. M. I. walloped Catawba, 28-0.

His passes, accounting for 156 yards, scored one touchdown and set up the other three.

Thomason's three-favorite targets are Fritz Crytzer, Jimmy Gill and Harold Reed, all 6-foot seniors. They were around in 1946 when Thomason first established himself as one of the Southern Conference's rize passers.

Last year, Bobby missed the G. W. game, but he wasn't needed. Joe Veltri, who will be ready to relieve Thomason, pitched two touchdown passes in the last quarter to down the Colonials, 13-7.

Outweighed while losing to Wake Forest, 27-13, and beating VPI, 13-0, the Colonials will finally meet up with a team they'll outweigh Saturday.

The only 200-pound forwards on the Keydet squad are Bob Smith, a regular tackle, and Joe Adeeb, a reserve tackle. GW's Tackle Harvey Shipman will be the heaviest player on the field at 220.

In the backfield with Thomason will be Fullback Vince Ragunas and Halfbacks Jack Hutchinson and Ray Tamalis who will serve principally as decoys for Thomason's aerials.

The Colonial camp received a setback yesterday when Coach Bo Rowland announced that Stan Burak, 195-pound blocking back will not play Saturday because Stan's knee, severely bruised against VPI, has not mended sufficiently.

Even Redskins Admit Giants Are Improved

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Even the Redskins admit they'll be facing the most improved team in the National Football League when the New York Giants invade Griffith Stadium as the 'Skins second league opponent of 1948 Sunday.

From last place in the Eastern division in 1947, the charges of stout Steve Owen have soared to a first-place tie this year. Of course, they've played only one game, beating Boston Yanks, 27-7, but that was no fluke.

The Giants are so much better, in fact, that dopesters are calling them 10-point favorites over the Redskins with whom they share the early sectional league.

On material alone, the Giants figure to throw a scare into anyone. The outfit that "didn't have a thing last year" yet whipped the 'Skins, 35-10, in their final meeting, now boasts as many All-Americans as any team.

Charlie Conerly of Mississippi, the ace Washington drafted and traded for Howie Livingston and a player yet to be named, heads the list. He's a triple-threater in the winged-T with which Owen has replaced his A-formation of former years.

Going lightly over Conerly's mates, you'll find such stars as Tony Minisi, Penn; Paul Governali, Columbia; Frank Reagan, Penn, and Joe Scott, San Francisco. Washington scholastic ranks have contributed Art Faircloth, Anacostia fullback who attended North Carolina State.

In halfback Emlen Tunnell, 23-year-old speedster who played for Iowa, the Giants will present the first Negro player to appear in a NFL game here. He's the dash man who went 75 yards to a touchdown against Notre Dame.

A total of 20 men are seeing service with the Giants for the first time, 18 of them rookies in the pro game . . . Next to the backfield, the end positions boast more well-known players than any other . . . From Columbia, last season's brilliant pair of wingmen have been lifted intact . . . Bill Swiacki and Bruce Gehrke can snag passes with the best Washington can offer . . .

At last a laxative so pleasant, so different, that it has won millions who now refuse to take harsh, stomach-punishing laxatives!

FEEN-A-MINT tastes like delicious, mint-flavored chewing gum. And you chew it like gum! And scientists say chewing makes FEEN-A-MINT's fine medicine more effective—"readies" it so it flows gently and gradually into the system.

And here's the amazing thing! The action of FEEN-A-MINT's special medicine DETOURS the stomach. It doesn't act while in the stomach, but only when farther along in the lower digestive tract . . . where it should! Thus, FEEN-A-MINT won't upset the stomach!

Catholic Has Veteran Squad Set for Sailors

Catholic University will send an experienced eleven against Patuxent Naval Air Station in its debut at Brookland Saturday, with only one newcomer in the line-up. The rookie is Charley York, a solid 190-pound guard who will team with "Scrappy" Scoppetuolo.

Bill Daly will start at center and Dave Jenkins and Co-Captain Harry Amadio will be at the tackles. Bob Mullin and Co-Captain Jack Samperton were named for the ends.

Coach Tom Chisari has selected a backfield with Whitey Hubert, triple-threater Joe Mauiri, Bill DeYoung and Bucky Ennis for the kick-off. Ennis, a shifty runner, was a star on the Cardinal ring team last winter.

Late Draft Registrants To Face First Service Calls

Today Is Deadline To Avoid Penalty Provided Under New Regulations

To men from 18 through 25 who failed to register for the peacetime draft, District Selective Service officials yesterday issued blunt advice: "Register today."

After today, they warned, men signing up who should have registered during the August 30-September 18 period will be tagged "delinquent" and placed at the head of the induction list.

The advice stems from new Selective Service regulations which have just arrived at draft headquarters, 19th and D sts. nw. They provide that ". . . any registrant who is delinquent shall, regardless of his age, be selected and ordered to report for induction before any other registrant."

No Penalty Yet Imposed

According to Frank D. Norton, deputy District draft director, more than 1000 late registrants have signed up at draft headquarters since registration ended September 18. No penalty has been imposed on them, he said.

Friday, however, local draft personnel will begin making up a list of all 52,676 District registrants, placing the oldest registrant at the top and working on down to the youngest, Norton said. Men will be called according to the order of their place on the list.

Then, acrording to Norton and Lieut. Col. Walter S. Welsh, chief of the District draft's manpower division, men registering after today "will not be taken in the order of their birth but will be put at the head of the list."

Youths who have become 18 since the registration period ended September 18 must, under the Selective Service Act, register on their birthday or within five days.

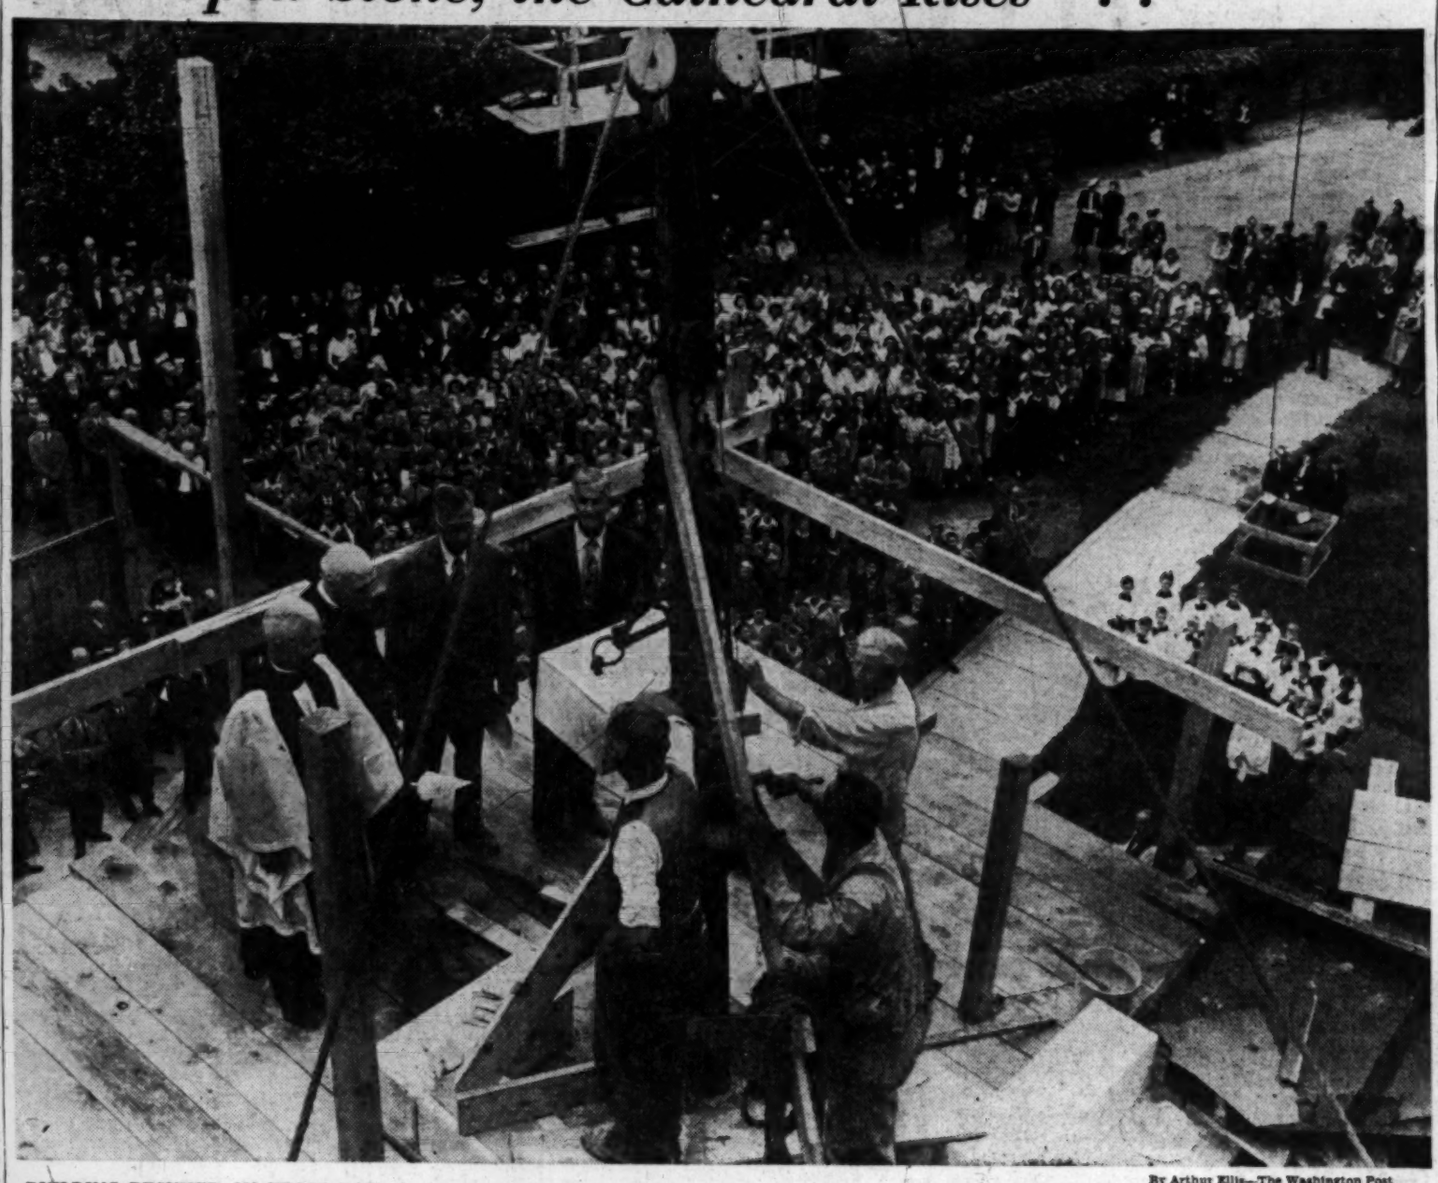
Examinations Start Monday

Predraft physical and mental examinations will start Monday, with 320 men in the 1-A category slated for examinations through October. Of the 50 District men to be tested this week, Norton yesterday said he was "doubtful more than 10 will pass."

Early in November—the date is still under study—the first of 55 District men to be inducted that month will be sworn into the Army.

National Selective Service headquarters announced yesterday that 3,584,963 men have registered over the country. About one-fourth of that number were reported to be in the "single, non-father, non-veteran" category, from which about 250,000 will be called for 21 months' service.

Stone Upon Stone, the Cathedral Rises . .



By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

BUILDING RESUMED ON FEAST DAY—A stone is swung into place in the Patriots' Transept, marking resumption of construction work on the Washington Cathedral. Officiating at the ceremony yesterday—the forty-first anniversary of the laying of the cathedral's foundation stone—are (from left on the platform) the Very Rev. John W. Suter, dean of the cathedral; Verger James P. Berkeley, Architect Philip Hubert Froham and Superintendent of Construction W. R. Russell. Three fifths of the cathedral is unfinished. 3 More Fringe Parking Lots Being Planned

Present Capacity Would Be Raised By 1150 Autos, Howat Declares

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Negotiations for three fringe parking lots in the Temple Heights, East Potomac Park and Rock Creek dr. areas are under way, it was disclosed last night.

The District Motor Vehicle Parking Agency is going ahead with plans for an 1150-car expansion of the present 800-car facilities, feeling that the scheme will "catch on," said P. Y. K. Howat, head of the agency.

The proposed lots would be connected with the downtown shopping area by Capital Transit Co. shuttle buses as is now being done with the Municipal Center and Kass-Heurich lots, which opened September 20.

Potomac Park Lot

The Potomac Park lot would be located in what was once the famed rose garden of the park. Since then it has been cleared to make way for the approaches to the East Highway Bridge connecting the District and Virginia.

Fill removed from the Dupont Circle underpass construction was brought there to raise the garden to road level. Present plans call for the laying of a hard surface on the fill and using the tract as a 400-car lot until the bridge nears completion. It is expected to attract many Virginia residents coming to Washington to shop.

Howat hopes eventually for a permanent parking structure over the Pennsylvania Railroad freight siding located between Virginia ave., 13th, 14th and D sts. nw.

Plans for Second Lot

A second lot now being planned would be located on three land parcels owned by the Public Buildings Administration in the area between New Hampshire ave. nw., 26th st. and Rock Creek drive. The land, located between the Titanic statue on the drive and the Riverside Stadium, would accommodate 300 cars, Motor Vehicle Parking Agency officials said.

The area is not far from the present Kass-Heurich tract and close to the K st. overpass project. It also is expected to attract Virginia residents coming into the city.

The Temple Heights lot, replacing one previously considered and dropped, would be located in a triangle made by the intersection of Connecticut ave., Florida ave. nw. and T st., which is partly cut through at this point.

The tract, which would accommodate 450 vehicles, is owned by Morris Cafritz and the Charles H. Tompkins Co., builders. It already is zoned commercial and offers 100,000 square feet for parking, 50,000 square feet more than the Kass-Heurich lot at 25th and E sts. nw.

Residents Objected

The previously proposed Temple Heights lot on Connecticut ave. between Columbia rd. and Florida ave. was objected to by residents of the Wyoming Apartments, 2022 Columbia rd. nw. The new tract is removed from residential structures and is therefore expected to receive little or no opposition, Howat said.

Last week, first week of operation of the project, more than 1500 cars patronized the two lots. Howat said he was "very much encouraged."

Yesterday the two lots handled 218 cars, 53 at the Kass-Heurich lot and 165 at the Municipal Center tract.

A charge of 25 cents is made for five hours' parking at either lot with a 5-cent charge for each additional hour. Buses leave both lots every 10 minutes from 9:15 a. m. to 6:15 p. m. daily except Sunday and regular fares are charged.

Adds Dental Care

GHA Notes First Surplus In 4 Years

Group Health Association, Inc., last night reported a surplus for the first time in four years—and announced plans for a dental program and a new building.

The surplus of $13,500 followed a controversial dues increase on May 1 of 50 cents for adults, raising monthly dues to $3.50, and a 25-cent increase for children, to $2.25. It will be applied towards a cumulative deficit of about $30,000, President William E. Warne stated.

Membership 15,075

The membership, which now totals 15,075, was also told at a meeting in the Archives Auditorium, 8th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., that:

A 12-chair dental clinic at 1023 Vermont ave. nw. has been leased. Some 2000 persons have asked to join the dental program which will get under way January 1, on a cost-fee basis, if four District-licensed dentists and one hygienist can be obtained by then.

Albert Waterston of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development has been named chairman of a fund drive to raise $35,000 for architect's drawings and fees for a new building at 27th and K sts. nw.

Will Serve 35,000

Construction of the building, to be designed for serving 35,000 members, will be started, it is hoped in a year to 18 months.

Warne also reported a "considerable turnover" in membership the past year, largely due, he said, to people leaving the area. While 3000 members have withdrawn, 5000 new members have joined the 11-year-old organization during the past year, he said.

Traffic Tickets Adjusted for 110 in Week

A State Department official, who parked his automobile in an official parking space without exhibiting his parking permit, was one of 110 motorists for whom traffic tickets were adjusted last week.

The traffic ticket was changed to a warning for Paul H. Nitze of 2120 Woodley rd. nw., deputy director of the Office of International Trade Policy, according to the police department list of adjustments reported yesterday.

Holders of official parking permits are required to exhibit the permit cards in the windshield or windows of their autos when using official parking space, police said.

Virgil L. Almond, of 3945 Connecticut ave. nw., received a warning for failing to pull to the right when an ambulance approached. Almond explained that he was caught in traffic on crowded 16th st. nw. and was unable to pull aside and stop.

Assistant United States Attorney Sylvan Schwartz was given a warning for parking so as to obstruct an entrance when he explained that he had failed to see the entrance signs.

Slaying Probers Find Blood-Stained Pants

Glen Burnie Police Get New Evidence In Double Murder

Three pairs of trousers which appeared to contain bloodstains, one pair of which had been dry cleaned, gave police faint hope yesterday of cracking the Glen Burnie (Md.) double murder mystery.

Chief John H. Souers of the Anne Arundel County police force said the clothing was the latest evidence being checked in the investigation of the baffling shooting of John H. Mahlan, 25-year-old postal clerk, and his girl companion, Mary C. Kline, 18, both of Glen Burnie.

Their bodies were found about 6 miles west of Annapolis September 20, each with a bullet through the head. The couple had gone on a date three nights before, and Mahlan's car, hit by two bullets, was found abandoned on September 18.

Chief Souers said investigators had gotten "no leads whatsoever" from studying the diary of red-haired Miss Kline, who worked as a secretary in Glen Burnie.

He insisted, however, that police have made "considerable progress" in their work on the mystery. He would not venture a guess on when it might be solved, but added: "We will do it."

Chief Souers denied reports that Anne Arundel police had kept an eye on a college student—supposedly "jilted" by Miss Kline after Mahlan returned from the service—as a suspect in the case.

Jealousy has been suggested frequently as a motive in the slaying, but Chief Souers yesterday said "all 11 plainclothesmen who were on the case today, as well as several State troopers assisting them, deny absolutely" any story of there being a college student—and possibly a girl whom he dated—under suspicion, or figuring in the case.

At Gunpoint

Holdup Man Gets $167 at Liquor Store

An armed holdup man escaped last night with $167 from the Kahanov Liquor Store, 1711 17th st. nw.

Werbow

Morris Werbow, 63-year-old clerk in the store, told police the bandit, a brown-skinned Negro, 25 to 30 years old, purchased a bottle of wine.

Then as Werbow, who was alone in the store, opened the cash register for change, the holdup man drew a gun and demanded the cash register contents, police quoted the clerk as saying.

The holdup occurred about 6:30 p. m.

Werbow described the bandit as about 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighing about 135 pounds and wearing a brown suit, brown hat and dark shirt.

William Klemm, a photographer for The Washington Post, was booked on a charge of disorderly conduct as a result of a dispute with a policeman at the scene.

Prisoner, 34, Hangs Self in Arlington Jail

A 34-year-old man yesterday hanged himself from the bars of his Arlington Jail cell—one hour after he had been handed a 12 month sentence in Arlington County Court for petty larceny of an electric iron.

The victim, Paul Coates, of 1126 6th st. nw., was pronounced a suicide by Arlington Coroner Dr. W. C. Welburn.

Coates, whom Arlington Police said had a long record of prior convictions for petty larceny in the District, collapsed in County Court when sentence was announced by Trial Justice Hugh Reid at about 9:45 a. m.

He then was led to the jail, supported by two deputy sheriffs, and placed in his cell. About 10:45 a. m., a jail inmate, passing Coates' cell, found him hanging by his own belt from the bars.

The prisoner notified Jailer Theodore W. Frederick and the body was cut down. Jail officials said the body had been hanging for only "a few minutes" when it was discovered, but efforts of the Clarendon Rescue Squad to revive Coates failed.

Jail officials said it was not customary to remove prisoners' belts prior to committting them to their cells.

Building Drive Opened by County Jewish Group

Opening of a $100,000 building fund drive was announced yesterday by the Montgomery County Jewish Community.

The drive for funds to build a first wing of a projected building to be located on a site near Rock Creek Park is expected to last through the fall months and ground is expected to be broken early next year.

The building site was donated by Sam Eig, Montgomery County builder, who also is making a personal contribution of $10,000 toward the $100,000 goal.

First unit of the proposed structure, expected to cost $300,000, will provide multiple-purpose rooms and a suitable place for group meetings for both Jewish and nonsectarian organizations. Committee members include Eig, I. S. Turover, A. S. Kay, Philip Schiff, Zolton Hoffman, Irving Keller and Mrs. Freda Lyman.

52 to Graduate Friday From FBI Academy

The Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Academy will hold its thirty-ninth graduation exercises at 10:30 a. m. Friday at Departmental Auditorium, Constitution ave. between 12th and 14th sts. nw.

Among the 52 law enforcement officers from over the country to graduate are Sergt. H. Melvin Wheeler of Rockville, a member of the Montgomery County Police Department, and Walter E. Bell, jr., identification officer of the Arlington County Police Department.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, is scheduled to address the graduates. Dr. Ralph W. Seckman of Christ Church, New York City, also will speak.

The 52 graduates, who began the academy course July 12, will be awarded diplomas by A. Devitt Vanech, Assistant Attorney General.

Work Resumed On Cathedral After 7 Years

By Martha Hall
Post Reporter

Construction of the Washington Cathedral yesterday was resumed after a lapse of nearly seven years.

During a service, marking the resumption of work the first stone was swung into position for the Patriots' Transept of the Cathedral.

Dean John Wallace Suter and James P. Berkeley, cathedral verger, mounted to the scaffolding. With a silver trowel, the dean formally completed the laying of the stone. The trowel has been used on the cornerstones of nearly every building in the cathedral close, including the foundation stone of the cathedral which was placed 41 years ago on September 29.

Speaking to the 500 persons who attended the service, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, termed the Cathedral a "standard fair in towering stone and glowing glass that will tower above the Capital City of our Nation."

The service was conducted by Dean Suter. Members of the cathedral choir and clergy participated.

Kiplinger Agency Marks Silver Anniversary

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the first Kiplinger Washington Letter was celebrated yesterday by Kiplinger Washington Agency, Inc., with a party for employes at the Carlton Hotel.

At the same time ground was broken for the new Kiplinger building at 1929 H st. nw. The proposed 10-story structure is expected to be completed in two years.

W. M. Kiplinger, head of the organization, said the corporation would occupy all the space except three floors which would be open to lease.

Chest Repair Squad Picks Barney House

Red Feather Unit To Be Remodeled In Demonstration

Some 60 to 90 AFL workmen will go into parts of the Barney Neighborhood House next week and, using materials donated by contractors, do a one-day remodeling job.

The joint labor-management project, scheduled for October 9, is designed to point up the Red Feather campaign plea for donation of one day's take-home pay. The work will be done by volunteers belonging to the Washington Building Trades Council. They will use materials provided by members of the Washington Building Congress.

Charles W. Humphreys, a contractor and member of the site-selection committee, said workers will roll an asphaltic surface over the present dirt bottom of the play area at the nursery school.

Stable Improvements

In the 150-year-old stable now used as a gym by youngsters who visit the house, 470 N st. nw., the workers will sand down the floor. The wainscotting will be finished with celotex.

In the game room on the second floor, a celotex ceiling will be installed to make the room comfortable in all weathers. The French doors in the room will be weatherstripped.

Other members on the committee which selected the site were Clement F. Preller, president of the trades council, and George J. Keyes, campaign director for the $4,566,790 drive.

The red-brick stable is in the rear of 1315 4th st. sw., facing an alley known as Huntoon ct. For more than a century carriage and riding horses were quartered in the space where about 100 boys now gather each evening for boxing, wrestling and basketball.

Tour of Agencies

Yesterday afternoon some 40 Government workers, principally from the State Department, toured three Chest-sponsored agencies to hear and see how dollars donated by Washingtonians are being spent. These were the Children's Country Home, 18th and Bunker Hill rd. ne., The Catholic Charities of Washington, 1441 Rhode Island ave. nw., and the Episcopal Home for Children, 5901 Utah ave. nw.

Today at 12:30 p. m. William Green, president of the AFL, and Philip Murray, president of the CIO, will meet at Friendship House with Henry Ford 2d, president of Community Chests of America, and H. J. Heinz, former president, to help kick off the drive.

Later, at 8 p. m., a Red Feather rally—by admission card only—will be held in Constitution Hall. It will be the first fall general membership meeting of the Board of Trade, dedicated to the Chest campaign. Ford will be the principal speaker.

Lifts Injunction

Court Backs Hyattsville On Meters

Hyattsville's city fathers yesterday were given the green signal on installation of parking meters. Following a hearing on a demurrer filed by the city in Prince Georges County Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro, Md., Judge Charles C. Marbury announced he would dissolve the temporary injunction granted Hyattsville merchants September 16. The injunction restrained the city from installing meters.

Judge Marbury said the courts are loathe to interfere in the exercise of the legislative powers of towns and municipalities else the towns would have the courts legislating for them. He held the city had power to install the meters despite contentions by Hervey G. Machen and J. Edwin Hutchinson, attorneys for the merchants, that this was in violation of the Statewide motor vehicle law. Machen cited the recent decision in Montgomery County which invalidated the taxicab ordinance there.

Nicholas Orem, jr., and Mayor Caesar L. Aiello appeared for the city.

Judge Marbury said he was not ruling on whether the installation of meters is a revenue measure or a regulatory measure since the ordinance had not been adopted and he had nothing on which to base his decision.

Machen had contended the installation is for revenue and, therefore, should have been included in the annual levy before June 30. The judge said he was giving his decision "without prejudice" in regard to this point and the merchants could come back to court after the ordinance is enacted if they feel it is a revenue measure.

Mayor Aiello said the city council will meet Monday night and at this time the decision of the court will be reported. He expects immediate resumption of installation work.

Silver Spring Parkers Warned on Violations

Police will crack down on parking meter violators in the Silver Spring business district beginning Friday.

Two hundred meters were installed along Georgia ave. between East-West hwy. and Colesville rd. two weeks ago but to date police have only given "warning" tickets to violators.

Tickets requiring overtime parkers to pay $1 fines will be placed beginning Friday, Montgomery County Commissioner Oliver W. Youngblood said.

Collie Pup Match Set

The Mason Dixon Collie Club will hold a "sanction match" for puppies beginning at 1 p. m. Saturday at Beech Tree Farms, Falls Church, Va. Mrs. William H. Long, jr., of Noranda Kennels, Hewlett Harbor, N. Y., will be judge.

Woman and Man Face Court on Lottery Counts

Two persons charged with lottery operations face Municipal Court hearings today. Arrested Tuesday afternoon by vice squad detectives, they are:

Edna M. Kelly, 33, 2009 5th st. nw., arrested in the 1400 block of Florida ave. nw., and charged with possession of lottery slips. She was released in $500 bond.

Frank R. Granton, 36, of 1813 15th st. nw., arrested at 1st and D sts. ne., and charged with operation of a lottery and possession of lottery slips. Said by police to have had rundown tape and numbers slips in his possession, he was released in $1500 bond.

Arlington P-TA Council Pledges Support for Bonds

More than 200 persons attended last night's meeting of the Arlington Council of Parent-Teachers Associations, held at the Peyton-Randolph School, 14th and Quincy sts., S. Arlington.

Council reports indicated that about 3000 signatures had been collected by council members to support the Arlington County School Board request for a $4,750,000 school bond issue to finance new school construction and education needs in the county.

The council also went on record "to work collectively and individually for the approval of the bonds in forthcoming elections," approved the school bond coordinating council established by county agencies to wage the bond campaign; and requested attending members to urge local P-TA groups to "consider non-partisan elections in the county."

Symphony, Union Settle Pay Dispute

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Philadelphia Orchestra Association and Local 77, AFL-American Federation of Musicians announced tonight an agreement had been reached and the concert season will open Friday night.

The association cancelled the 1948-49 season earlier in the week saying it was unable to meet the union's demands for an increase from $110 to $125 weekly in minimum scale wages.

Under the contract signed today, the association said the minimum scale men will receive an increase of $5 per week. Other demands that might have increased the expenses of the orchestra were amicably adjusted, the association said.

Meanwhile it was disclosed the orchestra has asked the city for $100,000 financial aid. The request was made in a September 16 letter written to Mayor Bernard Samuel by Orville H. Bullitt, president of the orchestra association.

Last year a request by the association for an appropriation equal to the $32,795 in amusement taxes the orchestra had paid the previous season was turned down by the city.

The orchestra's Washington season will open Tuesday, October 19.

Transit Pay Stabilization Urged for War

Special Dispatch to The Post

Atlantic City, Sept. 29.—E. D. Merrill, president of the Capital Transit Co. of Washington, D. C., today proposed adoption by the Government of a wage stabilization plan for the transit industry in the event of another war.

Merrill, speaking at the final session of the American Transit Association's Annual convention here, suggested application of Canada's World War II wage system for American transportation industry.

Warren A. Pollard, of Richmond, Va., was elected president of the association. Other officers elected included J. E. Heberle, 1016 16th st. nw., Washington, vice president of Capital Transit Co., as treasurer.

Five Points Proposed

After reviewing various pressures that led to the beginning of the present inflationary period, Merrill offered five points to help overcome "weaknesses of wage control as exercised during the last war" in this country. He said he made suggestions for the transit industry "because it may be possible to stabilize wages in another emergency." The suggestions were:

1. That a plan similar to Canada's wartime program for changing wages with cost-of-living changes, if adopted, would leave little use for the American system of leveling wages of companies in the same labor market.

2. Incentive or workload bonuses should be eliminated, because no formula can determine pay for various workloads an individual carries at different times.

Regional Difference Cited

3. National standards for paying overtime to workers should not be imposed again by the Government. Regional pay practices vary too much.

4. Federal agencies investigating wage adjustment cases must consider extra allowances paid employes, because, unconsidered, such benefits tend to be inflationary.

5. Salary schedules should be established for transit company supervisory and office groups before another emergency and should be used by Government agencies as a basis for making adjustments in an emergency period.

Year-Round Safety Drive Opens Friday

An all-year traffic safety education campaign, called "Operation Safety," will be launched here Friday by the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board.

The first phase of the campaign, during October, will stress the hazards of night driving and walking, Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the advisory board, said.

Four of the six traffic deaths here last October occurred after dark, Sundlun pointed out in announcing the October campaign slogan would be "Look Out When It's Dark Out."

He emphasized especial care by pedestrians, pointing out that "a pedestrian can see a car coming much sooner than the driver can see him." All of last October's traffic deaths, he pointed out, were of pedestrians.

"It is amazing how trusting most of us pedestrians seem to be," he said. "We are sure motorists see us and will not run over us. But that's taking too much for granted, especially after dark and in the half-dark of twilight."

Throughout the year, he said, the safety campaign will stress hazards peculiar to the season.

The whole campaign—boosted as the first citizen-sponsored all-year comprehensive attack here on the traffic injury problem—will be integrated with the national traffic program in 200 cities under sponsorship of the National Safety Council, he said.

It has received indorsement of George E. Keneipp, District traffic director, who joined in the warning to pedestrians to exercise care in walking at night and twilight.

City Heads to Act This Week on Trial Board Proposal

Proposed amendments to the Police and Fire Regulations providing for the placement of a civilian lawyer on both the Police and Fire trial boards will be placed before the District Commissioners this week.

Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, who has been preparing the rules, said they will be taken up by the Commissioners at a meeting this week. The Commissioners have previously agreed in principle with the proposal.

The trial board reorganization calls for the substitution of a civilian attorney for a member of the Corporation Counsel's office on the three-man boards.

The District Bar Association and the Washington Bar Association have already named panels of 10 men each who have agreed to serve on a voluntary basis on the boards.

In 1899, he went to the Philippine Islands as a captain in the Forty-sixth U. S. Infantry. Two years later, he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Regular cavalry. During his many years of duty in the Philippines, he saw periods of detached service as aide to Gen. W. S. Edgerly and to the governor general of the Philippines, Francis Burton Harrison.

Bond Question To Candidates

Four Arlington County Board candidates were asked point-blank yesterday the local $64 political question: "Do you favor the $4,750,000 school construction bond issue asked by the school board?"

The query was leveled at the candidates during a luncheon meeting of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington in the Little Tea House, 1301 S. Arlington Ridge rd.

Two candidates said they opposed the issue, one declined to commit himself, and the fourth indorsed the issue without qualification.

One of the two speaking against the bond proposal was Francis J. Clair, who said it would saddle a huge debt "on the backs of our children and our children's children."

Clair, who filed for the one open board seat as an independent after the County Republican Committee declined to name him, said it was unwise for the school board to build now at a time of soaring construction costs.

Also opposed to the bond issue was independent candidate Jacob Bechtel, a retired carpenter, who said the $4,750,000 figure was "too high." He declared a State sales tax, if voted this winter, might obviate need for the bond issue.

Unwilling to commit himself was Alfred E. Frisbie, incumbent Democratic candidate.

As a board member, Frisbie said he had "no opinion, as I do not have all of the information" on the bond issue yet. But "as a citizen," Frisbie said he had his "own opinion." He did not divulge what that was.

The fourth candidate, Lee Potter, independent, said he "very definitely" favored the bond issue.

The issue will be voted on in a November 2 referendum. It would provide for 65 new classrooms, plus gymnasiums, a cafeteria, and a shop.

Fighter Pilot Killed as Plane Crashes, Explodes

Keysville, Va., Sept. 29 (Spl.).—One man and possibly two were killed when an Army fighter plane crashed and exploded today 3 miles east of Simplicity, in Lunenburg County.

The pilot was unidentified, according to State Police Sergt. E. P. Landers, who investigated the crash.

It was reported from nearby Camp Pickett, which supplied a detail of military police to assist in the investigation, that possibly two men were in the crash.

Only portions of a single body were found in the five or six acres over which the wrecked plane was scattered, Sergeant Landers said.

Alfred Paul Quits County Council Post

Alfred B. Paul, Bethesda, Md., attorney, has resigned as chairman of the Montgomery County Council of the American Legion's orthopedic clinic and March O' Dimes drive, after serving in that capacity for 10 years.

Montgomery County is the only State subdivision in the United States where the March O' Dimes campaigns are conducted and administered exclusively by the American Legion through the joint efforts of 11 posts affiliated with the council.

Pressure of business was given as Paul's reason for being unable to continue the post. Appointment of a successor has been deferred until a later meeting of the council.

Meanwhile delegates to the council have elected the following officers for the 1948-49 year: Charles H. Davidson, Kensington town councilman, president; Joseph H. Lewis, Glen Echo, vice president; Drew B. Campbell, Rockville, treasurer; and Daniel P. Mularkey, Silver Spring, secretary.

Davidson, a past commander of the Wilbur Arnold Post, succeeds Hubert Moore, Rockville.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Cultured Woman Is Deeply Disturbed by Conviction That People Blandly Ignore Her Conversational Efforts; Why Is This?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I love music, poetry, all the arts, am a firm believer that one is never too old to learn, I love to read and have done some reading practically every day since I was a child.

I am 40, married, fairly intelligent, not unattractive, have two teen-age children in high school; and have kept my mind and body active, by constant interest in people and things.

I like company but am just as contented when alone, as I am always doing something, and while I don't have many friends, I keep those I have. So much for background. My problem is that in group conversation, nobody pays any attention to me.

In conversation with just one person, I can manage to hold his or her attention from time to time, but the minute a third or fourth person joins in, I become a listener only, because if I do try to say anything they all start talking to each other and I get no encouragement to finish my thought.

I am careful not to talk too much and recently have made a point of talking slowly, enunciating clearly, and more than once I've been told that I have a nice speaking voice, especially over the telephone, but even so, lots of times people simply ignore my comments.

Now She Avoids Social Affairs

FOR INSTANCE, the other day my husband and I were visiting my sister and her husband and another couple joined us on their patio. The conversation turned to plants and the other wife talked a lot of her horticultural experiences, speaking rather poor English with a nasal twang caused by a sinus ailment, incidentally sniffling a good deal.

We all listened intently to her discourse and when she happened to mention a plant I grow in abundance, I started to speak of it, but almost at once my brother-in-law began talking to my husband and as usual I closed my mouth without completing what I had to say which wouldn't have taken a minute, whereas the other woman had talked on and on, without interruption from any of us.

Lately I've begun to stay away from social gatherings because I feel so dumb and left out; but last night I couldn't avoid a church meeting, and again the same problem became so evident that I slipped away and went home, without even saying goodnight, while everyone was having refreshments. I knew I wouldn't be missed at all. Please tell me frankly what you think is wrong with me.

R. A.

Problem of Serious Sensitive Timidity

DEAR R. A.: Your problem has to do with serious sensitive all-pervasive timidity, which rather unfits you for the social hurly-burly of offhand exchange with average surface-minded folk, who aren't involved in awareness of fine nuances, nor fearful of trying others' patience; but are conscious mostly of hearty intent to express themselves to their own satisfaction, hence get together on this common wave-length to chorus a kindred jargon, genially unmindful of what they say or how it's taken.

As I get the picture, you are mousy and retiring, also highly observant and you think "long thoughts," but there is neither graphic brevity nor lightness of touch in your make-talk approach. You lack self confidence and robust drive, consequently lack conversational punch, glow and stamina; but in your loneliness of heart you aren't content to be a good listener, which would be your forte.

You want to be heard, to gain the consolation, the reassurance, of having "got across" to rank-and-file minds, in terms of their desire to share co-equally in group conversations is symbolic of the deep problem, namely: a wistful striving to break out of spiritual isolation from the common herd.

Almost invariably this type of distress originates in a childhood history of emotional neglect, and if, in later life, in a normal social set-up, the sense of isolation begins to recur morbidly, as in your case, the constructive precautionary reaction is to get specialist help in rebuilding self-confidence on a rational basis. You are lending yourself to a dangerous drift in starting to renounce fellowship situations.

Church Women Hear Report On Communists in China

By Genevieve Reynolds

"CHINESE Communists admitted to me that they are part of the international Communist movement, pledged to overthrow capitalist and all other forms of government except their own," declared the Rev. Alfred Dixson Heininger in an address yesterday at the Washington Council of Church Women's Missionary Institute, held in Calvary Baptist Church.

The speaker, who served for 10 years in the northern part of China under the American Board of Foreign Missions, told how he had interviewed personally hundreds of Chinese Communists in order to ascertain their aims.

He quoted Chinese Communists as saying, "We will overthrow China and then Europe, and set up Communist governments throughout the world."

As for the Communists being an agrarian movement within China to improve conditions of the farmers, the Rev. Heininger explained "there is little if nothing to be said for that false theory. Propaganda to make the world consider communism an agrarian movement was deliberately planned and spread to smokescreen the real intention."

"It is idle and naive to regard the Chinese situation as having no bearing on world conditions," he asserted.

"Members of the Nationalist government and their military forces who have been fighting the Communists," he continued, "aver that they now are fighting the beginning of World War III' and all China believes that this is the crucial year for their country."

Important to Peace

The Rev. Mr. Heininger said that he could not predict the outcome of the Chinese situation until he knew the results of the European situation.

"What happens to China is tremendously important to world peace," he insisted. "In order to have world peace, China must be developed into a strong, self-reliant country, able to ward off any aggressor. This also is essential to the success of the United Nations."

During World War II many teachers, Christians and non-Christians from all walks of life, lined up with the Communists to fight a united battle against the Japanese, the speaker said. But contrary to popular belief, he declared, the Chinese Communists did not resist the Japanese as diligently and effectively as they pretended. Instead they accumulated arms and ammunition to fight the Nationalist government and set up a Soviet-dominated state after the war, according to the speaker.

He pointed out that many of the Chinese who joined the Communist Party during World War II were not Reds, but lined up with them to fight the Japs. "Some remained in the Communist forces, but the majority left at the end of the war," he added.

Referring to the Christian movement in China, the Rev. Mr. Heininger said that it had progressed despite many handicaps but that a Protestant mother church was needed there to keep alive and stimulate the faith. "The Catholics have jumped ahead on that score," he said, "Since World War II, the Catholic Church has set up a complete hierarchy among the natives, including a cardinal, 20 archbishops and 100 bishops—all Chinese. The Protestants might take a leaf from their book."

Mrs. Joseph E. Beard introduced the speaker and Mrs. Wallace Streeter, council president, presided.

At the morning session, class periods on geographical frontiers were featured under the direction of Mrs. Charles W. Lowry. Dramatizations on Alaska and Hawaii were given by Mrs. Charles Long and Mrs. Ethel T. Holland.

Food Habits Have Bearing On Disease, Editors Told

By Lucia Brown

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—For best health, adults need a daily intake of calcium which is 25 per cent larger than authorities have previously believed.

This news, soon to be amplified in an official bulletin of the National Research Council, was given us at the Newspaper Food Editors' Conference in New York today by Miss Ruth Woods, editor of the Review of Nutrition Research issued by a large dairy products concern.

Recent work by the council indicates that a healthy adult needs at least 1 gram of calcium daily, Miss Woods said, instead of eight tenths of a gram, previously considered the minimum requirement. Calcium is now the nutrient most lacking in American diets, the study shows. Milk, the principal source of calcium, contains 1.6 grams of it to each quart, the review editor told us. Nutrition was featured largely on today's program at the editors' conference at the Waldorf Astoria. Another speaker was Dr. Charles Glen King, scientific director of the Nutrition Foundation, Inc., a research organization supported by the food industry.

Evidence that food habits have a lot to do with the so-called "degenerative" diseases is now at hand, Dr. King said.

"Although the information now available is not complete enough to be fully useful," Dr. King said, "there is clear evidence that food habits have a significant bearing on the incidence of degenerative diseases that beset many people prematurely—high blood pressure, heart failure, dental diseases, cancer, diabetes and many related hazard to health."

Today's trend toward anemia was cited by Dr. King as another pressing nutritional problem. He spoke of efforts of the food industry to improve food processing so that all nutrients are retained.

AsksSafeguards For Liberties

The need for clear thinking by citizens on governmental matters was never more important than it is today, Miss Anna Lord Strauss told members of the Soroptomist Club yesterday. Miss Strauss, national president of the League of Women Voters, spoke at the club's weekly luncheon meeting at the Willard Hotel.

"We must see to it that our civil liberties, of which we have long boasted, are not tampered with in this time of stress and uncertainty," she told her audience.

News from Capitol Hill point up spy scares, loyalty probes and the activities of Communists, she pointed out. "While such happenings are disconcerting and alarming we must not lose our perspective. We must see to it that our leaders take only such steps as are necessary for preserving our country. Otherwise we may find that by losing our heads we have lost our liberties as well."

Paternottes to Entertain For Belgium's Wizards At Monetary Conference

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

SINCE the International Monetary Conference came to town, Washington's been so a-crawl with financial wizards that it's practically impossible to down a Martini without a Minister of Finance or National Bank Director jogging the elbow. Today the Alexandre Cruger Paternotte de la Vaillee's of the Belgian Embassy are giving a cocktail party for their team. Since Belgium is in far better economic state than most European countries, their wizards must have something others lack—anyone with complex financial problems couldn't do better than consult one of these maestros while he's in a relaxed party-mood. Here's the Belgian line-up—Minister of Finance, Eiskens, Minister of Import and Supply plus being boss of the Marshall Plan for Belgium, M. Moens de Fernig; Director of the Belgian National Bank, M. Frere; former Minister of Finance M. Franz de Voghel and M. Anciaux, Belgian National Bank, and the brilliant financier who thought up the scheme for inter-European payments. Their hostess, Mme. Paternotte, incidently, is Italian-born, her husband's half American and the two combined add up to one of Washington's most charming and decorative young couples.

Bad News for Hostesses

COLORADO'S Llewellyn Thompson—the State Department's Deputy Director for European Affairs—is the attractive gent snapshotted Sunday afternoon when personally delivering our latest note at the Soviet Embassy. It seems odd that such an important document was not delivered by an official in striped trousers and morning coat, but in this age of realistic diplomacy, Mr. T., informally garbed in a tweed sport jacket, slipped over after an all-Sunday work session in the State Department.

There's very bad news for local hostesses anent "Tommy" Thompson, heretofore one of those rara aves, an "extra" man. For he's to be married Saturday. He met his pretty bride-to-be last June on an Europe-bound ship. She hails from Boston and formerly was married to the eccentric son of one of Newport's wealthiest summer inhabitants. With Tommy's defection, State Department "extra" men over 30 are reduced to around half a dozen! A dreary prospect for winterime prandial events!

Barnyard Nuptials

THE queerest things keep popping up! A publicity release from Hanson, Mass., handsomely printed in red and green, topped with what proves to be an ornamental spray of cranberries, arrived recently. Couched in cozy terms, it starts off "Have you heard about the wedding of the berry and the bird? The berry is the cranberry and the bird is that simple citizen of the barnyard, the chicken. The big event is scheduled to take place during National Cranberry Week, from October 18 to 23. These curious nuptials came about when the poultry folk began to hanker after a share of the sauce."

A pushover for romance, this department obviously was obligated to make fitting contribution, to berry and bird. Taking the easy way, we tackled Washington's most distinguished cranberry fan, no less a person than The Washington Post's music critic, Paul Hume.

Though Mr. Hume is busy boning for his new radio show, due to debut over WTOP at 2:45 p. m. Sunday, October 10, he graciously stepped into the breach. A bachelor strictly by choice, he is as expert with pots and pans as with Steinways and Stradivarii, wrenching a pet recipe from Hume is no mean achievement. Anyway, here's his favorite technique for playing with cranberries:

"BAKED CRANBERRIES. 6 cups cranberries, 3 cups sugar, ¾ to 1 cup water. Wash and stem berries. Dump in baking dish, pour on the sugar, and add the water. If you like 'em dry, keep the water level down to about ¾ of a cup. Bake in medium oven (350-400) about an hour, or until the berries pop open and turn dark red. Place in refrigerator. Serve cold."

And now,—on with the "curious nuptials!"

Working for Strife-Free World

REMEMBER Rufus King? Last spring he ran a series of newspaper advertisements inviting anyone interested in making a better, strife-free world, to meet him at Mrs. Phelps Crosby's art gallery. A follow-up invitation drew scores to his house out Silver Spring's way. Caresse Crosby received a letter from him a few days ago. He's in Paris with his 12-year-old son, working on the Citizens of the World idea and living as paying guest in a house owned by the Duc de Doudeauville and his younger son, Comte Armand de la Rochefoucauld. He sees a great deal of Gary Davis, the idealistic son of orchestra leader Meyer Davis. King's interesting Manifesto, which explains his views, was published in Paris last summer by Mrs. Crosby. Mrs. King has remained in this country concluding a course in psychiatry.

Caresse Crosby, creator of the famous Black Sun Press in Paris and impressario for such successful geniuses as Salvador Dali, is still working on her extraordinary series of art albums—since the war she has been traveling persistently, gathering all the latest activities of artists and literary intellectuals of various countries.

Right now she is collecting an album devoted to Negro artistic and literary works—Negroes all over the world, their recent paintings, poems, architecture, work on the stage.

During the winter she plans to collect an Irish album and with Washington's Merritt Swift, will join forces renting a house in Dublin. With Caresse will be her baby granddaughter, Lorraine de Mun. Unfortunately, Polly de Mun and her husband, Comte Albert de Mun, are getting a divorce.

Renting a house in Dublin, incidentally, presents as complex a problem as it did in Washington's wartime boom. Every Dublin crack and cranny is in demand by better-heeled British as a foreign pied-a-terre to visit every few months and stock up with good Irish whiskey, bacon and other tummy-filling edibles nonexistent on England's stringent ration list.

World Financiers Attend Chinese Embassy Reception

By Elizabeth Maguire

LATE IN THE afternoon yesterday world financiers and their wives drove up to the Chinese Embassy to attend a reception held between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock. Guests were ushered through the house and out onto the lawn where the Ambassador and Mme. Koo received with their guest of honor, Dr. Yun-Wu Wang, Chinese Minister of Finance and Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Bank and Fund.

Indian summer and acres of rolling lawn made a perfect setting for the international gathering of over 500 people. As it grew dark, spotlights were turned on, and when a few drops of rain fell, huge trees served as umbrellas. Orange juice seemed as popular as cocktails, and hors d'oeuvres were passed around on trays.

Mme. Koo looked minute and chic in black, with green ribbon in her black hair, and matching green gloves.

Paul V. McNutt towered above the others in the gathering. The new Korean Ambassador, P. O. Chough, was seen chatting with former Ambassador Stanley Hornbeck and Mrs. Hornbeck.

Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, talked with Mme. Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador, and Mr. and Mrs. Elovius Mangor of the Norwegian Embassy, who have just come back from Newport.

The Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin Elizalde, attended, and the the managing director of the Fund, Camille Gutt. Also, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Overby, the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon, the Minister of Luxembourg, Hugues Le Gallais; the British Minister, F. B. Hoyer Millar; the Charge d'Affaires of Iraq, Ahmed Izzet Mohammed; the Minister of Syria and Mme. El-Khouri, the Minister of Finland and Mme. Jutila, Mrs. Wilfred D. Whittemore, Mrs. Andrews, wife of the Minister of South Africa, and Gov. Pierre Mendes-France of France.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Snyder were seen greeting Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett, who was leaving as they arrived. Other late arrivals at the embassy were the Indian Ambassador and Lady Rama Rau and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lippmann.

Every governor and alternate of the Bank and Fund and every director and delegate seemed to be in the throng. The entrance to the embassy was crowded as a theater on opening night.

MEANWHILE the Minister of Austria and charming Mme. Kleinwachter entertained at a small party for the Austrian Minister of Finance, Dr. Georg Zimmermann, and the President of the Austrian National Bank, Dr. Hans Rizzi. The party was held at the attractive new Austrian Legation at 2220 Wyoming avenue.

Guests were received at the head of the staircase by the Minister and Mme Kleinwachter and the two financiers. Conversations about monetary matters were held in the drawing room and dining room.

Among the guests were the Chief of Protocol and Mrs. Stanley Woodward, Mrs. Robert Lovett, Giorgio Cigliana-Piazza, alternate Governor of the Bank for Italy, the Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Edward H Foley, jr.

The two are staying at the Shoreham Hotel.

Honored at Club Tea

U. S.-British Unity Vital, Lady Cripps Tells Press

LADY CRIPPS, wife of Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, yesterday expressed the belief that the people of her country and those of the United States must stick together as never before.

Guest of honor at the Women's National Press Club's tea held in the Carlton Hotel, she said, "I am glad that I came to Washington. It is important that the people of Great Britain and the United States know each other and are friends."

During an informal press conference she described the Peckham Pioneer Health Experiment and a visit to China in 1946. Organized about 20 years ago, the Health Center in Peckham conducts scientific research to determine what is best for people's health. The positive approach—what is good, not what is wrong—is used to develop family unity, and common interests between parents and children, according to Lady Cripps. Members of the club come from all income groups ranging from families in the top to lowest brackets. Two shillings per week is the cost of membership.

Lady Cripps explained that she became a member of the health club last October and that both she and Sir Stafford now are members of the executive board.

A leading Chinese recently remarked, "For 400 million Chinese, Isabel Cripps spells Britain."

When queried about her interest in China, soft-spoken Lady Cripps replied, "Back in 1942 the Bishop of Hongkong came to me and said that China was feeling 'lonely and isolated,' and suggested raising a relief fund.

"I made one radio broadcast on behalf of China," she continued, Apparently the public was sympathetic for 36,000 pounds poured in from all over the country. It came in pence and hundreds of pounds. Then we got the idea of making the funds more than a monetary contribution. We began a non-political project of building friendship between the two nations.

Into the coffers of the United Aid to China came over two million pounds and eventually a £210,000 permanent scholarship.

Then in 1946 the Chinese government invited Lady Cripps to come as their guest to China to determine for herself how the money was being spent. With her went her daughter and two secretaries. "I guess we were the first good-will all-women mission to China," she laughed.

Traveled Freely

The tall, blue-eyed English leader said that she was free to travel and did travel in all sections of China even into the Communist territory . . . that she was able to see anything she desired.

Queried if she found the relief materials reaching their original destination, she answered, "Yes. Even those in Communist areas were given medical and other supplies. I was amazed the way the help touched the heart of the Chinese people."

She explained that the relief supplies and funds were distributed by a committee, headed by Mme. Chiang Kai-shek.

Sir Stafford and Lady Cripps work closely together on all jobs, to which he is assigned. She makes her contacts and arranges her own schedule and her husband does the same.

For example, since arriving in the Nation's Capital Sir Stafford and Lady Cripps haven't been able to attend the same parties together. She fulfills her crowded schedule and Sir Stafford sticks to his.

The guest of honor received with Miss Dorothy Williamson, president of the club.

Lady Franks Is Guest

Among the special guests were Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador; Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of the Supreme Court Justice; Miss Isabel Catto, daughter of the Governor of the Bank of England who is studying YWCA procedures at the local "Y"; Neville Gardner and Charles Campbell of the British Information Services.

Still others present were Mrs. John L. Dougherty, Mrs. Charles Windsor, Mrs. Tom Kelley, wife of Capt. Kelley, U.S.N.; Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Pretty Betsy Drake Stars With Cary Grant

By Marie McNair

THAT pretty girl whom Cary Grant makes love to in "Every Girl Should Be Married" is the same Betsy Drake who went to the King-Smith School in Washington and lived for a year with her aunt, Mrs. Charles Howze, in McLean, Va., while she studied at Miss Madeira's School. The star's mother is the former Anne Keith of Fairfax.

Betsy's chief charms are her natural blond hair, her deep blue eyes fringed with black lashes and her gently arched black brows. Moreover, she's a completely unspoiled child, deadly serious about her work.

She says she's not engaged to Cary Grant, in spite of gossip columnists reports.

But she can't deny that it was Mr. Grant who first saw her, on shipboard coming back from England, was attracted by her good looks. The face was familiar—he had seen her in a small part on the London stage—and it wasn't long before an introduction was arranged. Merle Oberon played Cupid in this drama which sent Betsy forthwith on her way to Hollywood in the role of a star.

MRS. McNAIR

The young actress hopes when her present contract is through to return to London and a picture with the personable Gregory Peck.

TOWN TOPICS: Rumors are flying as fast as the plane which is to bring Dora Tarchiani to Washington from her native Italy this week. Latest word is that Signorina Tarchiani's romance—her fiance's name has yet to be revealed—has blossomed so quickly that a wedding is to take place very soon, the setting to be the Italian Embassy with Ambassador and Signora Tarchiani's blessings.

The belle of Biarritz is Joan Gardner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gardner, who has been in Europe all summer with her mother. Joanie is having a whirl with the boys, but so far she's whole heart and fancy free.

JUST BACK from Old Westbury on Long Island, the Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitneys—he's the Assistant Secretary of the Air Force—gave a farewell dinner in their new Georgetown house last night. Guest of honor was Gen. Emmet O'Donnell—the famous Rosie, who's been appointed Commanding Officer of the Fifteenth Air Force at Colorado Springs. General O'Donnell, who led the first raid over Tokyo, was with Mr. Whitney in India during the early part of the war.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitney who've been living at the Shoreham since they came to Washington, now have the house on Thirtieth st. recently occupied by the British Minister, Sir John Balfour and Lady Balfour, now in Argentina.

Mrs. Clarence N. Goodwin—the indefatigable Augusta—isn't letting a broken toe interfere with her numerous activities. She's whipping the Spanish classes into shape for an early reopening, lining up all the beauties from the Diplomatic Corps for the annual fiesta in Birmingham, Ala., in November. When she is reminded by a frantic telephone call from Chicago, that her column for the ultra-sophisticated "Townsfolk" isn't yet in, Augusta calls for a public stenographer, takes an hour or so off and dictates a magazine page—just like that.

Dr. and Mrs. Paul Wilner have returned from a week's stay in Atlantic City, where they stopped at the Shelbourne Hotel.

Wet Fur

When you come in out of an unexpected rain with your fur coat soaking wet, hang it in a cool room and let dry without brushing. When dry, shake the fur, then brush or rub the fur up and down with the hand to make the fur stand up. It is well to choose fur from a water animal if you are exposed a great deal to weather conditions.

Don't Jinx Silhouette With Unnatural Curves

By Ida Jean Kain

SWAY-BACK puts a jinx on the silhouette. This unnatural incurve at the small of the back that makes hips bustle out, is offset by an outcurve of the abdominal wall. In the worst form of sway-back, the pelvis is tipped back, the abdomen sags, the knees and shoulders are too far back, the head is forward, and the lower back caves in like the old gray mare's.

What's more—sway-back feels even worse than it looks. It puts a strain on the lower back and that's where fatigue settles first.

Sometimes the blame for this condition can be traced to well-meaning adults and their endless admonitions to "throw your shoulders back!" The child who conscientiously kept her shoulders yanked out of line may have developed a compensatory curve of the lower back. One woman I know blames her tendency to sway-back on an inoffensive cousin. "Look at your Cousin Sarah's posture," her parents told her as a child. So stiff-backed Cousin Sarah, lordosis and all, became her model . . . and she actually slept with a pillow in the small of her back to get sure results. She got them!

THERE are two important measures that help to correct this figure fault. The first is to pull the posture into alignment. Check up on the way you sit. When you sit half-way out on the chair seat and lean your back against the chair back, you're inviting sway-back. That sitting posture pushes the abdominal wall outward . . . which pulls in the small of your back. Get the habit of sitting with the back of the hips smack against the chair back, and pull up with the girdle muscles.

To get the feel of the correct sitting position, sit on the floor, back against wall, feet straight out in front, and pull up with the abdominal muscles until small of back presses against the wall. Sit that way for a few minutes a day and soon it will be natural.

The other corrective measure is to tone the network of muscles that form the front wall—it's when these important muscles go flabby and sag that the small of the back tends to sway inward. Everyone needs a few exercies to strengthen the anti-gravity muscles. Here's a good one. . .

Position—Lying on back on floor, feet on chair seat, knees straight, hands down at sides on floor.

Movement—Bring alternate knees to chest as you stretch arms up and back overhead to floor. The up-stretch of the arms reflexly contracts the abdominals and the knee-chest movement pushes the small of the back down against the floor. Return to starting position and repeat rhythmically and forcibly 12 counts, alternating knees. Keep abdominal muscles strongly contracted throughout the exercise.

About Stains on Mahogany Table

My new dining room table is a mahogany veneer with a very high polish, which seems to be quite prone to staining caused by heat. In one spot the heat penetrated two hot pads and a cloth place mat, and left a stain with lint from the material clinging to it. I have removed the lint, but the stain remains despite repeated polishings. Is there any way in which I can restore the finish without refinishing the entire table? If the latter is necessary, how would I do it? E. F. H.

Since the heat penetrated the hot pads enough to cause the fuzz to stick to the table, refinishing is probably the only answer. However, if you wish to give it a try, this might make the spot less noticeable. Make a paste by mixing a fine abrasive such as rottenstone or powdered pumice with linseed oil. Rub this pasts over the damaged area, using care not to get it into the surrounding areas. When the fuzzy circle has been removed in this way wipe with a clean soft cloth and repolish the entire table top with wax or furniture polish.

If this treatment doesn't lighten the stain enough to make the piece usable, you can refinish it by first removing all of the finish from the top with a good paint and enamel remover. If you work carefully, it will be possible for you to remove the finish from only the top. When the finish is completely removed, wipe the top with benzine to take away every trace of the remover. Now for a finish which will be resistent to heat and moisture, apply one of the spar varnishes or a varnish made from synthetic resin. If the varnish you buy is not a combination of stain and varnish and if the wood of the unfinished table is lighter than you wish, apply an oil stain to the raw wood before varnishing it. Apply two coats of varnish.

This past week I accidentally rubbed against my bedroom chair while wearing some zinc oxide. The chair is a deep green satin and the zinc oxide has left a stain (a light one). I don't know whether the color is run proof. I would appreciate it if you could tell me how to remove this stain as it is in an obvious place. E. S.

You may be able to lighten and possibly remove the stain by dusting dry cleaning powder into it. It may take several applications to show improvement. After the powder has had a chance to absorb the grease, remove it with a soft brush or the brush attachment of your vacuum sweeper and apply fresh powder. If this doesn't remove the stain, I would suggest you have the stain professionally removed before applying liquid of any sort to the satin as it might cause a ring.

Having noted several inquiries about roaches in your column, I'm writing to tell you what good results I have gotten with a 6 per cent DDT solution with a resin base. We moved into an old house just swarming with roaches. We tried borax, aerosol bombs (which had worked well on fleas in the basement) and sodium fluoride, but neither were of any avail. We had bought a new electric stove and it wasn't long before roaches were breeding in the timer clock. There were numberless cracks in the kitchen floor from which one would see them sally forth, especially at night. After about four months of this, I tried the 6 per cent DDT preparation. I cleaned all my cupboards and before relining with fresh paper, painted the outer edges with the DDT solution and on all shelves with an easel brush of the childrens'. Also, every time I saw a roach coming out of a crack, I would saturate that crack. I painted the inside of my stove drawers, along baseboards, along the edge of the floor, around water pipes. It was amazing to me how the roaches decreased in numbers and now for many months I haven't noticed any. What a great relief!

G. G.

I am interested in joining a group which does square dancing. It seems you had something in your column some time ago about a small group in Chevy Chase. Will you tell me what organization it is? A. J.

I do not happen to know of a square dancing group in Chevy Chase at this time. But, the Young Women's Christian Association at 17th and K sts. nw. is starting a class October 6. The class will be given from 7 to 8 p. m. on Wednesdays and is to be coeducational.

I recently had my kitchen knives sharpened, and now several have begun to rust. Have they been improperly ground? What can I do to remove the rust, and prevent further rusting? G. B. McL.

Your knives should not have been sharpened by grinding, but should have been sharpened by the use of a steel or stone. Now that they have been ground, the rust can be removed by rubbing with fine steel wool. To prevent them from rusting, dry them very thoroughly just as soon as they are used. Store where they will remain free from moisture.

I have a lovely stiff taffeta dark green evening dress upon which a cup of coffee was spilled. It wouldn't come out with dry cleaning so the cleaner washed it and so doing removed all the stiffness or crispness. What can I do to restore the rustle and stiffness to it? M. A.

Dipping the dress in a solution of gum arabic will give it additional body. To make the gum arabic solution, add one pint of boiling water to one ounce of powdered gum arabic and stir over low heat until the gum arabic is completely dissolved. Dilute with one to two pints of lukewarm water according to the stiffness desired. Gum arabic may be purchased at most drug stores.

I have a large grill which is used almost constantly. Can you tell me how to keep it clean without using steel wool? I find that all food sticks badly after the grill is cleaned with steel wool, but there seems to be no other way of cleaning it. It is cast iron. I have tried ammonia, but the odor clings to the grill. Also, what will remove rust from the edges of it? E. B.

If you will season this grill thoroughly it will help to prevent food from sticking to it and also the rust from forming on the edges. To do this, apply unsalted fat to the clean grill and heat slowly with low temperature for several hours. Continue adding fat as it becomes absorbed in the iron. When thus seasoned, avoid scouring or using water on it because this would remove the fat and the sticking-rust difficulty would probably return.

Can you tell me where I can buy cloth labels with my name either printed or sewn into them? M. D. E.

You can have name tapes printed by giving your order at the notion department of large department stores. There are two types of these name tapes, those which must be sewn on and those which can be pressed on.

Decorating Hints

Try Out Your Own Ideas In Painting Bathroom

By Ann Pringle

BY SOME miracle, performed perhaps with assistance from the Office of Regional Rent Control, your appartment is going to be painted. After several hours' dreaming of all the lovely colors you might use for each room you're confused and a little scared, and you figure maybe the best thing after all is to have the living room painted light green, or maybe beige, leave the bedroom blue and make the bathroom white, just as before.

It's like figuring out where to go on your summer vacation. You peruse the travel folders and stop, in your imagination, in a thousand different mountain and seashore resorts, only to end up writing to the hotel you stopped at last year.

You can't strike out on the royal road to adventure all at once if you've passed most of your life on the direct route from here to there. But the best place to start fresh, decoratively speaking, is the bathroom. Nobody spends much consecutive time there, except maybe people who read in the bathtub, the absorbed kind of people that probably don't notice walls anyway. And if you make a mistake the room is usually small enough so that you can repaint it yourself.

THE main thing, after you've decided to have a hunter green or a deep purple bathroom, is to stick to your choice. When the painter says, "I'll do it, lady, but it won't look right," just smile sweetly at him and tell yourself you know best.

And the surprising thing is, you usually do. A friend of mine painted her bathroom black, hung yellow and gray striped cotton over the window-wall, backed a full-length mirror over the part where the window was hidden and painted the ceiling yellow. She says she knew all the time that it would look all right, even if nobody else did. Now she has ideas for an eggplant-colored living room.

Maybe if you experiment on the bathroom you'll have a little more confidence in your imagination when next painting time rolls around.

The Neglected Bread Knife

How many times have you been served ragged-looking sandwiches? Probably the whole trouble was a dull bread knife. This is one of the most important utensils in the kitchen and one most often overlooked.

Use Leftovers Quickly

Don't allow stale food to accumulate in the refrigerator. Look through it each morning and either use or dispose of the leftovers therein. A great deal of food goes to waste by simply forgetting it's there unless this check-up is employed.

Birthstone Lipsticks

A new gift item for that special girl is a sterling silver lipstick set with a glittering birthstone ranging from the deep blood red of the January garnet to the opaque blue-green of December's turquoise.

Miniature 'Barcelet' Rings

Latest innovation in wedding ring designs features "bangle" bands of palladium, described as "miniature bracelets" because they extend almost to the knuckle of the third finger, left hand. To avoid excessive weight the designer selected the platinum sister-metal, palladium.

Food Editors

The rice diet now popular for the treatment of heart trouble was touched on by Dr. King in his discussion of nutritional developments.

"This diet has proven a practical means of lowering blood pressure in many cases," he said, "though nobody knows exactly why. Two things that it does is to cut down on the caloric and salt intake, which undoubtedly has a bearing on the lowered blood pressure."

Risk Is Involved

"The risk involved in the diet," he continued, "is that of staying on it too long and developing deficiency diseases. The sensible thing is to stay on the diet only for a critical period, then supplement it with other foods."

All the news wasn't on nutrition at today's conference, however. We also garnered a number of tips on new ways to make food appetizing, particularly at a gala "County Fair" breakfast that opened the day.

The use of instant coffee as a spice to give gourmet perfection of flavor to various foods was one of the surprising new ideas brought out.

Experimental work shows, a consumer service economist told us, that a small amount of the instant coffee in soups, celery bread stuffing, cheese souffle and other dishes makes a big difference in its flavor appeal.

There is no detectable coffee taste or flavor, yet each dish shows a decided improvement in the blending of the flavors of all the major ingredients.

Another feature of the day was the awarding of prizes offered by the American Meat Institute in its 1948 food editor's contest. Winners of the awards for different classes of papers all over the country are: Mrs. Edrie Van Dore, Hartford Times; Miss Grace Hartley, Atlanta Journal; Miss Elsa Steinberge, Brooklyn Eagle, and Mrs. Ruth Ellen Church, Chicago Tribune.

READ CAREFULLY

Thursday, September 30, at 1:30 p. m. sharp, I want to talk with 26 men who are really ambitious in securing a position that will give them steady employment the year round. In other words, there are no laying-off periods and consistent income is the income that really counts. It doesn't matter what your past employment has been. All we ask is that you be willing to study and learn as we teach you our work. It will also be necessary that you be willing to get along on $75-$85 week for the first 4 to 6 weeks while learning our work.

You must also be able to give the names of 3 people who will vouch for your honesty and integrity. We prefer men who are married or men who have some sense of responsibility.

I would also like to talk to a few men who are mechanically inclined and who know a good thing when they see it.

Therefore, if you are honest and of good character and a willing worker, and neat in appearance, come in and talk with me.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Finds No Peace in Home Front Cold War

Before they made a newscaster of me, I used to enjoy occasional ill health to the fullest.

A cold or a sore throat was the signal for loafing around the house in a dressing gown for a few days, with nothing to do but read and listen to the radio.

Somebody else at the office worked a little harder, and the paper got out very well without me. (So well, in fact, that it was a bit disconcerting).

But now, I find no peace. I'm constantly beset by sprays, drops, medicines and gargles. And every time I raise my sandpaper voice in protest, I bring on a new wave of therapeutic activity.

"Just listen to you," says the little woman as she begins to stir up another of her vile potions. "A man who makes his living with his voice letting himself catch colds. Sometimes I think you just don't care what's going to become of your family. Here—drink this—and shut up."

Yessir, the old days of enjoying a cold are past. Now there's nothing to do but get dressed and go back to work—in self defense.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

You wanted to know about Rhodesian ridgebacks.

I've just been reading "Beyond the Smoke That Thunders," by Lucy Pope Cullen. In it, I found:

"The Rhodesian ridgeback, or lion dog, was a popular breed. It usually looked like a mixture of a little Dane with a good deal of mongrel. Its distinguishing characteristic was the peculiar backward growth of the hair along its spine." Doesn't sound very pretty, does it?

By the way, I no longer seem to be able to find your column in the Sunday paper. Have you been taking two days off each week?

Jane Morey
Wardman Park Hotel

Dear Jane:

Nope—just one. There's so much good reading matter in the Sunday Washington Post that I couldn't meet the competition.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Male and female kittens, 7 weeks old. They'll eat anything." (Ordway 5309 between 7 and 9 a. m., 6 and 8 p. m.).

"Adorable gray kitten of best alley cat parentage. Speaks Romanian." (Woodley 8574).

"Intelligent female spaniel; the landlord says she must go." (Temple 5466).

THIS MECHANICAL AGE

Now that the mornings and evenings are getting chilly again, many motorists hate to roll down their car windows to give proper turn signals.

I got to wondering yesterday whether my turn indicator lights would be an acceptable substitute for hand signals, and checked the traffic code.

The answer is that lights or mechanical signals are acceptable so long as they are clearly visible to approaching traffic in both directions.

For example, if you're parked at the curb you'd better give a hand signal before pulling out—because your turn lights might be obscured by other parked cars.

But once you're out in the open you can keep your hands warm as you contemplate the thoughtfulness of the dealer who provided you with turn-indicator lights. Especially if they work.

GREASED LIGHTNING

A ram-jet test missile was clocked at 1600 miles per hour the other day.

These things are now approaching the speed of a small boy leaving school at 3 p. m.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Gravel trucks ply city streets all over America, but I've never seen streets so littered with small stones as Washington's. Wonder why?

Are our trucks loaded fuller, do they take corners faster or is there just more construction work here?

PERSONAL NOTES

Elizabeth Kimball, 4033 S. 19th st., Arlington, Va.: Thanks for the Give-Away report. It illustrates one of the reasons we decided to continue to devote space to these pets. It's not only a service to the donors but a real revelation to some of them when they see some kid's eyes light up at the sight of his brand new puppy.

HERE WE GO AGAIN

When I was a boy (back in the days when Dewey was an Admiral, not a Governor) every married man and every taxpayer automatically thought of himself as a first-class Santa Claus. The part required no special training.

But these days, a fellow has to go to school to play Saint Nicholas properly. For example, the Hecht Company is currently accepting applications from unemployed Santas, and says that the two best will be sent off to Olean, N. Y., for a pre-holiday course in child psychology.

Old reactionary that I am, I can't help but wonder whether there's anything to be gained from such a course.

Regardless of how much training Santa gets, Junior still won't sit quietly on his knee, he'll still manage to get his lollipop tangled up in the old boy's whiskers; and he's sure to blurt out, as he has since time immemorial:

"Hey, if you're really Santa Claus, who's the guy we seen in Woody's—your brudder?"

NEW YORK—Sunday, just before the Yankee-Red Sox game, Dominick DiMaggio told his brother, Joe, about his marriage plans: The wedding date, October 7—unless the Red Sox win the pennant and play in the World Series, then the wedding would be postponed to October 17. Joe telephoned their parents and promised: "I'm going to see to it that Dom gets married early" . . . Fred Allen's comments on give-away programs, in which he describes them as "the buzzards of radio," will be part of the law brief in the FCC hearings to bar such programs . . . Ed Pauley, who twice received a mauling from Congress, is helping raise funds for Truman's campaign.

Paul Porter will lecture on price control before the N. Y. Times Forum, and on loyalty before the Herald Tribune Forum . . . Louis Calhern has a unique distinction: He declined an invitation to be photographed as a man of distinction . . . A Balkan diplomat who just arrived in N. Y. was describing Russia's frequent but vain attempts to gain a foothold in Turkey. "To the Soviet Union," he said, "Turkey is like a bowling ball without any hole in it—every inch of its surface is being probed, but there's just no place to get a grip" . . . Constantin Poulos, the newspaperman, may be sent to Greece by his colleagues to help solve the murder of George Polk.

Carroll Knowles, the Oklahoma oil man, was heard complaining: "To me it's not just the high cost of living. It's the high cost of high living" . . . Victor Emanuel expects to add a Kentucky station to his radio holdings . . . Moss Hart, who once transplanted 3000 trees to his New Hope, Pa., farm, asked a doctor: "When do you think my son will start recognizing me?" The doctor told him: "He's only a few months old. You've got to be patient." Hart sighed: "Patience is hardly the word to use to a man who wanted to, and did, sit in the shade of a tree planted on his farmland that very morning."

The food prepared by the Chef of the Week on Gloria Swanson's television show is considered a prop by the union, and therefore may be handled only by the property men—who eat it at the end of the show.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mrs. Roosevelt Won't Campaign

By Drew Pearson

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt has indicated to friends she will not be speaking in support of President Truman's reelection.

Pearson

This is going to be a big disappointment to Mr. Truman. For, way back when the United Nations was first founded and he decided to appoint Mrs. Roosevelt as a delegate, he had in mind getting her support for his reelection. At least, he told Jimmie Byrnes, then Secretary of State, that he hoped this would help keep the Roosevelt family in his camp.

Mrs. Roosevelt, however, has told friends that she will remain in Europe at the United Nations General Assembly until around December 1, will take no part in the election campaign.

Mrs. Roosevelt was privately opposed to Truman's renomination.

Navy's One-Man Lobby

The Navy has an unofficial press agent on its payroll who bombards editors and Congressmen with letters, telling the Navy's side in its feud with the Air Force.

He is Hugh L. Hanson, $9000-a-year engineer for the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics. Allegedly as a "private citizen," he writes what the Navy would dare not say officially.

This one-man letter lobby, if it doesn't actually violate the lobbying act, certainly is contrary to Secretary of Defense James Forrestal's directive against bickering among the services. Yet Forrestal, instead of rebuking Hanson, has been conferring with him in private.

Hanson claims he composes the letters in his spare time, as "sort of a hobby." Yet the letters are filled with technical information that obviously requires on-the-job research. They are also turned out on such a mass scale that it would take considerable "spare time." In subject matter, the letters consistently hammer the Air Force and support the Navy line.

Hanson even went so far as to write Senators against appropriations for the Air Force's giant B-36 bombers. To Senator Brien McMahon, Connecticut Democrat, he wrote: "I would greatly appreciate it if you would tell me why we are expending public funds on a bomber whose performance does not seem to be any better than aircraft available prior to the war."

Hanson gave his home address as Canaan, Conn.

However, in a letter to Senator John Bricker, Ohio Republican, this Navy employe gave a different home address—this time, Columbus, Ohio.

Now Hanson has even started writing to the President.

Louisiana Politics

The Chicago Tribune carried banner headlines recently accusing the Truman Administration of threatening Gov. Earl Long with income-tax prosecution if he didn't call a special session of the Louisiana Legislature to put Truman's name back on the ballot.

Real fact is that Governor Long does have an income-tax case which has been hanging fire for some time, but his arm was not twisted into calling the special session. The amount of money involved is not great and there was never any question of criminal prosecution. However, when the United States Treasury assessed a fraud penalty of $1200 against Long some time ago, he howled like a stuck pig, said he didn't mind paying the penalty, but didn't want it labeled a "fraud" penalty. The Treasury is still dickering with him.

Reason for the rumor about the Truman Administration bulldozing Long into calling a special session was the secret tactics of Peyton Ford, assistant to the Attorney General, who eased into New Orleans very quietly and had someone else register for him at the Roosevelt Hotel. Ford, whose middle name is "secrecy," operated in such a hush-hush manner that everyone suspected the worst.

Merry-Go-Round

Senator Owen Brewster of Maine spent $1752 to print copies of his speech attacking Howard Hughes. That doesn't include secretarial service and mailing charges which the taxpayers paid for Brewster due to the fact that he has free franking privileges . . . A large number of New Jersey lawyers have petitioned the Justice Department to investigate the very serious charges I have made against Congressman Parnell Thomas of New Jersey . . . Four days after he returns from the West, President Truman will hit the road again—in the opposite direction. This time he will speak in large Eastern cities—Philadelphia, October 6; Newark, N. J., October 7; Syracuse, N. Y., October 8; Buffalo, the same day; Scranton, Pa., October 9.

Representative George Bender of Ohio is probing charges that Negro patients at the Tuskegee, Ala., veterans' hospital are living in "filth and neglect."

Another case deserving Bender's investigation is the condition of white patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital at Perry Point, Md., a short distance from Washington.

DANDRUFF

● Dandruff clogs the hair follicle, causes itchy scalp, falling hair, and keeps new hair from replacing hair which has dropped out. Because there are several types of dandruff, cure-all surface remedies may spread rather than check your dandruff.

Thomas experts know how to recognize and check the various types of dandruff. They know how to stop your abnormal hair loss, how to overcome scalp itch, and how to promote natural hair growth for you. They have helped a quarter-million other persons to overcome their scalp troubles. Come in today for a free scalp examination and learn how they may help you, too, to avoid baldness.
